THE MIGNON PIANO AGAINST THE WORLD.

Notwithstanding the number of would-be imitators of this fine Model Piano, the instrument holds its own against them all. Not even in the great city of London—which is such a vast emporium for pianos—has there yet appeared a piano to compare for a moment to the MIGNON PIANO.
Our competitors in this part of the world have no doubt worried their brains in their endeavours to produce an instrument to offer in opposition to the Mignon. How bitter must be their disappointment. What has been the result of their researches? They show pianettes, or small pianos, pretending they are Mignon Pianos; also the construction and general workmanship very much inferior.
THE MIGNON PIANO
is not a pianette, but an instrument of ordinary cottage size, and is as well finished as a ninety-guinea instrument. It is overstrung (double oblique) trichord, seven octaves in compass. Its quality of tone is of the very finest, and with a remarkable touch, which enables the youngest player to perform with perfect ease and freedom. The instrument is iron-framed, has a beautiful ivory keyboard, and is enclosed in a most elegant and chaste style of case, in walnut, and walnut and gold engraved, also ebonised and gold engraved.
THE MIGNON PIANO
is unapproached by any other similar value piano. The demand for this piano is steadily increasing, and the instrument is now to be found in almost every town in New South Wales and Victoria. The price is exceedingly low for so superb an instrument. This model can be sent to any part of Australia without fear.
WE GUARANTEE IT FOR SEVEN YEARS.

HALF A MILLION OF MONEY TO LEND.

INFORMATION FOR BORROWERS.

Many an anxious eye is cast over the advertisements of persons who advertise money to lend. The confiding public should use every precaution prior to making application to many of the Shylocks that infest our city. Some pretend to be solicitors, others are promoters of bogus sweep swindles, and others are ashamed to advertise their names. To transact business with such characters simply means ruin. I have been honoured with the commission to invest the handsome sum of Five Hundred Thousand Pounds, upon every description of security, at a moderate rate of interest. A business man requiring a loan of £100 on his furniture can obtain same from me without any publicity, and repay same by weekly instalments. There are no clerks and no directors to pry into his business, consequently his commercial position is not stained.

CHALLENGE.

As there are a number of Atmospheric Air Gas Machines now in the Wealth and Industrial Exhibition, it is a good opportunity of testing the quality of them practically. We, the undersigned, manufacturers and proprietors of "Needles" Patent Gas Apparatus, do hereby challenge Messrs. Murray and Parkinson, or any other Atmospheric Air Gas Machine Manufacturers in the colonies or elsewhere, to produce 20,000 feet of gas equal in quantity, quality, quickness, cheapness, simplicity, and durability, to that produced by the "Needles" for £100.

PAWNING A PAIR OF TROUSERS FOR MEDICINE.

James Francis Thomas lives in Pontnewynydd near Pontypool, Monmouthshire. He is now twenty-three years of age, living with his mother, a widow. Some eleven years ago, then a mere boy, he went to work in the coal pit as a miner, in order to assist his mother in rearing her family of little children. Soon, however, the little fellow broke down in health; but the necessities of the family seemed to require it, and he continued to toil in the mines, suffering all the time from the effects of indigestion, an agonising symptom being asthma, in such a troublesome form that the boy was unable to lie in bed. Working through the day, and resting as best he could in an armchair during the night, naturally undermined his constitution. Year by year his health grew worse and worse, until at last rheumatism came with all its dreadful agony. One joint after another became swollen and inflamed, so that he was obliged to stop work. In this sad plight the now young man was confined to the house for two long years, suffering all that mortal could endure. One physician after another was called upon to treat his complaint, but with no benefit, for the poor fellow continued to grow worse and worse. Hoping to find some means of relief, a consultation of doctors was held, when it was decided that an organic disease of the heart existed in an incurable form, and that medical aid could not afford relief. He was given up to die. These years of expensive medical treatment had exhausted the little savings of the mother, and they had no money to buy even the necessaries of life. But a fond mother never gives up in despair. There was one spark of hope left. Someone had told her of a remedy that had cured so many cases—even when as hopeless as this one seemed to be—and the mother's love went out for her dear boy. But how to get the medicine was the question. Their money was entirely gone. The boy had a new pair of trousers that he had been too ill to wear, and the mother reasoned within herself, "If the boy is to die he will not need them, so I may as well pledge them for medicine with an effort to save his life." Strange as it may appear, the bottles of medicine procured at the chemist's shop in Pontypool with the money obtained from the pawnbroker effected a cure in this hopeless case, which had been pronounced as incurable. But it is only just to say that, if the chemist had known of the wants of the family, the medicine could have been obtained without a visit to the pawnbroker. It is now nearly two years since this took place, and young James Francis Thomas has been working in the coal-pit underground ever since, earning extra pay for overwork, which he is able to perform. Of course he never had organic disease of the heart, as was supposed. The palpitation, rheumatism, and asthma were mere symptoms of the real disease, which was dyspepsia, or indigestion, for which the remedy was specially adapted. Those who wish to communicate with this young man can write to him at the above address, and he will vouch for the curative properties of Seigel's syrup, the article that effected this almost miraculous cure. The following letter is from a chemist, who thought the facts should be made known:—"James Francis Thomas, of Pontnewynydd, near Pontypool, age 23, collier, was ill for nine years, unable to do any work for three years, never lay down in bed for nine years, had to sleep in a stooping posture, was treated by nearly all the doctors for miles around, who generally stated his complaint to be rheumatism and heart disease of a chronic nature, and beyond all power to cure. When hope had nearly died out, he was persuaded to try Seigel's Syrup; and, to the delight of his relatives and astonishment of his neighbours, after taking half a bottle he could lie down in bed. After taking one bottle he went to work. Has now taken two bottles, and on with the third, and is quite well and strong. His mother is in raptures, and can talk of nothing else but his marvellous cure, and wishes me to make it known."

Seigel's Syrup is sold by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors, and by the proprietors, A. J. WHITE (Limited), London, England, or the Wholesale Agents, Elliott Bros., Sydney.

15th August, 1883.

Dear Sir,—I write to tell you that Mr. Henry Hillier, of Yatesbury, Wilts, informs me that he suffered from a severe form of indigestion for upwards of four years, and took no end of doctor's medicine without the slightest benefit, and declares Mother Seigel's Syrup which he got from me has saved his life.

Yours truly,
(Signed) N. WEBB,

Seigel's Operating Pills are the best family physic that has ever been discovered. They cleanse the bowels from all irritating substances, and leave them in a healthy condition. They cure costiveness.

St. Mary-street, Peterborough, November 29, 1881.

Sir,—It gives me great pleasure to inform you of the benefit I have received from Seigel's Syrup. I have been troubled for years with dyspepsia; but after a few doses of the Syrup I found relief, and after taking two bottles of it I feel quite cured.

I am, Sir, yours truly,
Mr. A. J. White. WILLIAM BRENT.

Dear Sir,—I find the sale of Seigel's Syrup steadily increasing. All who have tried it speak very highly of its medicinal virtues; one customer describes it as a "Godsend to dyspeptic people." I always recommend it with confidence.

Faithfully yours,

Mr. A. J. White.—Dear Sir,—I was for some time afflicted with piles, and was advised to give Mother Seigel's Syrup a trial, which I did. I am now happy to state that it has restored me to complete health.—I remain, yours respectfully, (Signed) JOHN H. LIGHTFOOT.

Spanish Town, Jamaica, West Indies, Oct. 24, 1882.

Dear Sir,—I write to inform you that I have derived great benefit from Seigel's Syrup. For some years I have suffered from liver complaint, with its many and varied concomitant evils, so that my life was a perpetual misery. Twelve months ago I was induced to try Seigel's Syrup, and although rather sceptical, having tried so many reputed infallible remedies, I determined to give it at least a fair trial. In two or three days I felt considerably better, and now at the end of 12 months (having continued taking it) I am glad to say that I am a different being altogether. It is said of certain pens than they "come as a boon and a blessing to men," and I have no reason to doubt the truthfulness of the statement. I can truly say, however, that Seigel's Syrup has come as a "boon and a blessing" to me. I have recommended it to several fellow-sufferers from this distressing complaint, and their testimony is quite in accordance with my own. Gratitude for the benefit I have derived from this excellent preparation prompts me to furnish you with this unsolicited testimonial.

I am, dear Sir,
Yours ever gratefully,

XII.

Now that I have brought to a close the account of the visit of H.M.S. Nelson and the men-of-war accompanying her to New Guinea, it may be well to offer a few general observations respecting the country, its people, and their productions, and the opportunities that present themselves for the settlement of a white population; and to say something of the missionary labours on the island. Settlement is for the present prohibited, but when it shall be permitted it will not be easy for the settlers to make their positions in the country immediately profitable. The soil in many places—probably in most—is undoubtedly good, and the vegetable productions which are the result of the labours of the natives, show that it can be brought to a high state of cultivation. But some time must elapse before it can be accurately determined what the soil in particular localities will produce most readily and in the highest perfection. It was noticed during the run of the squadron along the southern coast that the vegetables grown by the natives were not found in all the places visited, and in some localities they were much larger and finer than they were in others. It was the same with fruit; and sugar-cane we saw in only two or three places. We found, as is usually the case, that cultivation was carried on best where the natural vegetation was densest and most luxuriant, and that was in localities a considerable distance eastward of Port Moresby. There the rainfall is said to be more constant and copious than it is westward, and the soil is richer, producing yams, taro, and sweet potatoes, and bananas, mammy apples, and other fruits, in abundance. Sugar-cane was most commonly seen in the possession of the natives in the eastern part of the island, but this article of production does not appear to be cultivated extensively, though it is said to grow well in various parts of the country. Cocoanuts appear to be abundant along the whole length of the coast, but in all probability they are not more than sufficient for the native population, which is very numerous, and little or nothing could be done with them in the way of an export trade. The sago palm also forms part of the native food production, and westward of Port Moresby seems to be plentiful. It is doubtful whether we saw any ebony. This wood is known to be procurable in New Guinea, and it was said when the squadron was on its way to Kerepunu that we should find plenty of it in that direction in the form of greenstone axe handles, and, it might be, spears. But I saw none, and though it was reported that one or two specimens of the wood were obtained, it is probable that in these cases the wood was of an ordinary description blackened by fire or some dark colouring matter. Timber of various valuable kinds is to be found on the rivers and in their neighbourhood, and if what is said with regard to it be true a very profitable timber trade might be carried on. Gold, too, probably exists in the mountains and in their vicinity, though it is a remarkable fact that no sign of it is to be seen among the coast natives, and they would have nothing to do with any ornaments having the appearance of gold which were offered to them by persons on board the men-of-war in the way of trade. Polished and shining brass bracelets of a very pretty pattern, and neck pendants of the same material, only excited ridicule when they were offered to male natives in exchange for something they had to sell, and it was very plain that nothing like gold was either familiar or attractive to them. Grazing operations might be carried on, so far as they relate to cattle. Grass and water are in many places abundant, and cattle, it is believed, would thrive very well; but the industry, it is considered, would be confronted by a serious drawback, for it is difficult to say where a profitable market would be found for the cattle. As for sheep, it is thought the climate is altogether against them, and that they would lose their wool, as they do in Fiji.

What, therefore, there is at present to which white settlers could devote their attention with any likelihood of a profit sufficiently large to compensate them for the inconveniences they would have to put up with, it is difficult to say. The only prospect worth mentioning is that the island may, by the cultivation of certain products, be made another Java, with English or Australian capital and energy to establish and maintain a large export trade in sugar, coffee, tobacco, and other such articles. The cultivation of these products, according to the system adopted in Java, would necessitate the employment of natives, for though white men, with due precautions, may be able to work in plantations under the New Guinea sun, it is doubtful whether these precautions would be taken, and without them it would be impossible to labour for any length of time and with anything like regularity in the the open air. Then if native labour were necessary, it is probable that it would have to be imported, for the New Guineans are not a hard-working people, and what work they do in the fields in the way of cultivation is so much confined to their own wants that it is considered by those who know them to be hardly likely that they could be induced to toil for a certain number of hours each day for the benefit of others. The heat along the southern coast is not only intense, but it is of that objectionable description known as "muggy." While the excessive temperature is very trying, and the glare of the sun burns one's features almost to the colour of the skin of a native, the great humidity of the atmosphere is exceedingly oppressive, and one's clothes become sticky with perspiration. Fever is said to be very prevalent; but we saw it in only one place, and in some localities where it was said to exist, the appearance of the country seemed to cast discredit on the statement. But in the healthiest spot fever may be contracted under certain conditions, and they are little more than a neglect of common sanitary precautions against the disease. For instance, in the interior where the land is more mountainous than at some parts of the actual coastline, rain falls frequently, and a traveller who is overtaken by a shower and gets wet, is certain to be attacked by fever if he camp in his wet clothes. To this single circumstance of either neglecting or being unable to change one's clothes after getting wet are ascribed many of the cases of fever which have attacked members of the parties who have at different times landed in New Guinea with the object of exploring the country. But though fever has been a great obstacle to exploration hitherto, it may to a large extent be kept at a distance. The probable hostility of the natives is a greater difficulty in the way of persons who may be desirous of attempting to open up the country. Where exploring parties have been travelling, their relations with the natives have in some instances been very unfriendly, and the effect of this on the native mind is lasting; and where explorers have not yet made their appearance, the natives may show signs of an intention to oppose by force any invasion of their territory. Every foot of land, and every cocoanut tree, in the country, are said to have owners, and not only are all the natives jealous of their rights, but they are, as a people naturally evil-disposed and treacherous and cruel.

The experiences of the missionaries in this respect are well worthy of notice. Ten years ago, when the Rev. W. G. Lawes and Mrs. Lawes landed at Port Moresby, they found the natives there to be inveterate thieves. Even the oven had to be watched. There was no possibility of keeping anything without constantly watching it, and in spite of the watching, it seemed to go away. The worst feature about the matter was that the natives felt no shame. One man was appealed to by Mr. Lawes, who asked him whether after the kindness that had been shown to him he was not ashamed at what he had done, by stealing from his benefactor; and the answer was, "Oh, no, I am not ashamed." As I mentioned in a previous article, the natives ardently covet the tattoo marks, which show that they have killed some one; but their manner of fighting is the manner of the assassin and the murderer. They are so superstitious that no native believes anyone dies from disease. If a death occur in a village it is believed to have been caused by evil spirits, and because one of the medicine men of a tribe tells the natives that the death has been brought about by a spirit from some other tribe, it must be revenged. From this it may be understood what a feeling of animosity is always aflame between one tribe of natives and another; and there is no reason why similar superstitions should not possess the minds of the natives with regard to the members of any party of white men who may attempt to open up the country or form settlements. Those who have read my account of the visit of the Nelson to Kerepunu, will remember that the natives would not under any circumstances permit one of their wooden drums to be beaten by any of the Nelson's party, because of the belief that the beating of the instrument by a white man would inevitably result in a death in the village. But Mr. Lawes has found some good traits among the people. "I know some good and noble traits," he said, in the address he delivered to the officers and crew of the Nelson, to which in a previous article I made some reference, "but these stand out in bold relief as exceptions, like some solitary-looking flowers in a desert, just indicating what the soil might produce if it were cultivated."

"We landed at Port Moresby," he said on the same occasion, "without knowing a word of the native language, and the natives knew nothing about us. But (and here his remarks are of importance to anyone who contemplates visiting New Guinea) there is one language that is understood all the world over, and it is the language of human kindness. We had to go to New Guinea with that, and find our way by that. That way may be down the native tobacco pipe, or in relation to other small and trivial things, but we had to establish ourselves first of all as the friends of the natives, so as to show them that our intentions were kindly and for their good." Referring to the missionary efforts in the island, he emphatically said, "We must not try to introduce into New Guinea English Christianity. There is a great diversity between the dress of New Guineans and that of Englishmen, and to attempt to introduce to the natives Christianity in an English dress would be a mistake. There is," he proceeded, "a wonderful adaptability in the Gospel, and it is suited to all conditions of men. But that which may be the best channel for introducing the Gospel to those used to English customs and dress may not be that which is best adapted to those who have been living without these customs and dress, and under very different circumstances. It would be a mistake to introduce among such a people any particular creed or formality, or to do otherwise than to put before them the Gospel in its simplest form." And how successful the work of the missionaries has been can also be told in Mr. Lawes' own words. "For instance," he said, "at Port Moresby when we first went there we never met a man who would not steal or tell a lie when he thought fit to do so; but the circumstances of our living among them, and neither stealing nor departing from the truth, told on them. We did not refrain from teaching and preaching, but in those early days, and when the first attempts at preaching were made, a man would sometimes shout in the midst of what I was saying, 'That's a lie.' The kind of audience we used to have was sufficient to surprise anyone; but we found that there was nothing in the Gospel of Christianity that could not be received into the native heart. We find no difficulty in explaining to them the truth, and I do not know that they have any difficulty in accepting it. I do not say that they understand all the Word of God, but the great central truths of Christianity, the great facts of the life of Christ and His atonement, are readily grasped by them." Speaking of the native teachers, he pointed out how valuable were the labours of these South Sea Islanders, who were the coadjutors and colleagues of the missionaries, and he characterised the teacher at Port Moresby as one of the finest men in New Guinea. At the time when some diggers searching for gold were struck down with fever, this teacher went more than once several miles inland to carry the sick to Port Moresby and to tend them. Yet his father was a cannibal, and he is only one generation from cannibalism. At the east end of New Guinea, where cannibalism still flourishes, the teacher is a Loyalty Islander, and has himself been a cannibal. "In these cases," Mr. Lawes considers, "we have the best evidence of what the Gospel will do." The perils to which these teachers are exposed are very great. The murder of a number of them at Kalo occurred so recently that it is still fresh in the recollection of all who have paid any attention to matters in New Guinea, and a story that was told me of the marvellous escape of a teacher's wife from a horrible death in the jaws of an alligator, shows that the lives of those people are frequently in danger from causes other than the murderous weapons of the New Guinea natives. In this incident of the escape from the alligator the teacher's wife was on the beach at Kerepunu at a time when it was difficult in the dim evening light to distinguish objects with certainty, and she found herself suddenly attacked by an enormous alligator. The alligators of New Guinea are said to be dangerous only when anything gets between them and the water, and this poor woman found herself close to this enormous brute as, startled by something, it was coming rapidly towards the water. She tried to escape out of its way, but did not succeed, and the reptile seizing her by the dress dragged her into the water, where she would certainly have been dreadfully mangled and drowned had not her screams providentially attracted the attention of her husband, who happened to be not far off. He rushed into the water after her, and by shouts and blows with a stick managed to frighten the alligator and to rescue his wife, though not before she was torn very much by the creature's claws.

The mission stations in connection with the eastern branch of the New Guinea mission now number 30, and wherever the mission influence extends white men may with safety go among the natives; but even around the mission stations the natives retain some of their wild nature, and though they have learned to regard the white man as a friend, they will resent, and it may be with deadly effect, any insult or injury done to them. The missionaries point out to those who look for the results from the mission that in a place like New Guinea we must not be impatient of results. "We are thankful," Mr. Lawes said on the Nelson, "for the indication of change. At Port Moresby, if the people are not strictly honest, they are now ashamed of thieving. They were at one time the marauders and pirates of the coast. When canoes came there to trade, a chief—one of those who came on board the Nelson—would say to the Port Moresby natives, 'Now, boys, there's a canoe coming,' and they would immediately go on board and help themselves to everything, and tell those in the canoe they might be thankful that their lives were spared. But for ten years past a spear has never been uplifted at Port Moresby in anger, and the influence proceeding from this fact along the coast is very great. Even at a raid the other day at Kapa Kapa no woman was touched, and this is an indication of a change in the moral feeling of the people. There are some New Guinea communicants about whose Christian faith I have no more doubt than I have of that of my own friends. Cannibalism has been shamed out of existence in some districts, and in others it has probably received its death blow; and we have the confidence of the people all along the south-east coast."

THE TRAMS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Save your article at the commencement of the month I see no indication of discontent at the raising of the tram fares. Is it that the public are hopeless that any remonstrance will avail? It surely must be so, for I do not think that the increased charges are willingly borne or bear profitable results. Will anybody say to the contrary?

Your article was, I think, a very mild exposition of public opinion, and therefore I ask permission to open up further consideration of the subject.

Much objection has at various times been urged to the use of locomotives which draw the tram carriages, but I am not aware if they have been objected to as other than less suitable than horses. I, however, blame these locomotives for the whole of the difficulty.

If the cost of these engines, which must have been enormous, be set against that of a sufficient number of horses necessary to do the same amount of work, the balance would, I am sure, be found to be immensely in favour of the latter. I also think that the cost of forage, &c., for horses would be much less than that expended for fuel by the present system.

The engineers who drive the locomotives are justly and necessarily higher-paid persons than would be required for horses.

Let the Government set all the engines aside, and run with horses, by contract if possible, and I dare be bound that it will be found that the old fares can be readily restored, if not lowered, and leave a profit.

In filth, in clumsiness, and many other respects, the trams of New South Wales bear a wretched comparison to those used in London.

Can any of your readers give facts and figures to qualify or contradict my conclusions? If not, and no other voice is raised against the matter but mine, it will afford me further evidence that the citizens are a very happy or a very long-suffering people.

Yours obediently,
JASPER.

OUR MELBOURNE LETTER.

MELBOURNE, JAN. 8.

Last night everybody was of one mind excepting Mr. Scott and four German youths. It is naturally to be expected that the German mind should take its colour from its own national prepossessions; but there is no sufficient explanation of why Mr. Scott should disagree with the resolutions adopted at the Town Hall meeting. But then there is equal obscurity as to Mr. Scott himself. The reason of his being is not apparent, consequently the reason of his wishing to propose an amendment to the resolution condemnatory of the New Guinea policy, is not apparent also. Probably he has achieved his object. Until last night Mr. Scott was nobody. He was a cipher in the great sum of human existence; a cipher with no other numeral before it: now he is a figure with a value. He is known; he is talked about: he is a kind of hero. To be sure, his is the sort of heroism of which some people—perhaps most people—would not be proud. On the other hand it is to be acknowledged that he has achieved distinction, and, to some people, distinction is everything. Everybody remembers the story of the man who boasted of having been addressed by the Duke of Wellington, and who, on being asked what the hero of Waterloo said to him, explained that his Grace had only condemned his eyes, and told him to get out of his way. In like manner Mr. Scott is proud of being howled at by the meeting, and ruled out of order by the Chairman. But it is something to see oneself conspicuous in the newspapers. And of the meeting itself, it is to be said that it was a good meeting, after a fashion. The speakers, for the most part, were men who had been in the habit of addressing large assemblages, and who, not only could be heard, but who did not talk for the sake of talking. They were the sort of orators who spoke because they had something to say, not because they wanted to say something. It is true they told us nothing we did not know before; but they were representative citizens, who might be taken as the collective mouth-piece of all the rest, and therefore their utterances had a weight not to be disregarded. And this notwithstanding that they only put on record what was felt and known, and did not propose any solution of the difficulty they were met to consider, nor suggest any remedy for the evil complained of. On the other hand, there was no bluster; no "tall" talking; no swagger; no "elocuting." They were all in earnest, and consequently they were listened to, as all really earnest speakers always are listened to. Nobody expects that Lord Derby will attend to the remonstrances which, taking the shape of these resolutions, are to be sent home to him. He will probably read them: he will initial them; make a minute of them; have them put on a shelf, where they can be found when they are wanted. And if any member of the House asks a question about them, he will be able to give all possible information thereon. And, so far as he is concerned, there the business will end. But we feel more easy in our minds now that we have had our say, and told Lord Derby a very large piece of our mind.

The meeting at the Town Hall has concluded the holidays, and now we are understood to be going to work with fresh vigour. Not that more than 5 per cent. of this holiday-making population ever does work with vigour. It really makes but little difference whether the so-called working-man works or idles. He never fatigues himself. For the last four months some building operations have been going on opposite my residence, and I have noted the comings and goings, and especially the restings of those interesting persons who like to be spoken of as the horny-handed sons of toil. I conclude, from what I have observed, that the cost of building must be at least twice what it ought to be, on account of the little work done by those interesting persons whom it is the wont of some politicians and some newspapers to flatter. Some day there may come a reaction in favour of reasonableness, but meanwhile they are only petted and spoiled children, swollen with an absurd consciousness of their importance. Nothing, therefore, but an imperative demand for increased accommodation can account for the extensive building at present going on in Melbourne. And every day makes additions to the hoardings in the busiest of our streets, and the complaints thereat grow accordingly. With a reasonable operative class, however, Melbourne would increase at double its present rate of progress.

With respect to another class of independent sons of toil, that is to say the bootmakers, the relations between themselves and their employers continue unchanged. They—meaning the bootmakers—appear to be enjoying themselves after their kind; that is to say, they lounge at street corners, and smoke and spit a good deal; and at night they repair, as usual, to Bourke-street East, where they also smoke and spit, and in the intervals of these exercises vomit forth profanity. They still insist upon being represented by their paid agitator, Mr. Trenwith, who finds his occupation a pleasant and a profitable one. In the meantime it is asked what we shall do for boots and shoes if this strike is to continue. It is true we can import them, but a great many persons cannot afford to pay for the highly-taxed European article, and the only alternative then, will be to make their own boots and shoes. I know a young man, the son of a relative of mine, who for his own amusement has learnt the art of shoemaking, and in his leisure hours he occupies himself making shoes for his brothers and sisters. I long ago suggested that he set a very good example to other young men who spend their strength in football, cricket and bicycling, for while his work procures for him plenty of exercise, it results in a positive benefit in the way of production, which cannot be said in favour of football, cricket, and bicycling. Now, however, in view of a boot and shoe famine, his occupation is found to be of practical service. I am aware that my young relative is a good deal sneered at by those high-spirited young gentlemen who regard shoemaking as a degrading occupation. They would not mind a little amateur carpentering, or whitesmith work, or bookbinding, but shoemaking they consider "low;" for all that, it has its practical-value side. I think, however, that he will find emulators if this strike should continue.

Since last I wrote death has been busy in this city. On Sunday, Mr. William Gillbee, the well-known surgeon, died, after a long and wearisome illness. He had fought hard with disease, and his visit to Europe, whither he went fifteen months ago, was a last desperate effort to live. But the journey came too late, and his death, I am satisfied, was only accelerated by the effort he made to live. Nobody had worked harder for professional fame and fortune than poor Gillbee. He obtained both; but when the time came for him to enjoy the fruits of his industry, his health failed him, and he found that he had laboured only for the benefit of others. He was not a brilliant man, and he had neither large intellectual gifts, nor abundant acquirements. But he was a sound, practical surgeon, a safe if not a graceful operator, and he had a large share of common sense. His hobby was the Melbourne Hospital, much of whose progress and prosperity was owing to his unrelaxing efforts in its behalf, and the sorest trouble of his life was his rejection at the election nine years ago, after 22 years of diligent service as honorary surgeon. He was not an enthusiast, but he took reasonable views of things, and although he was sometimes over careful, he was always earnest and honest. For a man who had lived so long in the public eye he had very few enemies. He studiously avoided quarrels, and did his best in the quarrels of others to be a peacemaker. If he contracted no strong friendships, he earned everybody's respect and confidence, and he will be much missed both in the medical profession and as a citizen who took part in many useful works. Poor Elsasser, too, is dead. In effect he had been dead for eight months, as he never recovered after the attack of paralysis with which he was seized last April. He was a good man, with a simple kindly heart, and he was a sound musician; he also is a loss not easy to be replaced. Mr. Warren-Ball is dead too, at a comparatively early age. He will be greatly missed, for, as a tutor to those training for University examinations, he was of singular value. He had that sort of aptitude for teaching which, like some other rare qualities, is born with a man and cannot be acquired.

Among those less known who have also passed away during the past few days are Mr. F. L. Clay, a very old colonist, and once a well-known solicitor; Mr. Masters, a very trusted member of the clerical staff of the City Council; and Mrs. Bosisto, the wife of the well-known member for Richmond.

Last week the foundation-stone of the new Hibernian Hall was laid by the Archbishop, and on that occasion Mr. Nicholas Fitzgerald, member of the Legislative Council, made a very frothy speech about education, the pith of which was that unless the priests have the direction of schools, there can be neither religion, nor morality, nor social order. His audience applauded him as a matter of course, but the newspapers have only laughed at him, and Punch of to-day gibbets him without mercy.

Finally, we had a storm on Tuesday. The wind blew down a good many things, including the union Jack at Government House, where Major-General Scratchley, the new Commissioner of New Guinea, had just arrived. And so some people, who regard omens, have prophesied evil of his mission.

FEDERATION AND NEW SOUTH WALES.

The following despatch from the Agent-General, Mr. R. Murray Smith, has (says the Argus) been received by Mr. Service:—

"8, Victoria-chambers, Victoria-street, Westminster, S. W., November 28, 1884.

"Sir,—I last addressed you on the subject of federation and the Enabling Bill on the 14th instant, and have now to acknowledge your despatches of the 9th and 17th ultimo, the interesting contents of which I have perused with attention. The conduct of the New South Wales Government is much to be regretted, and further evidence of the injurious effects which their attitude has produced in the Colonial Office here is to be found in the blue-books which are forwarded by present opportunity, and to which I have further called attention in my despatch regarding the recidiviste question, No. 5705. On p. 28 of C. 4217 will be found two messages, the former from Lord A. Loftus (1), on 23rd September, communicating the fact that the Victorian Premier invited further pressure with regard to the islands, and expressing the disagreement of the New South Wales Government with that view. This of itself, coming from members of the Convention, is sufficiently damaging, but the message forwarded on 24th September by Mr. Stuart himself (2) absolutely goes so far as to convey to the Colonial Office his desire even that the annexation of New Guinea should not be hastened, and it is not very surprising that, under such circumstances, the vacillation of the Colonial Office should be encouraged and increased.

"2. The hope which I expressed in my abovementioned letter, that very little pressure would be necessary to induce the Government to introduce the Enabling Bill, was disappointed by a further conversation with Sir R. Herbert on the 21st instant, when I received, as an expression of Lord Derby's opinion in the matter, precisely the same answer which I had obtained from his Lordship previously, that he was unable to say anything for certain as yet. I was, however, led to believe that I should be able to obtain, if not a promise to introduce the Enabling Bill during the present session, a distinct declaration that prominence would be given to this measure in the early legislation of 1885. I accordingly requested and obtained the consent of Sir H. Holland to put a question to the Prime Minister on Monday, the 24th instant, which was, however, answered by anticipation in a reply to a somewhat similar query from a member of the Irish party, a friend of Mr. Blake, who repeated that gentleman's query of last session. The answer was entirely disappointing, and conveyed no assurance whatever that we should be any nearer the realisation of our hopes next year than we were last August. The excuse that the bill required emendation is sufficiently met by the facts that the text has been in the possession of the Colonial Office for nearly 10 months, and that Mr. Gladstone expressed himself willing to introduce a short bill on the subject last August, without any suggestion of emendation. Moreover, I have repeatedly discussed its provisions, and expressed the readiness of myself and my colleagues to consider any emendations required, and communicate them to our Governments. Immediately on receiving Mr. Gladstone's answer, I wrote to Lord Carnarvon, who has kindly promised to ask Lord Derby a further question on Monday next, which I trust may elicit a somewhat more explicit answer than we have yet received. I have also written to Sir R. Herbert, urging that we should have exactly what the Government intended to do. But unless I can obtain some satisfactory reply on Monday, I believe, after consulting very seriously with Mr. Cashel Hoey, that it will be advisable to address a letter to Mr. Gladstone himself, setting forth the entire case and appealing to him to further our wishes. Otherwise I see no hope, in the absence of united representations, of getting any further with the Colonial Office. I have, &c.,

WOOD PAVEMENTS.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

VII.

Sir,—Passing over Mr. Young's ninth letter as containing nothing of any consequence, I shall conclude these few criticisms with a consideration of his last letter.

I congratulate Mr. Young on having at last really "studied the report of the Wood Pavement Board," and after that study I rejoice to find him saying that he has come to the conclusion not to "underrate the scientific and sanitary remarks of the board."

Mr. Young then sets himself to tell us how he would proceed to make good "wood pavements."

Now, this is exactly what Mr. Young had evidently in view in February, 1881, when he wrote to the Herald pointing out the deficiencies in the laying of the King-street pavement. During the now nearly four years that have elapsed since then, why has not Mr. Young, as an alderman, given to his brother aldermen and to the city functionaries the benefit of those things that have become part of his existence as a "practical man," and seen that they were embodied in the various specifications and conditions that must have guided the laying down of so much more additional pavement in that long interim? And why, under these circumstances, now, when too late, point out the various deficiencies enumerated by him, and sketch out a different course of action for the future, if it be but carried out, as was that of the past? Why drag forward the taking over of the Parramatta-street pavement from the Commissioner of Railways, when he—knowing, as he appears to have done, all its many deficiencies, as an integral part of the very council taking it over, and as in such capacity being responsible for the acts of the mere executive officers doing the deed—became a party to the transaction? And why, presuming that the executive officer was the professional man on whose judgment such council had to rely in the taking over, why did not Mr. Young, with all this knowledge, exert himself to prevent its being done? Why does he not, even now, make that officer responsible for the act which Mr. Young now pronounces as the result of "laxity" and "easy-going carelessness" in the municipal offices. I read the other day of very substantial advances being made in the salaries of some of these—according to Mr. Young—base and careless gentlemen. Might an humble ratepayer venture to try to reconcile these curious-looking facts? Shall I remind Mr. Young of a case of "laxity," or something worse, that took place at the council board itself not so very long ago, when a unanimous council ruled that 24 cubic feet, instead of 27, should be reckoned as a cubic yard on a five years' contract for supplying the city with blue metal? People who have beams in their own eyes are proverbially celebrated for detecting them quickly in other folk's eyes.

The result of Mr. Young's ten letters is simply this: What the board describes as the requisites for a good pavement Mr. Young admits to be correct. The figures he has been setting up throughout all his letters he knocks down in the last at one fell swoop—all but one, one little cherished idol, for which he would try to say just enough to save it from iconoclastic hands—his darling little block of wood! What excuses cannot a doating parent find for the defects of his offspring; how gloss over their waywardness or evil disposition? So does the doating alderman over his banting blocks. He tries to prevent "impure" moisture from entering the joints between the blocks by means of bitumen. Now, this is all nonsense. Unless the blocks themselves are impervious, what Mr. Young suggests could never be. To make them so they must be treated in vacuo, all air and moisture expelled, and bitumen substituted. Only thus can contraction or expansion be prevented; but at what cost, and would the Corporation sanction it? If so, then Mr. Young's very crude ideas might come within 100 miles of the truth. And yet during the time his letters have been appearing in the papers, he has been contriving to bring himself prominently before the public as a "thoroughly practical" man, who knew more than all the scientists put together; and then when he reads the board report, he pulls down his colours, and says exactly what the board says—nothing less and nothing more—and yet I verily believe Mr. Young thinks he has given reasons (good reasons) for perpetuating the laying of wood pavements, whereas he has advanced not one.

I now propose in yet one further letter on the subject to show reasons why no more wooden pavements be laid; or in the event of their being laid, why each alderman should be made liable in his private fortune for the consequences of every individual block laid down since the publication of the report of the Wood Pavement Board. I am, &c.,

T. J. THOMPSON.

N.B.—Since penning the above my attention has been attracted by a letter from Mr. Staunton Spain, in your issue of 5th instant. My own experience of wood-pavements in London is exactly the same as that of Mr. Spain. I therefore corroborate his statements about the wooden-pavements thus being taken up for sanitary reasons, and their place being supplied with asphalt.

THE PROSPECT CAMP.

Yesterday afternoon the Hon. F. A. Wright, Minister for Works, accompanied by Dr. Mackellar, medical adviser to the Government, and Mr. E. O. Moriarty, Engineer-in-Chief for Harbours and Rivers, paid a visit of inspection to the Camp at Prospect Hill, formed by the labourers employed at the works in connection with the reservoir now in course of construction, and part of the new scheme for supplying Sydney with water. The party proceeded by train to Parramatta, and thence by vehicle to Prospect, at which place they were met by Dr. C. E. Rowling, of Parramatta, who had just driven over. They were also met by Mr. Ryan, the engineer in charge of the works, and Mr. Shand, the contractor.

Having arrived at the dam—the condition of which we recently described—the Minister and his companions alighted from their vehicles, and proceeded to inspect the Camp, which is situated on a piece of gently sloping ground in close proximity to the works. The scene presented here was of a somewhat picturesque character. There have been, until lately, some 1500 men employed on the works, and these with their wives and families presented a somewhat populous view to the gaze of the visitor; but in consequence of the dryness of the season the works have been to a large degree suspended, and consequently a large portion of the inhabitants of the Camp have sought "fresh fields and pastures new." The departure of so many persons has removed the overcrowding that was formerly perceptible, and there is not at present so much to be seen that would account for the numerous cases of typhoid fever that have broken out at this place. Still there is much in the general arrangement of the Camp to suggest improvement. In the first place, the Camp seems to have laid itself out to a very large extent, the streets not presenting the regular appearance that one would find in a plan laid out by a surveyor. Then the dwellings offer a most delightful variety of aspect, from the small calico tent, without even a fly, to the neat, trim galvanised iron house, with real windows. Intermediate between these are the most indescribable kinds of tenements, in the composition of which bark, slabs, saplings, palings, and packing cases are mixed up in the most admired confusion, the pigs, as a rule, occupying the best buildings, and the sanitary arrangements being conspicuous either for their absence or their adequacy. The question that naturally arises to one's mind is, "Where do all these people, occupied in constructing the works for a supply of water for Sydney, get the water for their own domestic use?" It may have been all very well when the weather had been moderately wet, and the waterholes around were tolerably full, but after this season of drought the only waterhole adjoining the Camp is situated at the bottom of a slope down which the greater part of the sewage from that portion of the Camp must necessarily flow. The water here is of a colour and consistency more resembling pea-soup than the crystal spring, and which, as analysis has proved, is full of unutterable abominations. Yet this water, as the Minister and his party saw, is used by at least some of the inhabitants for ordinary domestic uses. The few of the residents of this part who are more particular walk a distance of a quarter of a mile or so to the waterholes whence the water used in making the puddle wall was derived. This water, though of the colour of clay, is at least free from the impurities of the other place, but it is now so low that there is not enough for the contractor to use, hence the stoppage of the works.

The medical gentlemen present were decidedly of opinion that the Camp should be removed; and this is the more necessary as the land upon which the people are at present located is actually required for the extension of the works. Another site was pointed out, just below the canal which has been constructed for the purpose of conveying the water from the dam on to Sydney. This piece of land is private property, but it is believed that it could be rented by the Government at a comparatively low rate. Here the Camp could be laid out on proper lines, with streets at right angles, and allotments of a decent size, leaving room for all requirements, could be let at almost nominal rents, and a water supply could be obtained from the canal already mentioned. Provision could easily be made for keeping the new camp clean, and a system of weekly inspection could be established. The Hon. Minister for Works appeared to be impressed with the necessity for making some improvement in the condition of the people living at this Camp, and we have every reason to believe that he will pay due attention to the representations of the medical men, and try to alleviate the unhappy condition of the people engaged on these works.

PROPOSED BANQUET to the COMMODORE and OFFICERS of the NELSON.

A meeting of gentlemen desirous of a demonstration being made to mark the esteem in which they hold Commodore Erskine and the officers of H. M. S. Nelson was convened by the Mayor of Sydney, in response to an invitation, in the Town Hall yesterday. There were present Mr. James Watson, M.L.A.; Mr. C. J. Roberts, M.L.A.; Captains Eldred, Hixson, and Broomfield; Lieut. Deane, Alderman Hardie, and Messrs. W. G. Murray, R. G. Higgins, A. Elkington, and J. S. Shearston. The attendance otherwise was small. On the motion of Mr. C. J. Roberts, the Mayor was voted to the chair, and his Worship having stated the object of the meeting, also announced that Sir Patrick Jennings, Sir James Martin, Mr. R. B. Smith, M.L.A., Mr. Griffiths, M.L.A., the Hon. T. Cadell, Mr. A. C. Garrick, Mr. A. W. Gillies, Mr. H. E. A. Allen, and other gentlemen had expressed their concurrence with the object in view, and their inability to attend the meeting.

Captain Broomfield explained that at a meeting of a small number of gentlemen recently at the rooms of Messrs. Richardson and Wrench, it was decided that the present public meeting should be called in order to consider whether a demonstration should be made in favour of Commodore Erskine and the officers of the Nelson, and if so whether it should take the form of a banquet, a ball, or a picnic. The question was now in the hands of the present meeting, but he would like to add that whatever was done should be done not later than the night of the 23rd instant, as the Commodore and officers would leave immediately after that date, and it was possible that the new Admiral would be present.

Captain ELDRED thought it would most meet the wishes of the officers if the demonstration took the shape of a ball, and he would move that a ball be given as a mark of their appreciation of the hospitality shown to them on board the Nelson.

Mr. ROBERTS seconded the motion. He was sure the ball would afford a great amount of pleasure to the Commodore and the officers, as well as to the numerous lady friends they had made in Sydney.

Mr. JAMES WATSON moved as an amendment that the demonstration assume the form of a banquet. A ball would be inopportune. They wanted to show their appreciation of the hospitality that had been shown to them, and to have it recorded in some suitable way that it might be transmitted to the Home Government. They wanted to express their high opinion of the Commodore so that it could go to his friends at home. This could not be done if a ball were given, and many would attend a banquet who could not go to a ball.

Mr. R. G. HIGGINS seconded the amendment. In regard to recent occurrences at home, the action of the various colonies with regard to New Guinea, and the stand which was taken by New South Wales, a banquet would be a better means than a ball of showing the opinion of the colonists. At a ball there would be no speeches made, neither would there be any utterances expressive of the opinion held by the inhabitants of the city and the colony generally of the Commodore's abilities and qualities and that kind of thing. The time also was most opportune for a banquet, which would form a convenient means for wishing Commodore Erskine and his officers farewell. They desired most ardently to show their appreciation in a marked manner of the hospitality so profusely displayed by the Commodore. They had no man in his position more profuse in his hospitality; and he hoped the meeting would go with them and say that a banquet should be given.

Mr. W. G. MURRAY suggested that a banquet should be given, at which ladies might be present. (Hear, hear.) The Commodore, he was sure, would not object to the presence of ladies. He was, in fact, a favourite with the ladies. It was quite possible for them to have a banquet—in the Exhibition-building, for instance, where there would be ample room for ladies and gentlemen. The present season, he considered, was too hot for a ball.

Captain HIXSON, speaking in support of the amendment, said that, at the expense of being considered rather ungallant by the ladies, he must, looking into all the circumstances, admit that he was very much in favour of the banquet. He would like to point out that their time was short, and that a picnic would require more of that commodity, as well as trouble, than they could well spare. Having considered all things he must say—having due regard to the ladies' feelings—they would have to drift into the plan of making the demonstration take the form of a banquet—with ladies present, of course.

The amendment was carried by a large majority, and it was resolved that the banquet should take place on the evening of the 23rd, in the vestibule of the Town Hall; but as the space available there was considered rather limited, it was also resolved to dispense with the presence of ladies.

A committee was appointed to carry the resolution into effect, and Captain Hixson and Mr. R. G. Higgins were elected secretaries, and Captain Broomfield and Alderman John Hardie treasurers of the movement.

THE CLARENCE PRESBYTERY.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

GRAFTON, FRIDAY.

At a meeting of the Clarence Presbytery, held at Rocky Mouth on Wednesday, it was decided to ask the Church Extension Committee to appoint the Rev. Alex. Fraser, who has recently arrived in the colony, to supply Brushgrove and Lawrence. The Rev. Roger M'Kinnon, of Sydney, was nominated the next moderator of the general assembly. A call from Ballina was ordered to lie on the table until next meeting. A very successful tea-meeting was held on Wednesday evening, when addresses were given by the several ministers present.

DR. TARRANT, M.P., at SHOALHAVEN.

(BY OUR OWN REPORTER.)

After the political banquet at Gerringong on Wednesday night, the Ministers and members accompanying Dr. Tarrant parted company, and returned to Kiama to await Thursday's boat for Sydney. On Thursday morning Dr. Tarrant, accompanied by Captain Lee and Mr. W. Beaumont, went on to Shoalhaven. This portion of the tour was entirely non-political and was connected with the Masonic duties which Dr. Tarrant fulfils as Most Worshipful Grand Master of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales, the occasion being a grand lodge visitation to Lodge Abercorn No. 7, Shoalhaven district. The party had made an exhaustive levy on the resources of Richard Jones's stable at Kiama during their visit, but a first-rate pair of horses was brought out on Thursday morning to convey us to Shoalhaven, and the distance was done in good time. The route lay along the Seven-mile Beach for a few miles until the tide reached up too far, and then the waggonette turned into the bush. The beach presented a noble picture of rolling surf, seething out before great rollers, from which the wind blew off the tops in clouds of scud, and sent them curling backwards. Once over the ridge and among the timber, the view became confined, and the heat oppressive. There was a long stretch of manœuvering through unfrequented bush until a cleared road was struck leading into the open ground forming the home station of Mr. Berry's great estate of Coolangatta, through which our course was taken. Passing Coolangatta and Mr. Berry's residence, we drove on, crossing by the ferry over Broughton Creek and the Shoalhaven Bridge to Moss's Hotel, at Nowra. The country presented many phases of growing power, and the maize, the principal crop around Shoalhaven, showed equally various stages of growth. Most of the crops were rather stunted, owing to want of rain; but some earlier plantings had reached four or five feet, and were very healthy-looking. The grass growing in the lower country was pretty good. In the immediate vicinity of the Shoalhaven River and Nowra, the crops looked very well, and the prospect for this thriving "six-year-old" is, in all respects, encouraging. Among the many advantages by which the place is surrounded, so far as essential elements of progress are concerned, there is a conspicuous feature belonging rather to its superficial and accessory advantages, and that is the magnificent rowing course obtainable on the Shoalhaven River. The place is unfortunately too far from Sydney to make it the championship course, but the Shoalhaven stretch from the bridge has a future among playgrounds of this colony, just as the pretty little town on its banks has a future among our business centres. Many branches of trade and commerce are represented in Nowra; and in connection with the commercial progress of the whole neighbourhood it may be added that, while Nowra is already provided with several banks, the Gerringong people have obtained, at their own request, two weekly visits for banking business by a representative (Mr. Whittingham) of the E. S. and A. C. Bank. The Masonic interest is well represented in the Shoalhaven district, and the brethren assembled in force to receive their chief. On Thursday evening a business meeting was held in the lodgeroom at Moss's Hotel; and a great deal of routine matter was disposed of. It was announced that Bro. Z. G. Byce, Past Master, had been appointed district inspector of workings for the south coast lodges. After the business, the Masons held a convivial meeting round the banquet table laid in the lodgeroom. Bro. J. Boxsell, Worshipful Master, was in the chair, Dr. Tarrant, Most Worshipful Grand Master, on his right, and Captain Lee, Grand Senior Warden, on his left. Among the brethren at table, numbering about 40, were Brothers W. Beaumont, Grand Lodge secretary, and Z. G. Byce, J.P., W. Brodie, and J. Wilson, J.P., Past Masters. Bro. J. Monaghan, J.P., Senior Warden, was vice-chairman. After dinner the chairman gave the toasts of "The Queen" and "All Grand Lodges."

In responding to the latter, Dr. TARRANT said:—"Worshipful Masters, Wardens and Brethren: On behalf of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales, whose Grand Master I am, I desire to return you thanks for the manner in which the toast of 'All Grand Lodges' was responded to; and perhaps it may be opportune upon the present occasion, at a period when the history of Freemasonry is being so generally discussed as it is nowadays in our different Masonic journals, to occupy your time for a very short space in referring to the history of Freemasonry. We all know that Freemasonry existed in Britain during the time of the Druids. When the Romans arrived in Great Britain, they found some arts and sciences in a flourishing condition, and Cæsar and some of his generals admired the principles of Freemasonry so much that they became patrons of the Order. We then trace Freemasonry a little further on to the time of the Emperor Caracalla, and we find that he appointed the first Grand Master in England. In other words, he placed his steward Albanus to act as Grand Master over all the Freemasons in England. This is the first mention that we have in the history of Freemasonry of the existence of a Grand Master over Freemasons. Albanus acted as Grand Master for a long period, and we all know that, on becoming a Christian, he suffered martyrdom and was beheaded in the year, A.D. 303. Several of the Kings of England after this period acted as the Grand Masters of the English Freemasons, and for a number of years Freemasonry flourished in England under the name of York Masonry—or, in other words, what was called the Ancient Masons—until the year 1567, when some Masons in London thought that they would have a Grand Master of their own, and four lodges in London accordingly appointed one. But no grand lodge ever existed in England until the year 1715, although there were two Grand Masters in England. At that time Masons assembled together, and all Master Masons were expected to attend these assemblies upon receiving a summons; but there was no such thing as a regular Grand Lodge at this period until 1717. At that time four Master Masons in London determined to establish a Grand Lodge. They held their meeting, and their Grand Lodge was established in due form, and a Grand Master was elected to preside over the Grand Lodge. This was the origin of the Grand Lodge of England. The York Masons did not like the conduct of their brethren in London, and refused to recognise them for a number of years. However, a Masonic Conference was held, after a certain period, and then it was decided that it would be generally for the benefit of Freemasonry in England if the whole Order could be brought under one ruling power, or, in other words, under the government of one grand lodge. (Applause.) Then the York Masons united with the London Masons and established what is now called the 'United Grand Lodge of England.' You will therefore see that the Masons considered that they possessed within themselves the inherent power to meet together and establish a grand lodge in a territory where no grand lodge existed. This practice was followed in a short time by the Masons of Ireland and of Scotland, who established grand lodges of their respective countries, and we know that as America grew into a nation she established grand lodges in her different States, and she established them exactly upon the same lines as were followed when the United Grand Lodge of England was established. Canada and other British colonies did likewise. All their grand lodges were established not by applying to another grand lodge for permission to establish one—because a grand lodge has not the power to grant permission to another body to establish a grand lodge; all grand lodges being supreme powers, and one grand lodge being perfectly equal with another. There is a great difference between grand lodges and subordinate lodges; a subordinate lodge cannot hold its meetings unless under a warrant from a grand lodge; but the grand lodge being a supreme power must establish herself, and when she has adopted that step she is expected to send a report of her proceedings to all the other grand lodges under the universe; and when she is recognised by one of those grand lodges as a grand lodge she becomes a supreme power. Now in this colony, until the establishment of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales, the Grand Lodges of England, Ireland, and Scotland had lodges working subordinately, but there was nothing that could be characterised as a grand lodge here. The English and Scotch and Irish Grand Lodges simply had District Grand Masters here who were subject to the control of their respective grand lodges in the old country, and some seven years ago—nearly eight now—several of the oldest Masons in New South Wales, considering that it would be to the benefit of the craft here to have a grand lodge which should rule themselves, established in this territory, met together—13 lodges were represented at the conference—and they decided to establish a grand lodge—(applause)—and from this meeting sprang the Grand Lodge of New South Wales. In taking this step they followed the practice which was adopted by all other Masons, when establishing grand lodges in their territory, of sending a report of their proceedings to the different grand lodges in existence, and I am now happy to state that many of the grand lodges—33 up to the present—have recognised the proper steps that we took, and that our grand lodge was established in a thoroughly legal manner, by extending their recognition to us. (Applause.) We are now recognised by 33 grand lodges, and those 33 are themselves recognised by the Grand Lodge of England. They have their representatives sitting in the Grand Lodge of England, and yet, although they have recognised us, the Grand Lodge of England, from which we derive our Masonic birth, still withholds her recognition. How can she regard the 33 grand lodges, which recognise us, as loyal and legitimately established grand bodies, and yet look upon the Grand Lodge of New South Wales, established in a similar manner to her own Grand Lodge, in a similar manner to those 33 grand lodges which have extended their recognition to us,—how can she look upon those as loyal and upon the Grand Lodge of New South Wales as clandestine? Gentlemen, the more the public are informed of the actual state of masonic matters in New South Wales, the more they are confirmed that we were perfectly legal in the steps we took in establishing the Grand Lodge of New South Wales. (Applause.) And I am sure that the progress we have made since the establishment of that grand lodge must give every one of the promoters of that movement the utmost satisfaction. We have now 38 lodges working subordinately to the grand lodge; the Grand Lodge of New South Wales is recognised by 33 other grand lodges, and we have amongst our ranks masons who, owing their allegiance to the Grand Lodge of New South Wales, make up a body of men numbering close on 3000; a large part of that body consists of the natives of New South Wales—(applause)—because the natives of New South Wales consider that they are able to rule themselves, Masonically, quite as well in their own country as they might be ruled by the Grand Lodge of England. (Applause.) I may say that the Grand Lodge of England treated one of her own colonies for a number of years in exactly the same manner as she is treating us at present. When the Grand Lodge of Canada was established in exactly the same way as our own lodge, England refused to grant recognition to it for more than seven years, until the Prince of Wales, the present Grand Master of the English Masons, visited Canada, and saw the actual condition of Freemasonry in that colony, and upon his representations on his return to England, the Grand Master of the English Masons at that period at once caused the Grand Lodge of England to extend recognition to Canada—(applause)—and I believe that if our movement was properly represented in the Grand Lodge of England—as it never has been done—(applause)—and if his Royal Highness were to visit this country and see the position of affairs, and report thereon, the Grand Lodge of England would see the legality of our steps, and show that they believed in it, by causing recognition to be extended to us without any further delay. (Applause.) But I am sorry to say that some persons in authority in this colony, who are working subordinate to the Grand Lodge of England, had not the progress of Freemasonry at heart, because they did not wish to have recognition extended to the Grand Lodge of New South Wales; and I am sure they are prompted in their conduct by poor selfish motives. (Hear, hear.) They do not like to retire from the prominent position which the Grand Lodge of England has given them in the masonic world; but I say that conduct of this description is not brotherly—it is not masonic. (Applause.) Every mason in the country should come to the full determination to have no lodge—no subordinate lodge—in this territory working under other governing power than the Grand Lodge of New South Wales. (Loud applause.) And it is my intention, if I may use the expression, to put my foot down, and in the future if any new lodge is opened here by district lodges working under warrants from either England, Scotland, or Ireland, I shall declare those lodges illegal, and I shall declare the men who are met in them clandestine Freemasons. (Loud applause.) Gentlemen, we desire to have the recognition of the Grand Lodge of England, we know it must come; England will be compelled to give her recognition to us sooner or later, but we do not wish to say any single word to our brethren differing from us which would in any way give them offence, because we look forward to the day not being very far distant when a conference will take place between the representatives of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales and the masons working in this colony under the English and Scotch constitutions; and I am sure the result of that conference will be similar to the result of the conference which took place in England in 1717, and that will be the union of the whole of the Freemasons in this colony under the term of either 'the Grand Lodge of New South Wales,' or 'the United Grand Lodge of New South Wales.' (Applause.) Gentlemen, we would like our mother country to extend its recognition to us, but we are not going to beg it. We know that we have been perfectly legitimate, we have been perfectly regular in every step we have taken in this matter, and we are simply biding our time and waiting for the results; in the meantime we are rapidly increasing in numbers, and there is every prospect of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales flourishing in this territory. (Applause.) Gentlemen, I am sorry for detaining you at such length, and I beg to again thank you on behalf of the Grand Lodge of New South Wales." (Loud applause.) Captain Lee also responded as representative of the Grand Lodge of Montana in America. Dr. Tarrant proposed "The Worshipful Masters, officers, and brethren of the Lodge Abercorn," which was acknowledged by Mr. Byce. Some other toasts were honoured, and the evening was spent very pleasantly. On Friday morning Dr. Tarrant's companions started for Sydney by Thompson's coach, passing through the splendid scenery of the Kangaroo Valley and the mountains in the Good Dog Range, and passed the famous Fitzroy Falls to Moss Vale, and thence by train to the metropolis. Dr. Tarrant remained at Nowra, with the intention of going on to Robertson.

THE SITE FOR NOXIOUS TRADES.

The long-deferred question of a site for noxious trades was brought to an issue by the Cabinet yesterday. The matter was brought under the notice of the Government by the Acting Colonial Secretary [Hon. W. B. Dalley], who since Mr. Stuart's illness has taken much interest in the subject, and has been in communication with several of his colleagues, for the purpose of procuring the fullest information to enable him to deal with it comprehensively. In order to do this he obtained much valuable information from the Department of Public Works and from the Department of Mines, as will be seen in the statement now made. The site chosen by the Government is on the south side of Botany Bay, and embraces a reserve which extends from Cape Solander to the eastern end of Cronulla Beach. This reserve is in extent from 1200 or 1300 to 1400 acres; but as that quantity of land will not be sufficient for the purpose in view it will be essential to resume the land comprised in three grants, one of which is known as the Kurnel grant of 800 acres, and two others of 300 acres and 80 acres respectively. These combined grants will comprise a very large area, the boundaries of which are the Pacific Ocean, Cronulla Beach, and Quibra Bay. The eastern boundary which stretches across a narrow isthmus of land lying between Cronulla Beach and Quibra Bay will be a line of about half a mile in extent. On the western side of this boundary, it will be also necessary to resume a belt of land, part of which is included in a reserve on that side, and the remaining portion in two adjacent grants. The proposal of the Acting Colonial Secretary is explained by a map which he caused to be prepared, and which accompanies his minute. The absolute isolation of the entire site for noxious trades will be accomplished by taking a belt of land which it is intended shall be used exclusively for pasturage purposes, and which is now part of the Holt-Sutherland estate, and after resumption will lie between that estate and the western boundary of the site for the trades. On the east side of this belt—that is to say on the site set apart for the trades—as well as on the pasturage land, it is intended that no dwelling house shall under any circumstances be allowed to be built, save as the houses the erection of which may be sanctioned by the Government for the prosecution of the works; and these will be leased under certain specified conditions, for the purpose of giving the Government entire control over them in the event of any inconvenience being found to result from their occupation. Concerning the water supply, the Acting Colonial Secretary secured from the Department for Public Works the services of an officer for the purpose of examining and fully reporting upon this important question. The result of this action was that on November 8 a report was received showing that there are large areas of marshy ground lying between high sandhills where water exists in considerable quantities, while a high range of hills close to the ocean beach forms a fine catchment area, the rain water falling upon the hills flowing into the swamps at their feet, and thence into Quibra Bay, on the south-west. It is estimated that an area exists of fully 140 acres of water, which at comparatively trifling cost, by the erection of a puddle wall, may be very considerably increased, while an eligible site for a great reservoir was found about 450 feet from the lagoon. The result of these surveys fully established the fact that an abundant supply of pure water for all purposes can be obtained without any difficulty and at comparatively slight cost. A flying survey has been made under the direction of the Department of Public Works for a line of railway starting from the most suitable and convenient point on the Illawarra line, south of George's River, to Kurnel, and a tracing of the proposed route was submitted by the Acting Colonial Secretary with his minute. From this it appears the length of line will be about 10 miles, and that the estimated cost of construction will not exceed from £5000 to £6000 per mile, if ordinary permanent-way materials are used. The directors of the Holt-Sutherland Estate Land Company, having been applied to by the Government for the conveyance to the Railway Department of a strip of land one chain wide for the distance the railway will pass through their holding, very generously replied that they would give their interest in this land free to the Government for the construction of a railway. They imposed a single condition, the reason and advantage of which were equally obvious—that a belt of land should be left between their estate and the site for the noxious trades, which belt of land should under no circumstances be employed for manufacturing purposes, but remain as a sanitary area separating the site for noxious trades from their property. The directors, being unable to convey the land in fee simple, placed themselves in communication with the attorneys for the proprietor, the Hon. Thomas Holt, with the view of obtaining for the Government the conveyance of the land in fee simple, and Mr. Holt's attorneys in this colony have intimated that this will be done, and are prepared to forward to London the necessary document to obtain the signature to the conveyance. It will thus be seen that this most important public question is now in shape for settlement. All necessary arrangements have now been made to carry the matter to completion. Only one thing remains to be done, and that will be immediately proceeded with. For the purpose of greater accuracy a boundary survey will have to be made, showing the boundaries of all reserves and grants embraced in the area to be set apart for the site and for pasturage, and other purposes in connection therewith, and it will also be necessary that a contour survey showing the elevations and nature of the soil throughout, for the purpose of preparing what will be necessary to be done in reference to the water supply should be carried out. Directions have been given that both these works be immediately undertaken, the whole proposal, with the plans attached, having been submitted to the Cabinet yesterday by the Acting Colonial Secretary. The Cabinet approved of them, and steps will be taken at once to prepare for submission to Parliament a measure that will be necessary to carry the whole of the scheme into effect.

THE MEGAMETRE.—Some time ago M. d'Abbadie proposed in the French Academy of Sciences the adoption of the term megiste to represent the fourth part of the terrestrial meridian, or a length of 10,000 kilometres on the French metric system. In order, however, to have a term more in accordance with the nomenclature of the multiples and sub-multiples employed to-day by electricians, M. Hospitallier has made an amended proposition to the effect that the word megametre should be used instead.—Engineering.

A FEW days ago, while the "Sweet Hapsburg Piano" and "Wonderful Wertheim Sewing Machine" man was strolling through our Botanical Gardens admiring the exquisite flowers, he was seized with a desire to have something of the sort at hand for the enjoyment of his wife and little ones. His place was small; but, like the firm he represents, Beale and Company, 371A, Pitt-street, there was no such word as "can't" in his vocabulary. Having obtained from his employers an empty "Haydn organ" case, he mixed together two loads of the best mould and a load of manure, and filled it, painting the wood a lively green. Behold outside of his front door an admirable and inexpensive jardinière, which our enthusiast carefully sowed with selected flower seeds. Then he waited and anxiously watched what would come up first. His suspense was not protracted. Within 24 hours up came a policeman, and said, "Remove this; it is an obstruction!" There is a jardinière to be had now cheap.—[ADVT.]

NEW POLICE MANUAL.

The Police Manual which has hitherto been the authorised guide for the police force of this colony has been superseded by another, copies of which are about to be issued to all members of the force. Forming part of the old manual as a portion embracing legal instructions, and also "a table of indictable offences;" and as the passing of the New Criminal Law Consolidation Act rendered both these divisions of the manual misleading, it was found necessary to prepare another. The revision of the old legal instructions and old table of indictable offences, or rather the preparation of new ones, was, in accordance with instructions from the Attorney-General, entrusted to Mr. Hanbury Davies, barrister-at-law, by whom the work has been performed. The opportunity was also taken to revise the general regulations for the guidance of the police. Several new clauses have been introduced, and a number which had by an alteration of the circumstances of the colony become obsolete have been omitted. It is thought that these alterations have resulted in the preparation of a manual which is as concise as it could possibly be. Amongst clauses which are either partially or wholly new will be found the following:—Clause 14. "The police will be strictly impartial in the discharge of their duties towards all classes—the preservation of order and the prevention or detection of serious crime being their first duty. Offences which are of a trivial character, and sometimes committed by law-abiding citizens in ignorance, should be dealt with discreetly; a caution will, in some instances, be all that is necessary, and have the desired effect; for minor offences the extreme course of apprehension and incarceration should be avoided when it is clear that a summons will insure the offender being duly dealt with by a magistrate." Clause 25. "Every member of the force will studiously observe neutrality in political matters, and will rigidly abstain from the manifestation of any politico-sectarian proclivities in the discharge of their duties to the prejudice of the public service." Clause 37. "The police generally are desired to render all aid in their power to further the objects of the Aborigines' Protectorate Board, to ameliorate the conditions of the aborigines, and to enforce the law against persons improperly supplying them with intoxicating liquor, or lodging or wandering in their company." Clause 174. "The officer in charge of a party on escort duty will always march in the rear of such escort, and enforce strict attention to duty on the part of the police, who will not be allowed to straggle under any pretence. Police in charge of prisoners travelling by coach will sit near them, not on the box while prisoners are inside the vehicles. To avoid annoyance to the public by conveyance in passenger coaches of dangerous or troublesome lunatics, or prisoners of an objectionable class or condition, arrangements should be made for a special vehicle, if practicable, without increased cost, and generally to avoid public inconvenience." Clause 184. "Every precaution must be taken to avoid the possibility of an innocent person being arrested under mistaken belief of identity. When practicable, photographs of accused persons should accompany warrants, descriptions, or crime routes. If a supposed offender is arrested on suspicion, when it is not possible to wait for positive identification, and if identity be denied and is doubtful, instant action should be taken, by telegraphing or otherwise, to set the question at rest. The accused being detained in the meantime with as little restraint as possible consistent with safe custody." Clause 199. "Care should be taken in incarcerating prisoners to classify them, as far as the cell accommodation will admit. The young being kept apart, and persons of a respectable class, charged with minor offences, are not to be confined with old criminals, or prisoners in an offensive condition. Prisoners will be frequently visited in the cells during the day and night and prompt attention given to any cases requiring medical aid." Clause 225. "Where there are fire brigades established the duty of the police will be simply to preserve order, protect life and property, and to procure a free scope for the exertions of the firemen and the parties more immediately interested; and with this view they will clear the street or ground in the immediate vicinity of the fire of all persons not usefully employed, taking care that all adjoining streets, as far as may be practicable, are kept clear of obstructions by crowds, or carriages, waggons, carts, &c., that the engines may not be delayed. The attention of the Metropolitan Police is directed to the provisions of the 47th Vic., No. 3, Fire Brigades Act, especially the 11th clause thereof." The new rules were published [illegible] in a supplement to the Government Gazette of Wednesday last.

REVIEW.

EDMUND YATES' AUTOBIOGRAPHY.*—SECOND NOTICE.

By ARCHIBALD FORBES.

As a literary man, Edmund Yates has been singularly versatile. He early won a reputation as a writer of pretty and sparkling vers de societe. Some of his comedies had held the stage for years, and for nearly a decade he performed the duties of dramatic critic for for a London daily newspaper. He was one of the most brilliant of that cohort of young men whom Dickens enlisted under the banner of "Household Words," and some of his work in that periodical has been attributed by collectors to the great master himself. He stands well to the front in the ranks of contemporary novelists of the second class, and there are passages in one or two of his stories which, in their humour or pathos, have not been excelled by any author now living. He has created a new species of journalism; and while working on the old lines, I know no man who has done better work as a descriptive writer and special correspondent. Both in England and America he has won reputation and made money as a successful and popular lecturer. His literary bias was no doubt instinctive, but he owed the special stimulus to the influence of Thackeray's "Pendennis;" and already, at 18, he was a member of the Garrick Club, and free, as a man whose work was in print, of the literary coteries of the day. Among his earliest literary friends was Albert Smith, the author of the "Poppleton Legacy" and other novels of great popularity in their day; and whose entertainment, "The Ascent of Mont Blanc," many can still remember. Smith, Yates sketches as a man, when he first knew him, "of 35 years of age, with large head, large body, short legs, long hair, long reddish-brown beard and moustache, small, keen, deep-set grey eyes, good aquiline nose, small hands and feet; always badly dressed; when at home at work he wore a short blue blouse, such as is to be seen on all the Swiss peasants, and an old pair of trousers; in the street he was given to gaudy neckerchiefs, and had a festoon of 'charms' dangling from his watch-chain." Another of Yates' early literary friends was Frank Smedley, the author of "Frank Fairleigh" and other stirring stories of sport, racing, and adventure. Whence Smedley obtained the knowledge of such things with which his books are replete, is quite inexplicable. The reader of them is apt to picture the author on the lines of Yates' ideal of him—"a tall, strongly-built man of about 40, with large breezy whiskers, strong bony hands, and general muscular developments, rather horsey in his dress and talk and manner." He was the very opposite of all this—

"I was ushered into the presence of a gentleman, whom, even in the dim light of a shaded lamp, standing on the table by his elbow, I could tell to be suffering under some malformation, as he sat in his wheel-chair, a little man with a peculiar, clever face; piercing eyes never moving from the person he was addressing; a manner beginning in earnestness and then straying into banter; a voice beginning in harshness and then modulating into pleasantest cadence; a bearing which, although in its endeavour to be thoroughly independent, it almost verged on the repulsive, was, notwithstanding, undefinably attractive."

Douglas Jerrold belonged to the generation of literary men senior to Yates; but there was some friendship between them, and the junior paints him thus to the present generation:—

"I have often heard him flash forth the biting epigram and quick repartee for which in our day he has had no rival. A small, delicately formed, bent man, with long grey hair combed back from his forehead, with grey eyes deep-set under penthouse brows, and a way, just as the inspiration seized him, of dangling a double eyeglass, which hung round his neck by a broad black ribbon; a kindly man for all his bitter tongue; soft and easy with women and children."

It was to Peter Cunningham, mentioning his fondness for calves' feet, that Jerrold said, "extremes meet;" to Mrs. Alfred Wigan, expressing her fear that her hair had been turned grey by some strong stimulant, he said, "I know—essence of thyme!" Not in the best taste was another bon mot of Jerrold's recounted by Yates. There was a party at Mr. Benjamin Webster's—whist in one room, dancing in another. Jerrold was at the whist-table, when a man asked him who was the person dancing with Mrs. Jerrold. Jerrold looked round for an instant through the open door. "God knows, my dear boy!" he replied; "some member of the Humane Society, I suppose." Among Yates' collaborateurs on the first periodical the former edited—a short-lived rival to Punch—was Mr. George Augustus Sala, then "a slim, modest young fellow, about six and twenty years of age." "Like Thackeray," writes Edmund, "Mr. Sala has long since lost his way to Bohemia, that picturesque country, which has never since had so famous a denizen." In Yates' subsequent editorship of the Train magazine, he had secured Sala's services as a colleague, and the latter had promised to begin a novel in its first number. But when the time for publication approached Sala's "copy" was not forthcoming. "I was getting desperate," writes Yates. "Not merely had I heard nothing of Sala, but nobody had seen him for a week; it was his whim to let no one know where he lived, and we had often laughed over the peculiarity. But now it was no laughing matter. There were certain haunts at which at certain hours our erratic friend could generally be found; but lately he had deserted them. My colleagues were as anxious as myself. We drew up an advertisement, couched in mysterious terms, intelligible only to the initiated, and inserted it in the Times. It commenced, I recollect, "Bohemian, where art thou?" and I saw it the other day, to my infinite amusement, reproduced in a volume compiled from the "agony column." It elicited no reply, and we were in despair. Robert Brough threw himself into the breach, and soon after Sala turned up in Paris, having been very ill there, and "utterly incapable of work." It was during this visit of his to Paris that Sala's mission to St. Petersburg was arranged by Dickens, the outcome of which was that brilliant series of letters in Household Words, under the title of "A Journey due North."

Among the other contributors to the Train, which did not run long, were the brothers Robert and William Brough, John Oxenford, the dramatic critic of the Times; John Hollingshead, now the proprietor of the Gaiety Theatre; Palgrave Simpson, "Lewis Carroll," Hain Friswell, Albany Fonblanque, Sutherland Edwards, and Thomas. With such a staff to-day a magazine would be in the first rank, but the Train was in advance of its time and came to grief.

In thirty years periodical literature, if it may have lost some of the old boisterous strength, has certainly improved in the amenities. The young men of the Train had a standing feud with the gentlemen of the Idler, a publication of which the editor was the late James Hannay, and whose contributors were all University men. "Who are the people of the Idler?" was a question asked in the Train, and answered thus: "Hannay and Co., University and water, with a dash of —no, not gin, but a little cheap claret in it; fellows who, if you once got into their pillory, will pelt you with Greek roots, like so many cabbage stumps." And the Idler retorted, referring to Sala and Brough, leading lights of the Train,—

> "Easy to see why S. and B.
> Dislike the University;
> Easy to guess why B. and S.
> Detest cold water little less;
> "For as their writings prove their creed—
> That men who write should never read;
> Their faces show they think it bosh
> That men who write should ever wash!"

Of the difficulty "between" Thackeray and Yates—one result of which was to produce a lasting coldness between the former and Charles Dickens, who stood Yates' staunch friend throughout an episode that might have crushed a less buoyant man—there is no need here to speak, except to say that Yates has not allowed himself to say a word in his recital of it that can jar on the feelings of those who revere the memory of the great novelist. He gives some characteristic anecdotes of Thackeray, one or two of which may be transcribed. He and Yates were walking, and passing a fish-shop Thackeray noticed two different tubs of oysters, one marked "1s. a dozen," the other "1s. 3d. a dozen." "How they must hate each other," remarked Thackeray, pointing them out. Again, a friend called on Thackeray on the morning of Sunday, December 15, 1861, with the Observer in his hand. Thackeray noticed the black border instantly, and started up. "The Prince Consort is dead?" he cried. The visitor intimated assent. "Ah," said Thackeray, dropping into his chair, "poor dear gentlewoman." John Leech, the artist of Punch, was never known to make but one joke, and that was a bad one. When Yates told him Brough was going to Australia (he died instead of going), Leech asked, "Was he going to Brough it in the bush?" Yates had a close acquaintance with the late Abraham Hayward of whose correspondence he gives some racy specimens. Here is an extract in reference to "Soapy Sam," the famous Bishop of Winchester:—

"I do not know who wrote the article (in the Quarterly) on Wilberforce, but I agree with you that to call him a 'truly delightful person' is an absurdity. To me all his agreeability was spoilt by his palpable insincerity. He was a coarse-minded man. The committee of the Athenæum were frequently obliged to write to him about his selfish irregularities. He lodged in Pall Mall, and quite lived at the club. After breakfast it was his custom to sit upon two newspapers while reading a third, or to retire with a whole bundle."

Apropos of Hayward's last visit to Lord Melbourne at Brockett:—

"It was July, but Lord Melbourne was sitting before a roaring fire, Mrs. — walking up and down the room in an agony of tears. Lord Melbourne, suddenly turning to Hayward, said 'It's a —— good thing for a man to have a balance at his banker's.' And then he added, 'It's a —— bad thing for a woman to find it out.' After Melbourne's death W— C— told Hayward that on that very day he (Lord Melbourne) had drawn a cheque for £700 in favour of Mrs. ——."

Yates tells one story of Lord Tennyson and another of Carlyle, both characteristic enough. This is the Tennyson story. At a dinner given by Mr. J. Bertram Payne, then the representative of Moxon and Co. the publishers the proofs of Mr. Hughes' recently finished drawings for the illustrated edition of "Enoch Arden" were submitted to the Laureate, who approved of them all with one exception. "This is not right," he said in his deep voice:—"'There came so loud a calling of the sea. The man cannot have lived by the sea; he does not know what a 'calling' means. It is anything but a great upheaval such as is here represented."

The Carlyle story was told to Yates by Dickens. He had met the sage a few nights previously at a dinner party, where there was present a certain pompous gentleman who still lives to adjust literary reputations. A question of some moment having been started, it was promptly disposed of by this personage who, as Dickens said, "in his usual style, took hold of it, made it into a small parcel, and laid it away on a shelf, not to be moved thence any more." It seems that after the oracle had delivered himself, there was a dead silence, in the midst of which Carlyle, who had been blankly gazing on the great personage before him, said in a truly absent manner, but perfectly audible, "Eh, but you're a puir creatur—a puir, wretched, messerable creatur," and then went on with his dinner.

Yates has a good deal to say about Punch, its editors and its staff. Mark Lemon, although it is clear he did not like the man, he acknowledges to have made an excellent editor: "Lemon was a Jew, and had all the keen appreciation of that quick-witted race. He was patient and long-suffering where his interest was concerned, and could bear without resentment a slight from Thackeray or a snub from Leech. Yet he was, when occasion required, a man of firm will, kept his team together with a strong hand, knew what each man could do and made him do it, and thoroughly understood the public for which he had to cater."

With Shirley Brooks, Lemon's successor, Yates lived in terms of the closest friendship, and he had the highest opinion of his varied powers. Educated to the law, Brooks preferred literature, and for five years was Parliamentary summary writer for the Morning Chronicle. But Punch was his proper sphere, and he fought his way on to it by making it impossible that he should be left outside its corps of contributors. A poem in the Man in the Moon, in which he denounced Punch for his sneers at loyalty, religion, and the better classes, for his "scandal random-flung" and his disregard of fair play, concluded with the following ringing stanza:—

> "Back! foolish Hunchback, to the course which whilom made thy fame,
> Back, to thy lawful quarry, to thy Jove-appointed game;
> Shoot folly as it flies, but shoot it with the arrowy joke,
> Not with a brazen blunderbus, all bellow and black smoke;
> Give us once more the playful wit that notched the legal saw,
> That sparkles o'er Hume's History now, as once o'er Blackstone's law;
> Give us the truthful social sketch, drawn with Titmarshian skill,
> With colour bright as Dickens's and pencil keener still;
> Give us the shower of quip and crank, the whimsy and the wile;
> Murder vain Fashion's shapeless brood, but murder with a smile;
> Poison the rats of Westminster with Hamlet's 'poisoned jest,'
> And stab as once Harmodius stabbed, with steel in myrtle dressed."

Once on Punch, Brooks immediately made his mark. Yates quotes a good many samples of his forgotten verse, and one specimen of unwontedly serious versification is too good and strong not to extract a couple of stanzas of it. The great Sir Robert Peel is supposed to be asking his son Frederick, then a young man about town, his favourite question, "What is a pound?" The son replies:—

> "A pound, my father, is the price
> That clears the opera wicket,
> Two lemon gloves, one lemon ice,
> Libretto, and your ticket.
> A pound will buy a grape in March,
> Will buy a peach in May;
> Or, in July, to Ellsler Arch,
> Will fling a rich bouquet."

The poem proceeds, Sir Robert rebuking his son, the son answering with frivolity. At length the earnest statesman culminates:—

> "A labourer lives in yonder cot,
> With wife and children five;
> And six and sixpence weekly got,
> Keeps the whole seven alive.
> On this he struggles like a horse,
> Or crouches like a hound;
> Fred, you can multiply of course—
> Now, go and spend your pound!"

Brooks' readiness was as great as Jerrold's, but his humour, with a strong subacid flavour, was peculiarly his own. Yates once told him of a Frankfort custom of depositing dead bodies in the deadhouse for 24 hours before burial, with a bell-rope attached to the wrist, in case of the return of animation. "Ah," said Brooks, "that evidently suggested Tennyson's line—'Many a morning on the moorland did I hear the copses ring!'" Another time he was looking over Yates' bookshelves, and seeing an old school Homer, which had been rebound, and was labelled "Homer's Iliad"—"Homer's Iliad," said Brooks, with an inflection on the name, "yes, I believe it is the best." Brooks was a singularly handsome and thoroughly English-looking man. Even near the end, when his hair was silvery white, and his beard grizzled, he retained his freshness, which, combined with his hearty, genial manner, his appreciation of and promptitude at entering into fun, made him look considerably younger than his real age. But he was a man who took no exercise, and lived far too well.

No part of Mr. Yates' book is more interesting than the pages he devotes to his reminiscences of Charles Dickens. Dickens was nineteen years an older man than Yates, but the former assures us that the nineteen years' seniority was not reflected in the terms of their companionship or their converse. "Fancy my being nineteen years older than this fellow," said Dickens one day to his elder daughter, putting his hand upon Yates' shoulder. The young lady promptly declared there was a mistake somewhere, and that Yates was rather the elder of the two. "And certainly," the latter adds, "except in the height of his domestic troubles, Dickens, until within a couple of years of his death,—when, even before he started for America, his health was manifestly beginning to break—in bodily and mental vigour, in buoyancy of spirits and keenness of appreciation, remained extraordinarily young." Yates was a mere lad when he first called on Dickens, who had been a friend of his father's. The great novelist was no longer like the portrait of him by Maclise—with the soft, delicate face, the long hair, the immense stock, and the high-collared waistcoat,—

"His hair, though worn still somewhat long, was beginning to be sparse; his cheeks were shaven; he had a moustache and a 'door-knocker' beard encircling his mouth and chin. His eyes were wonderfully bright and piercing, with a keen, eager outlook; his bearing hearty and somewhat aggressive. He wore a loose jacket and wide trousers; and sat back in his chair with one leg under him, and his hand in his pocket, very much as in Frith's portrait. 'Good God! how like your father!' were his first words."

Ever afterwards, in his intercourse with his junior, Dickens was always "affectionate, helpful, and unreserved." "Pray don't think, or pretend," he wrote once, "for a moment that I can fail to be interested in your letters, be they ever so numerous. Chronically, when I have a book to write, I give myself up to it waywardly, my small private rubs make me uncertain in my humour sometimes, and unwilling to be myself to the slightest engagements." Here is a letter in reply to a request by Yates that Dickens would act as sponsor for one of twins with whom Mrs. Yates had recently presented to him:—

"My dear Yates,—Supposing both Corsican brothers to be available, I think I should prefer being godfather to the one who isn't Kean. With this solitary stipulation I very cordially respond to your proposal, and am happy to take my friendly and sponsorial seat by your fireside. When you represent me at the font, and are renouncing, think that on Christmas Day I had seven sons in the banquet-hall of this apartment (a Paris suite), which would not make a very large warm bath, and renounce my example. Mrs. Dickens and Miss Hogarth unite with me in kind regards to yourself and Mrs. Yates, to whom I now consider myself, with much pleasure, a sort of relation."

Two of those seven sons are now Australian colonists, and there is a letter to Yates, written by Dickens from Southampton, whither he had gone to see another of them, Walter, long since dead, off on a long cruise:—

"I have come here," he writes, "on an errand that will grow familiar to you before you know that time has flapped his wings over your head. Like me, you will find these babies grow to be young men before you are quite sure they are born. Like me, you will have great teeth drawn out with a wrench, and will only then know that you ever cut them. I am here to send Walter away over what they call in Green Bush melodramas 'the Big Drink,' and I don't at all know this day how he comes to be mine, or I his. . . Seeing him and Charley going on board the ship before me just now, I suddenly came into possession of a photograph of my own back at 16 and 20, and also with a suspicion that I had doubled the latter age."

Of the manner of life at Gadshill—"a stout, red-faced, comfortable, old-fashioned family house, with a wide porch, and a bell tower which always associated it in my mind with the Warren, at Chigwell, and standing in a broad garden easily overlooked from the road, and with an occasionally noisy country tavern within eye and ear shot"—Yates gives a vivid sketch. You breakfasted at 9, smoked your cigar, read the papers, and pottered about the garden until luncheon, at 1. All the morning Dickens was at work, either in the study—a room on the lefthand of the porch as you entered, a large room entirely lined with books, and with a fine bay window in which the desk was placed—or in the chalet, a Swiss house of four rooms, presented to him by Fechter, which took to pieces, and was erected in a shrubbery on the side of the road opposite to the house, where he had a fine view extending to the river. After luncheon (a substantial meal, though Dickens generally took little but bread and cheese and a glass of ale) the party would assemble in the hall, which was hung round with a capital set of Hogarth prints, and settle on their plans. Some walked, some drove, some pottered. Yates, of course, elected to walk with Dickens; and off they set with such of the other guests as chose to face the ordeal. They were not many, and they seldom came twice, for the distance traversed was seldom less than 12 miles, and the pace was good throughout,—

"Generally accompanied by his dogs (when I was first with him they were Turk, a liver-coloured mastiff, and Linda, a St. Bernard, which Albert Smith had brought from Switzerland), Dickens would go along at a swinging pace; sometimes along a hilly, tramp-infested road to Gravesend, skirting Cobham Park, and past the 'Leather Bottle,' to which Mr. Tupman retired; past Fort Pitt, near which Dr. Slammer proposed to take Mr. Winkles' life; down miry lanes, and over vast stubble-fields, to outlying little churches, and frequently to a quaint old almshouse standing in a green courtyard, like an Oxford 'quad.'"

In one of their outings, two months only before Dickens' death, he and Yates visited a circus, where they saw a highly-trained elephant standing on its head and performing clever tricks. "I've never seen anything better," said Dickens, "it's wonderful how they teach them to do all this." Then a moment after his eyes flashed with that peculiar light which always betokened the working of some funny notion in his brain, and he remarked "They've never taught the rhinoceros to do anything, and I don't think they could unless it were to collect the water-rate, or something equally unpleasant." Dickens and Yates were in the habit of going together to public dinners where the former was chairman, and the latter was often called on to propose the chairman's health. It had become a joke between them whether Yates could possibly find any new thing to say on such an occasion. Once at a newsvendors dinner Edmund was called on and duly rose; but (for a wonder) his faculty of speaking clean deserted him, and he could do no more than mutter "health," "chairman," and then sit down in confusion. Dickens was equal to the occasion. Springing to his feet—"Often," said he, "often as I have had the pleasure of hearing my health proposed by my friend who has just sat down, I have never yet seen him so overcome by his affection and generous emotion, as on the present occasion." The situation was retrieved and Yates rehabilitated. "Saved you that time, I think, sir," said Dickens as they walked away together. "Serves you right well for being over-confident."

During Dickens' last reading tour, Yates chanced on him in Leeds, and was shocked at his condition. He was lying on a sofa, one of his boots off, and the foot swathed in lotioned bandages. He looked desperately aged and worn; the lines in his cheeks and around the eyes, always noticeable, were now deep furrows; there was a weariness in his gaze, and a general air of fatigue and depression about him. His extraordinary elasticity of spirits, his great characteristic, seemed to have vanished; he was evidently wearied and in much pain. Within a week after he was stricken down at Preston, and peremptorily forbidden to continue his readings. Yet he would not acknowledge any serious ailment. A month later he wrote to Earl Russell, "happy to report myself quite well again." He had a positive hatred to any public reference to the state of his health, and Yates quotes a jocose certificate he sent to a newspaper editor who had sent him some cuttings alluding to his illness:—

"This is to certify that the undersigned victim of a periodical paragraph-disease, which usually breaks out once in every seven years (proceeding from England by the overland route to India, and by the Cunard line to America, whence it strikes the base of the Rocky Mountains, and rebounding to Europe, perishes on the steppes of Russia), is not 'in a critical state of health,' has not 'consulted eminent surgeons,' and was never better in his life, and is not recommended to proceed to the United States for a cessation from literary labour, and has not had so much as a headache for 20 years.—CHARLES DICKENS."

There is no doubt that the pain in the foot and lameness from which Dickens latterly suffered were gouty expressions of internal disorder. Sir Henry Thompson recognised them at the time, and said so. But Dickens hated the idea of having the gout, and, in his autocratic way, refused to have it, and declared to have it not; and he actually persuaded Mr. Syme, the eminent Edinburgh surgeon, to declare the trouble to be "an affection of the delicate nerves and muscles, originating in cold." Yates has an interesting paragraph on Dickens' amazing capacity for self-deception in regard to his ailment:—

"Never did man, wishing to deceive himself, carry out his object so thoroughly as did Dickens. One can see the shoulder-shrug and the eyebrow-raising with which he would have received the information told of anyone else. He has pain, inflammation, every possible gouty symptom in his foot, the chosen locality for gout; but it is not gout, it is something originating in cold. The same symptoms appear in the other foot; still no gout. As he walks along the streets one day, he can read only the halves of the letters over the shop doors on his right. He attributed it to medicine, says Forster. It is really almost too astonishing."

Very few people know what the Americans call the "true inwardness" of the causes which led Charles Dickens, after many years of wedded happiness, to separate himself from the mother of his children. The circumstances are such that those few are not likely to reveal them, and it is probable that they will never be communicated to the world. No living man knows more of the inner history of that melancholy period in the life of Dickens than does Edmund Yates, but he has done discreetly and wisely to refrain from revealing them. In his own significant words, "The two leading personages in this little drama are dead, and I fail to see the necessity or expediency of recalling its various details. . . My intimacy with Dickens, his kindness to me, my devotion to him, were such that my lips are sealed and my pen is paralysed as regards circumstances which, if I felt less responsibility and less delicacy, I might be at liberty to state":—

"Dickens," he continues, "had the faults, as well as the virtues, of the literary character. A man who has given to the world so many distinct creations—creations which will always have their place in English literature, and which have passed into the main currency of the English language, was full of the irritability, the sensitiveness, and the intolerance of dulness which might have been expected. If he had been wholly devoid of a certain bias in the direction of theatrical ostentation; if, in a word, his temperament had been more rigid, more severe; if he had not given such prominence in his thoughts to the link which bound him to the public which he served so splendidly, he would not in this affair have acted as he did."

And Yates thus ends the chapter on his master:—

"He was imperious in the sense that his life was conducted on the sic volo sic jubeo principle, and that everything gave way before him. The society in which he mixed, the hours which he kept, the opinions which he held, his likes and dislikes, his ideas of what should or should not be, were all settled by himself, not merely for himself, but for all those brought into connection with him; and it was never imagined they could be called in question. Yet he was never regarded as a tyrant; he had immense power of will, absolute mesmeric force, as he proved beneficially more than once, and that he should lead and govern seemed perfectly natural to us. All the kindness of heart, geniality, generosity, appreciation of whatever could be appreciated in others, manly independence, hatred of humbug, all the leading qualities of his books were component parts of his nature. In one holding a position so unique in the world he was wonderfully modest, and while he always quietly and unostentatiously asserted his own dignity, I never saw the smallest appearance of 'putting on airs.' Any foothold on the literary ladder, no matter how low, had its interest for him. 'I do not plead as a stranger,' he said at the Newspaper Press Fund dinner, 'I hold a brief for my brothers'—

> 'We who had loved him so, followed him, honoured him,
> Dwelt in his mild and magnificent eye,
> Learned his great language, caught his clear accent,
> Made him our pattern to live and to die.'"

INQUESTS.

THE LATE FIRE IN PITT-STREET.

At the District Court, yesterday morning, the City Coroner, Mr. H. Shiell, J.P., continued the inquiry into the origin of the fire which occurred at Cripps's Coffee Palace Hotel on the night of the 20th ultimo.

Mr. Cripps, further examined by Mr. De Lissa, deposed: I omitted to insert in the liabilities on Thursday the sum of £70 due for rent at the time of the fire; it has since been paid; the value of the stores and wines and spirits on the premises was about £469; the sum exceeded my liabilities; there are several chimneys near the Coffee Palace yard; on several occasions I had to complain to Mr. Dunn of the smoke issuing from his chimney and coming into my kitchen; whilst this inquiry has been proceeding I have visited the ruins with Mr. Cox, the kitchenman, and Mr. Johnstone; we removed some of the debris to see if there was stone or wood at the bottom of the unused lift; we found that it was stone immediately underneath the lift and wood all around it; there were some papers there unburnt, but greatly scorched; the value of the salvage stock is about £300; the extent of my superintendence of the business at the Coffee Palace Hotel was to see to the meals and check the money which had been taken; Bradford attended to details; I never went through the books with him; we intended to go through the books on the 1st of January; I signed all cheques; on the night of the fire I made inquiries of the night porter and others as to who were in the building; Mr. Rose, the night porter, told me that he had broken open all the doors as far as Mrs. Brooks's room, and he did not see anyone in either of them; when the fire was raging I was told that there was no one remaining on the premises; I made further inquiries, when it was reported a few days afterwards that Mr. Hill was missing; some of the people I questioned about the matter stated that an old gentleman was there on the 20th ultimo; others said no one was left on the premises; no one recollected the name of Mr. Hill; Miss Bradford did not recollect the name until a week after the fire, when a policeman mentioned it to her; the lodgers generally came in to bed after the theatre was over on a Saturday night; so far as I could judge, I arrived at the conclusion that Mr. Hill was not there.

To a juryman: I did tell Superintendent Bear that it was not possible for Mr. Hill to have been on the premises at the time of the fire; Mrs. Brooks slept next door to him, and she escaped, so I thought it would be an easy matter for Mr. Hill to have made his exit from the building; an old man had left that day for Newcastle; I thought Mr. Hill was a younger man; I did not tell Mr. Bear that I was positive no Mr. Hill was on the premises on the night of the fire; if Mr. Bear has made such a statement it is incorrect.

To Mr. Jones: I have already stated in answer to Mr. De Lissa that nobody was pressing me for payment at the time of the fire; it is a fact that at the present time an action is pending against me in the Supreme Court by Kean for work and labour done at the Coffee Palace Hotel; it is a disputed claim; there is a contra account; the amount claimed is £60; I have paid £35 into court, and he owes me £25 for a dinner; to the best of my knowledge there are no other liabilities outstanding; at the date of the fire there was a credit balance of £74 7s. 8d. in my favour at the bank; I handed Bradford a cheque for £102 to give to Bradley, Newton, and Lamb, and that cheque had been presented on the 20th ultimo; I should have been overdrawn at the bank; I never did receive from Mr. Joseph a valuation of the stock and furniture in the hotel; I paid Mr. Kidman the rent one day last week; Mrs. Cripps found the money; I never saw the valuation that was made out by Mr. Joseph.

To Mr. De Lissa: In about a month or five weeks' time, in the ordinary course of business, I should have paid off all my liabilities.

To the foreman: I am not aware that any previous outbreak of fire occurred at the Coffee Palace during the time of my tenancy.

This concluded the examination of Mr. Cripps.

The Coroner expressed his disapproval of the digressive character of the examination, and intimated that he should take measures to prevent such a course being adopted at any other fire inquiry which might be held.

After the depositions had been read over, Mr. Jones stated that he had compared Mr. Cripps's bank-book, and found that, as it stood two days after the fire, when all the receipts had been paid in, he had overdrawn his account by £7 4s. 9d.

James R. Macarthur deposed: I am agent for the City Mutual Fire Insurance Company; I know Mr. Cripps, the proprietor of the Coffee Palace Hotel; I saw Mr. Cripps on the afternoon of the 25th September, 1884, with reference to the insurance of the effects of the Coffee Palace in the City Mutual; I left two proposal forms with him, and he asked me to call again the next morning, when he would have them filled up; I called as requested, and saw Mr. Cripps; he said he had not had time to have them filled up, as Mr. Bradford was too busy; he asked me to call the next morning, saying, "It will be ready for you;" I called again, but he put me off morning after morning until the Tuesday morning; the proposal form which I now see was filled up by the manager at Mr. Cripps's dictation, and signed by Mr. Cripps; the amount is for £2500; it was filled up on the 30th September last; I took it up to our office and gave it to Mr. Kerr, the manager; the proposal was declined, and I communicated the fact to Mr. Cripps verbally; he did not say anything particular to me in reply; in the afternoon, at his dictation, I filled in a proposal for insurance in the Standard Fire and Marine Insurance Company for the sum of £2500; Mr. Cripps signed the proposal in my presence; I took it to the Standard office, but it was declined; I intimated the fact to Mr. Cripps myself, but he did not say anything; I filled up a form for the United Australian Mutual Fire Insurance Company for the sum of £3500 at Mr. Cripps's request; it was not accepted; Mr. Cripps then said he had given the insurance to an old friend of his, Mr. Holroyd; he told me I should not lose my commission; he has never paid me my commission; Mr. Cripps knew me by name; I gave him my card, and saw him frequently.

Witness was examined by Mr. De Lissa, after which the inquiry was further adjourned until half-past 9 o'clock on Monday morning.

A magisterial inquiry was held on Thursday by Mr. W. T. Pinhey, J.P., relative to the death of Andrew Connell, who died from injuries received while at work at the new graving-dock, Cockatoo Island. Deceased was 40 years of age, and a labourer. About 10 o'clock on Wednesday morning he and a man named William Mitchell were engaged at the new graving-dock loading waggons with stone. A stone weighing more than a ton had been brought to the surface and landed on the waggon. Connell thought the stone was too much on one side, and put the "dogs" on it again. The stone was then lifted clear of the truck, so that it might be balanced on the vehicle. Connell sang out for the stone to be lowered, and that was done. Upon the stone reaching the waggon, it upset it. The stone did not slip, but hung in the grappling irons. Deceased and Mitchell got a piece of chain to put under the buffers of the waggon, to lift the waggon and keep the stone on it. While they were so employed one side of the grappling irons gave way, and the stone slipped off the waggon on to Connell, knocking him down. Mr. Stock, the manager of the works, and Mitchell put the grappling irons on to the stone and lifted it, and removed Connell, who was then taken to the hospital. At the hospital the unfortunate man said he considered that the occurrence was purely accidental. Dr. Apjohn, house surgeon at the Sydney Hospital, described the injuries from which Connell suffered, and deposed that he died at 15 minutes to 7 o'clock on Wednesday evening from shock, arising from the injuries which had been described. Mr. Pinhey found that the death of Andrew Connell was caused by injuries accidentally received.

Mr. Pinhey also held a magisterial inquiry with respect to the death of William Brown, aged 28 years, a native of Finland, and licensee of the Blue Anchor Hotel, Woolloomooloo. The evidence showed that at various times deceased had obtained medicines for a complaint from which he suffered, and that he had been told by a doctor that his lungs were gone. Brown had recently been working on the wharf. About five minutes to 1 o'clock on Wednesday he had a case of galvanised iron on his truck on the wharf. Michael Tierney, thinking he required assistance, went to him. Brown sat down, coughed, and blood came from his nostrils and mouth. Tierney called for help, and he, with the assistance of two other men, helped Brown into the shed, laid him down, and put sacks under his head. Messengers were despatched for the police and for a doctor, but before either came death took place. Dr. Eichler was of opinion that death was caused by the bursting a blood vessel. Mr. Pinhey found that the death of William Brown arose from natural causes.

POLICE.

At the CENTRAL POLICE COURT yesterday, the bench in the Charge Court was occupied by Mr. Buchanan, S.M. George Cooper was charged with having stolen a swag, containing a tent, a pair of blankets, five shirts, one pair of boots, and sundries, of the value of £3, the property of Duncan Waddell. The landlord of the Mercantile Hotel, George-street, deposed that on December 17 prosecutor, who was staying at his place, left the swag in his custody. On the following morning prosecutor called for it, and it was missing. He claimed the value of it, and the witness gave him £3 as compensation for the loss. The prisoner, who was also staying at the hotel, and had no swag of his own there, was seen to take a swag away, and this, it was presumed, was the one which prosecutor lost. The prisoner pleaded guilty at the conclusion of the evidence, and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment. Cornelius M'Inerney, found guilty of indecent exposure, was fined £1 or seven days; and Edward Jones and George O'Connor, newsboys, found guilty of playing at pitch and toss in Market-street, were each fined 10s. or 24 hours. Ada Curry, besides being punished for drunkenness, was fined £5 or three months for using obscene language in George-street. Mark Ree, drover, was fined 10s. for being drunk, 40s. for using obscene language in Denham-street, Glebe, and 40s. for assaulting Constable Crimmins. Joseph Shaw, for having in his possession a coat which was reasonably supposed to have been stolen, was sent to prison for one month; and Charles Barlow, 42, carter, for wilfully exposing his person in Abercrombie-street, was sent to prison for two months. Martha Clarkson and Robert Johnson, plumber, were each fined £5 for using obscene language. Herbert Barman Coulton, 26, surveyor, was fined £5 or three months for using indecent language at the bar of the Gaiety Hotel, Castlereagh-street; and for injuring a beer-engine, the property of Stanley Meaburn, he was fined £1, and ordered to pay damages £1. Charles Young, 21, sugar-refiner, was charged with assaulting Peter Bernard with intent to commit an unnatural offence. Prosecutor was a fireman, residing at the house of prisoner's mother, 233, Sussex-street, where the offence was alleged to have been committed. Prisoner was committed for trial at the next Quarter Sessions. In the Summons Court the bench was occupied by Mr. Abbott, S.M. A number of persons prosecuted by the police for being riotous or throwing stones, were fined. G. A. Bramston, for keeping his hotel open for the sale of liquor during prohibited hours, was fined £5, or one month; and several persons were punished for being in hotels drinking during prohibited hours. Alfred Bynard was charged with keeping his hotel open for the sale of liquors during prohibited hours. Mr. Bull appeared for the defence. Defendant was landlord of the Standard Hotel, in Foveaux-street. On Sunday, December 28, the police saw three men go into the hotel by a back gate. They followed and found the men in a parlour and the defendant in his bar, and it was noticed that the men had been served with brandy. When accused of selling the liquor on Sunday, defendant said he had only served the men with water. The defendant swore in court that he had not served the men with any drink before the constables entered his house, and that none of them had any there that morning. Two of the men were also called for the defence. They admitted being in the hotel, but denied having been served with drink there. The magistrate found the charge proved, and it being the second offence, defendant was fined £20, or three months in gaol.

Mr. Addison, S.M., presided at the WATER POLICE COURT, and dealt with a number of minor cases, where people were charged with drunkenness, disorderly conduct, and the use of obscene language. Thos. Moore was committed for trial at the Court of Quarter Sessions, to be held on the 29th January. The charges against him were that on the 12th November, 1884, he did utter and put off on one Richard Stephens a piece of paper, to wit a £1 note, made to represent in value £5, well knowing the same to be a forgery, with intent to defraud; also that he uttered a similar note to Henry Davies on the 3rd January, 1885. Senior-sergeant Higgins and Constable Cubbon prosecuted. The evidence was to the effect that a number of these notes have lately been passed, especially upon hotelkeepers. Mr. Stephens, landlord of the Hit or Miss Hotel, Windmill-street, was victimised into giving Moore a bottle of spirits and over £4 in money in exchange for one of these spurious or altered notes. The figure and word "1" and "one" respectively, had been clumsily changed by means of chemicals to "5" and "five." He subsequently handed a similar forgery, but much better executed, to Mr. Davies, of the Mercantile Rowing Club Hotel, Dawes Point. Mr. Davies at once detected the cheat and arrested the prisoner, who threatened to shoot him. Mr. Davies pluckily stuck to him, and after securing him sent for the police and gave him in charge. Another man, an accomplice of the prisoner's, managed to get away. Other cases will probably be brought against Moore. Mr. Leopold Yates, D.S.M., presided in the Charge Court. Inspector Seymour was complainant in 66 cases where people were charged with offences against the bylaws. For allowing their premises to remain in a filthy state the following persons were fined:—Chas. Warburton, 68, Union-street, £3 and costs; Wm. Fittes, 104, Bowman-street, and Wm. Collins, 106, Bowman-street, each £3 and costs. Silas Eddy, 260, Sussex-street; Silas Eddy, 46, Druitt-street; Francis Pascal, 45, Mill-street; John M'Carthy, No. 6, Railway-terrace, Mill-street; Jas. Wiggins, No. 3 ditto; Thos. Wright, Railway-terrace, Mill-street; Thos. Sparks, No. 7, ditto; each £5 and costs. Bernard Geoghegan, at rear of 72, Liverpool-street; Margaret O'Keefe, 42, Wattle-street; and Edward Dever, ditto; each £3 and costs. Arthur J. Anderson, Sussex-street, £5 and costs. Hoy Kee, 306, Castlereagh-street, and Rachael Davis, No. 5, Railway-terrace, off Hay-street, each £10 with costs. William Nelson, Pier-street; Richard J. Edwards, 86, Harbour-street; and Mary Glynn, 232, Sussex-street; each £4 and costs. Persons were also fined for loitering on the footway and for trotting over crossings. George Goodin was fined £5, with costs, for not keeping and driving his vehicle to the near side of the street. In every case where a fine was inflicted the alternative of a term of imprisonment was also imposed.

At the REDFERN POLICE COURT, before Mr. Buchanan, S.M., Edward Edmunds, a vanman, was charged by Inspector Webber with cruelly ill-treating a horse by working it while suffering from girth-galls; there was also a sore on each shoulder, and the horse was thoroughly "dead beat." Defendant pleaded guilty, but said it was New Year's Day, and he had just returned from taking a party of "gentlemen" in his van to La Perouse. He was fined 40s., with 4s. 10d. costs, or 14 days in gaol. James Clinch was charged with assaulting William Charles Brigden, foreman of the Alexandria Fire Brigade. Prosecutor said he was on duty at the station in Raglan-street at 3.30 a.m. on 1st instant; they were having some singing in the station, and a crowd of larrikins collected outside. One of them commenced to behave in a disorderly manner, and on his going out to send him away, prisoner struck him twice in the face, cutting his lip open. Several witnesses were examined, and prisoner was fined £10, with 4s. 10s. costs, or four months in goal. Patrick Kenneally, charged on warrant, with disobeying an order of court for the maintenance of his wife, Charlotte Kenneally, was ordered to be imprisoned for a period not exceeding 12 months, or until the order is complied with. Montague Glover, 9, whose mother is nearly always in gaol, and whose father neglects him, was brought up under the Industrial Schools Act and sent to the Vernon, his stepfather being ordered to pay 3s. per week for his support. Alfred Jones, 14, was charged with having 28 bags in his possession, reasonably suspected to have been stolen. The boy had already been sent to the Vernon, but was got off by some influence and placed in a shop in Botany-road; there he broke open the cash-box and robbed his employer, for which he was sentenced to a term of imprisonment. He pleaded guilty to the present charge, and was sentenced to three days' imprisonment in order that proceedings might be taken for returning him to the Vernon. A special license for hawking in a vehicle was granted to William Leeming Hodgkinson, an ex-constable, who was shot by a lad recently whilst conveying him to Picton on a charge of horsestealing, the next licensing day being the 30th January, and applicant stating he had no other means of earning a livelihood.

LARRIKINISM SUPPRESSION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Your correspondent "Sunny New South Wales" is right in recommending a mounted force to assist in protecting not only the public, but the police; but it seems to me that he is much farther on the way to the bringing about "larrikinism suppression" when he remarks, "It is evident the only way to suppress this rising danger is to take it in embryo—down with it at first sight." Here, indeed, is the secret of the whole thing, and the efforts of society should be directed to preventing lawlessness as well as repressing it by punishment, and this can only be done from infancy through education and organised industry.

If some part of the vast sums now expended in the detection and punishment of crime were applied to its prevention, hopes might be entertained of its gradual extinction.

Robert Owen, one of our great social reformers, in speaking of the formation of character says, "Withdraw the circumstances which tend to create crime in the human character, and crime will not be created; replace them with such as are calculated to form habits of order, regularity, temperance, industry, and these qualities will be produced."

Government should immediately organise a system of clearing the streets of neglected children, either by placing them in a State school at the expense of their parents, or by establishing every here and there clubs for both boys and girls, where emulation would be excited by the offer of prizes for neat attire, regular attendance, floriculture, music, &c., &c., after the style of the Boys' Club at Ultimo, aptly named the Young Australian Club, which has been so successful, and which owes its existence only to the unselfish efforts of a few lady and gentleman philanthropists. If so much can be achieved by a few, how much more could be done by organised State aid? This matter is of the highest importance, and should be forced upon the Government as an imperative duty, for it means the fashioning of the society of the future, the stamping out of larrikinism, and ameliorating the future condition of the poor.

THE BONDI RIOT.

The hearing of the Bondi riot case was continued at the Water Police Court yesterday afternoon, before Mr. G. W. F. Addison, S.M. The Court was crowded by the usual throng of friends and sympathisers of the prisoners. The prisoners charged were Walter Burns, alias Shoppy, James Kelly, John Flynn, Michael Hely, Michael Berrigan, John Jones, George Doherty, William Kellow, Charles Carroll, James Hoade, Alfred Gould, Jeremiah Sullivan, George Kellow, John Donohoe, and John Fox.

Mr. Roberts appeared to prosecute for the Crown. Mr. T. M. Williamson appeared on behalf of William and George Kellow, Gould, and Hoade, and Mr. Levien for Kelly and Flynn.

James Taylor, bootmaker, Riley-street, said: I was at Bondi on Boxing Day with my wife and children; we went there between 9 and 10 in the morning; we did not go into the pavilion, but I went in after the row was over; I saw stones thrown at the windows of the pavilion; people were coming out of the doors very quickly, men, women, and children; these persons were endangered by the stones; windows were smashed, and the people were alarmed; this lasted for five or ten minutes; there appeared to be 12 or 15 people throwing stones and acting in concert; I identify Hely and Kelly as having been among the stone-throwers; I also saw Jones there, but he was not doing anything; just as I came up I saw three policemen standing in the paddock at the rear of the pavilion, not far from it (the witness identified Senior-constable Stapleton and constables Gray and Stove); one of them had received a blow on the forehead, and was wiping the blood off with his hand; four or five seconds afterwards the police started to run, and a number of men, 12 or 15, chased them; between 50 or 80 men followed them; the stone-throwers chased the police, and some of them called out, "Look at the cowards running away;" Hely was one who chased the police; I cannot swear to the others, but they had left the front of the pavilion; before the policemen got into the paddock Hely cried out, "Good! I'm glad they winged the b—— coppers;" he seemed to be speaking to some of the crowd who had been throwing stones; they then ran after the police, who jumped the fence; I with others ran round the fence to see what these men were going to do to the police; I lost sight of two of the policemen; I saw Constable Stove running along the beach close to the sea with seven or eight men after him pelting him with stones, and beating him with palings; the paling produced resembles those they used; it is of hardwood, painted white; similar palings form the fence in front of the pavilion; one stone struck Stove on the back of the head; his assailants seemed to treat Stove in a cruel, cowardly, and savage manner; he was trying to escape from them; I saw him run about 10 yards and then fall down; while he was down some of them stood over him and continued for some seconds to pelt him with stones; he was insensible and defenceless; I identify Kelly as one who assaulted Stove while he was down; I saw the largest stone (produced) thrown at Stove while he was on the ground; it weighs 12lb. or 15lb.; it struck him somewhere between the shoulders; Stove was lying face downwards; Kelly threw the stone; I took the stone to the hotel; I have heard of the "bummers."

By Mr. Levien: I never saw Kelly before that day; after he threw the large stone he picked up and threw a smaller stone at the constable; he then seemed to disappear; I was asked by the police to come and see the prisoners; I identified Kelly and Hely, and then I was subpœnaed; Kelly wore a dark trousers and coat and a very dark hat.

By the prisoner Hely: I first identified you when you were in the dock where you now stand.

Thomas Scott, firework-maker, Bondi, said: I was near the pavilion on Boxing Day, at about 2 p.m.; I saw a row there; some lads were lying down on the floor of the pavilion and screaming; then I saw three policeman and a man running at them with a form; one policeman was using a baton, and the other his hands; there was a crowd outside throwing quantities of stones; I saw the police run away and followed by the mob; I went down and saw Constable Stove lying down on his face; he was motionless, and was all covered with blood; some one threw a big stone on him; I don't know who it was; then I saw his helmet thrown into the water; the next thing was that people were carrying the policeman and a civilian up to the hotel, wounded and bleeding; I identify Jones and Fox as being there; they chased the police in the pavilion; Fox had a stick in his hand.

Robert Mills, bandmaster, 115, Foveaux-street, Surry Hills, said: I belong to the Excelsior Band, and we were playing for the dancers at Bondi pavilion on Boxing Day; everything was peaceable until after 2 o'clock; then when the band began to play one of a number of young men seemed to take a fit; the master of the ceremonies asked the police to put him out of the pavilion for interrupting the dancing; when they were near the door a melee took place, and people outside commenced to throw stones; the disturbance seemed to be in consequence of the police attempting to identify this man; I cannot identify the man; I took no particular notice; the stone-throwing lasted about five minutes, and numbers of men, women, and children rushed out of the place; the master of the pavilion then gave me orders to play "God save the Queen," so that the pavilion would be cleared; I saw a man attacking the police with a board; I do not know who it was; I was trying to make my escape, as it was unsafe for anyone to remain. Our lives were endangered by the stones; one came very close to me; I saw the prisoners Jones and Berrigan there before the melee took place.

Robert Burns, master of ceremonies at the Bondi pavilion, said: I was on duty on Boxing Day; there was no disturbance until the prisoner Burns (or Shoppy) and three others got into the pavilion by the window of the ladies' dressing-room, soon after noon; Burns was ejected; soon after half-past 2 another disturbance arose; the prisoner Jones lay down on the floor affecting to be in a fit; I knew he was not in one from the way in which he was carrying on, kicking about and using horrible, abominable, disgusting language; there were women there, such as they were; also children, some of them not children in vice; I asked the police to remove Jones; they said he was in a fit; I said he wanted "fitting"; Jones' companions dragged him from the dancing-floor, and threw water over him, making a mess of the place; about 12 or 18 were around him; he seemed to be a hero among them; two others lay down and acted just as Jones did; I called on the police, and as soon as they started to remove them, the row commenced, a regular Donnybrook; the two men who imitated Jones lay on their faces, so as not to be recognised; the mob resisted the police; I saw the row in the pavilion until the police left; when the police went to eject the two men on the floor the crowd got round them; some had sticks and some had stones; the police were ill treated, and they drew out their batons; one of them asked me to close the doors, and I did so; as soon as I turned my back they were burst open from outside; I went to the end where the band officiates and watched the proceedings; one man threw a stone, which struck Constable Gray on the side of the head; another made a blow at him with a stick; Jones had his shirt off, and he then drew off his boots and threw them at the constables; I next saw Jones, with a form in his arms, throw it end on at a constable upon the balcony; I cannot say whether or not it struck him; then the whole lot commenced throwing stones at the police; the police then made their exit over the balcony; I was on the band-stand; when the police left the rioters looked round, caught sight of me, and let out a roar; they made for me; I got out as quickly as possible by passing through the ladies' dressing-room and dropping from the balcony, which is, I believe, about 20 feet high; while I was getting away they threw stones at me; I identify as rioters every prisoner in the dock; I am doubtful about Gould; I had seen some of them at Bondi previously; I saw the police getting over the fence; the prisoners and others chased them towards the beach; it was the prisoner William Kellow who struck Constable Gray with a stone in the pavilion.

By Mr. Williamson: I saw George Kellow there; I gave evidence in an inquest arising out of a prize fight at Randwick; I did not go voluntarily; I was subpœnaed; I was summoned once; I won't say what for, as it is irrelevant to this case; it was a maintenance case; I was summoned twice; I was subpœnaed to come here; I had made no statement previously; I saw Hoade at Bondi on Boxing Day throwing stones amongst the rest.

By Mr. Roberts: I saw a person like George Kellow in the Haymarket to-day; I also saw Hoade; I went to the police-station and said that there were two of the Bondi rioters at the corner of Francis and Elizabeth streets.

At this stage the case was further adjourned until 2 p.m. on Tuesday, all the prisoners being allowed bail. The alleged ringleaders, Burns, or Shoppy, Jones, Sullivan, Kelly, Fox, Kely, Doherty, and Donohoe were required to find bail, each in his own surety of £100 and two others of £50 each. Flynn, Berrigan, William Kellow, George Kellow, Carroll, Hoade, and Gould were granted bail, each in his own surety of £80 and two sureties of £40 each.

RAILWAY MANAGEMENT.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Every time I travel down the Western line, not very often, I am forcibly struck with the folly, or worse, of the mail train stopping at Lithgow and Eskbank, two little stations within a mile of each other. Some time ago there was a dispute as to which of these places should possess a station. The Department—apparently afraid to decide—still allows the train to stop at each. If every little "Peddlington" is to have its claim considered in this way, the mail trains would be delayed hours in reaching the metropolis. Surely passengers and mails right on to Bourke are not to be unnecessarily delayed in this way, because there is a dispute between Lithgow and Eskbank as to which should possess a railway station? Or surely the heads of the Railway Department—political or permanent—possess sufficient nerve and moral courage to decide between these two places, and so discontinue the farce and absurdity I am now calling attention to. I am, &c.,

The A. S. N. Company's steamer Cintra arrived from Fiji, via Noumea, yesterday afternoon, with mails, passengers, and cargo, after a very stormy and unpleasant passage. Captain Calder reports that the Cintra left Levuka at 6 a.m. on the 30th ultimo, and anchored in Suva Roads at 11 a.m. same day; left again at 2 p.m. on the 31st, passed Mas Island at noon on the 3rd instant, and arrived in Noumea at 9.30 a.m. on the 4th. She sailed at 1 p.m. on the 5th, cleared Bulari Pass at 2.15 p.m. same day, and entered the Heads at 1.30 p.m. on the 9th, berthing at the company's wharf at 2.30 p.m. On leaving Fiji the Cintra experienced very unsettled weather, which gradually became worse till the night of the 1st instant, when she encountered a fierce hurricane, veering from east to S.W., accompanied by terrific rain squalls, and a high confused sea, in which the ship laboured considerably. At midnight the barometer began to fall very rapidly, and Captain Calder wore ship and stood to the eastward under easy steam. During the storm the after steering-gear was completely smashed, the port lifeboat washed away, the starboat after boat stove in, and all movables on deck, including hencoops, &c., were washed overboard. At 9 a.m. next day the weather began to moderate, and the steamer was kept away on her course for Noumea, to which port she had fresh S.W. winds and cloudy weather. Thence light and moderate S.E. winds, with fine pleasant weather to the latitude of Smoky Cape, and fresh winds veering from N.E. to S.W., with cloudy weather from there to port. The Cintra brought a large number of passengers and a full cargo of island produce.

The American three-masted schooner San Luis arrived yesterday afternoon from San Francisco, where she is owned by Mr. Nicholas Bichard, with a general cargo, consisting principally of salmon and lumber. This is the first visit of the San Luis to Sydney, but other vessels belonging to the same owner, including the Don Nicholas, Renijio, and California, have been frequently here. Captain Schmalz reports that she sailed from San Francisco on November 9, and had light winds from S.E. to S.W. and calms for a fortnight. The N.E. trades were picked up in 24·30 N., and the Equator was crossed in 145° W. Fine weather and strong S.E. trades followed to 12° S., and baffling winds and squally weather, with plenty of rain from there to 26° S. and 174° E. Norfolk Island was sighted on the 2nd instant, and Lord Howe Island was passed on the 6th. Thence to port the San Luis experienced strong winds from S.E. to N.E. She entered the Heads at 1.30 p.m., and after being passed by the health officer was towed to an anchorage below Neutral Bay by the steamer Psyche.

The steamer Lismore crossed the Richmond bar at 1 p.m. on the 7th instant, entered the Heads at 2.20 a.m. on the 9th, and moored at the wharf at 3.10 a.m. She brings as cargo: 130 logs pine, 54 bags maize, 617 mats sugar, 4 cases eggs, 80 hides, 2 cases fruit, 2 bags oysters, 3 kegs butter, 1 piece machinery, 9 calves, 2 coops poultry, and 75 packages sundries.

The steamer Katoomba left Cairns at 6.20 a.m. on the 30th ultimo, arrived at Port Douglas at 10.10 a.m., left at 1 p.m. same date, arrived at Townsville at 8.35 a.m. on the 31st, left at 10.40 a.m. on the 1st instant, arrived at Mackay at 6.40 a.m. on the 2nd, left at 7.40 a.m. same date, arrived in Keppel Bay at 1.15 a.m. on the 3rd, left at 4 a.m. and arrived in Brisbane at 2.30 p.m. on the 4th, left at 10.30 a.m. on the 7th, rounded Cape Moreton at 3.35 p.m., passed Smoky Cape at 1.40 p.m. on the 8th, entered the Heads at 8.30 a.m. on the 9th, arriving at the company's wharf at 9.10 a.m. on the 9th. Had light, variable winds throughout the passage.

The Colonial Sugar Company's steamer Fiona left last evening for Clarence River with part of original cargo (600 casks molasses) from Fiji. She calls at Newcastle.

The schooner Patonga, built by Mr. E. Beattie, of Brisbane Water, to the order of Messrs. Fagan Brothers, recently arrived in harbour, and will shortly be employed in connection with the sawmill business of her owners. Yesterday she was registered at the Customs. Her letters in the international code are R.L.B.W.

The barques Pearl and Stag and schooner Lady Franklin left for Newcastle last night in tow of the steamer Phoebe. The Pearl proceeds from Newcastle to Wilmington, the Stag to Rockhampton, and the Lady Franklin to a northern port, probably to the Clarence.

The steamer Malua was registered yesterday at the Customs. She was built by her owner, Mr. George Dent, of Botany, and her dimensions are—length, 51 feet; depth, 13 feet 8 inches; and beam, 6 feet 2 inches. Her machinery was imported. The engines are of 25 horse-power, the cylinders being 10 inch and 18 inch in diameter, with a 14-inch stroke. She measures 30 tons.

A ship passed Seal Rocks, bound south, at 9 a.m. yesterday.

The barque Wakefield was yesterday berthed at Dibbs' Wharf, and the barque Æthelberht was moved from Dibbs' Wharf to the stream.

The steamship Ioani, from Hongkong to Sydney via ports, is due here to-day.

The steamer Advance, from Melbourne to Sydney, passed Jervis Bay at 3.30 p.m. yesterday.

H. M. transport Tamar passed Green Cape at 2.15 p.m. yesterday, and judging from the progress she has already made along the coast, may be expected to reach port before noon to-day.

The Orient Company's R.M.S. Cuzco, with inward English mails, entered Port Phillip Heads at 2.50 a.m. yesterday, and anchored in Hobson's Bay at 6 a.m. The Sydney portion of her mails is due here this morning.

The steamer Rodondo left Melbourne on the 7th instant, and entered the Heads at 9.50 p.m. yesterday, mooring to the wharf at 11 p.m. Experienced light winds and fine weather to Gabo Island, strong northerly winds thence to Cape St. George, and fresh southerly winds with rain at times from there to port.

The schooner Flirt arrived in port yesterday afternoon from Horne Islands, with a freight of copra and cocoanuts and several passengers, anchoring in Woolloomooloo Bay at about 4 p.m. She left here on November 3 with a general cargo and 8 passengers, and experienced strong S.W. winds and fine weather till arriving at Suva on the 17th November. Owing to smallpox in Sydney when she left, the Flirt was detained in quarantine seven days, at the end of which time she was taken alongside the wharf and discharged her cargo. A departure was taken from Suva on November 29, and calms and light winds were met with till arrival at Rotumah on the 7th ult. After remaining there three days, the Flirt went on to Fortuna, where she arrived on the 17th, and at once commenced to take in copra and cocoanuts. The work was completed on the 23rd ultimo, on which day the schooner left for Sydney. She experienced light and moderate easterly winds all the way across.

The brig John Wesley arrived in Fortuna on the 22nd ultimo, and was going on from there to Nua-fu, thence to Tonga, and from there she was coming on to this port.

The R.M.S. Clyde, which left for London, via the usual ports, at noon yesterday, took away a fair list of passengers and a general cargo. Both will be largely added to at Melbourne and Adelaide. The ship was in fine order when she hauled away from the wharf.

ARRIVAL OF THE R.M.S. BALLAARAT.

The P. and O. Co.'s R.M.S. Ballaarat, from London, via the usual ports, was expected to arrive at about noon yesterday, but she did not enter the Heads until a quarter to 5 p.m., and owing to the necessary medical examination being made by the health officer it was not until an hour afterwards that she was berthed at the Company's wharf. The Ballaarat was built specially for the Australian trade. She has been kept in it ever since, and her popularity is such that it is not likely she will be taken out of it. On every occasion she has had a well-filled list of passengers, and the present is no exception to the rule, as there were no fewer than 99 on board for this port, besides those landed en route. The passage generally was of a pleasant character, and a series of amusements, carried out under the auspices of a committee, of which General Scratchley was chairman, passed off in a highly successful manner. A fancy dress ball took place on Christmas Eve, and a theatrical performance was given on the last night of the old year, the pieces being "Who Speaks First?" and "Nan the Good for Nothing." The saloon was handsomely decorated for the Christmas holidays, and the artistic skill displayed therein was favourably commented upon by all. A sketch of the decorations was taken by one of the passengers and forwarded to the London Graphic, with which journal he is connected. It is only repeating what may now be considered an axiom to say that the welfare and happiness of the passengers were looked after in every way by Captain Tomlin and his officers. Both were most assiduous in their efforts to make the amusements pass off successfully. There was one death during the voyage, that of a saloon passenger from Bombay, named W. C. Baldock, who succumbed to apoplexy just before the vessel passed Cape Otway. Since the Ballaarat was last in Australian waters she has been fitted up for the electric light, but the work has not yet been completed, though by next time she arrives in Port Jackson it is expected to be in complete working order. It is almost needless to say that the vessel arrives in first-class order. The Ballaarat sailed from London at 1.25 p.m. on November 20, and experienced fresh N.E. and E. winds and fine weather to Malta, where she arrived at 4.40 p.m. on November 28. After coaling, &c., she sailed again on the 29th November at 1 a.m., and had fine weather and southerly wind to Port Said, arriving there on 2nd ultimo at 9.35 a.m. She entered the Suez Canal same day at noon, and when proceeding through experienced a thick fog, which detained the ship a few hours. The Ballaarat arrived in Suez Roads on the 4th ultimo, at 9 a.m. Owing to the mail steamer Mongolia, from Brindisi, being unable to enter the harbour of Alexandria, through the unusual occurrence of a dense fog, until 4 o'clock on the 24th ultimo, the Ballaarat was despatched that evening at 9 o'clock, leaving the steamship Thames to follow up with the mails to Colombo. The Ballaarat reached Colombo on the 16th ultimo at 5.45 p.m. After coaling she waited for the Thames, which arrived on the 17th ultimo at 10 p.m. The Australian mails were transferred from her to the Ballaarat, and on the 18th ultimo the latter sailed at 1 p.m., with fine weather. The trades were encountered in 8° S. and carried to 30° S.; thence fine weather prevailed to King George's Sound, which was reached on the 30th ultimo at 5.30 a.m. The passage was resumed the same day at 1.15 p.m., with southerly wind and heavy swell, which lasted till the 1st instant, and thence easterly winds were had to Cape Borda, which was passed on the 2nd instant at 5.50 p.m. Glenelg was reached on the 3rd instant at 2.53 a.m., and left again same day at 10.10 a.m. Cape Otway was passed on the 4th instant at 5.53 p.m., and after discharging the Geelong mails, &c., the Ballaarat arrived in Hobson's Bay on the 5th at 3.15 a.m., sailed from Melbourne on the 7th at 2.20 p.m., passed Port Phillip Heads at 6 p.m. with a light E.S.E. wind, rounded Wilson's Promontory on the 8th at 2.20 a.m., passed Gabo Island same day at 5 p.m., and experienced strong N.N.E. wind and high sea to Montague Island, which was passed on the 9th at 1.30 a.m., and moderate northerly winds and overcast weather thence to port.

A general meeting of the shareholders of the Mercantile Building, Land, and Investment Company, Limited, was held this afternoon. The report and balance-sheet, of which an abstract was given yesterday, were adopted, and the retiring auditors (Messrs. S. A. Hogg and William Bryant) were re-elected. It was decided that the first annual meeting should be held in July. A unanimous vote of thanks was passed to the directors and manager for their satisfactory management since the formation of the company.

The probable loss of £2,500,000 on the realisation of the assets of the old Oriental Bank, mentioned in a cablegram elsewhere, may seem a large amount; but if this be taken on the representation of the figures in the last published report, there should still be sufficient to pay the creditors. The assets at 31st December, 1883, were stated to be £11,250,000, against which there were liabilities to shareholders and the public of £9,728,000, leaving a surplus of £1,522,000. If to this be added £1,500,000, called by the official liquidator from the shareholders we get £3,022,000, from which there is to be deducted the £2,500,000 which it is said is likely to be lost in the realisation of the assets. That would leave a credit balance of £472,000.

In the Import markets to-day, there was some improvement in trade, but still business is far from active. The advance in prices in breadstuffs in England has given a better tone to the colonial markets generally, and the higher prices quoted for flour in South Australia and Victoria have caused an advance in the value in this market, quotations for trade parcels being as follows:—South Australian town brands, £9 10s. to £9 15s.; country, £8 10s. to £9: New South Wales, £9 to £9 10s.: and Victorian, £8 10s. to £9. Roller-made flour selling at 5s. to 10s. per ton extra. New South Wales wheat is 5s. 10d., with an upward tendency. Growers exhibit an indisposition to offer their wheat in the face of a rising market, and even country millers cannot meet their requirements except at prices they are not disposed to give. There is little to notice respecting the tea trade; buyers are operating sparingly; except for the lower grades, of which the stocks are ample, there is no disposition to make concessions; but purchasers find it difficult to renew their stocks of the finer grades, except at an advance on the rates ruling two or three months back. There is very little doing in coffee, and prices are still depressed, 8d. being full value of No. 1 Ceylon Plantation; other grades at proportionate figures. Barry's chicory, 2¾d. to 3d. per lb., according to parcel. Sales of Epps' cocoa were made at 1s. 5½d., and of Taylor's at 1s. 3½d.; Taylor's chocolate selling at 1s. 2½d. There is very little inquiry for dried fruits; 4½d. to 5d. quoted for currants, 5¼d. to 5½d. for Elemes. We do not hear of any considerable sales of sugar; ration may be quoted at £17 to £20; yellows, £22 to £23; white, £24 to £30. A couple of parcels of rice have changed hands on private terms; for ordinary lines £13 10s to £15 10s quoted for the lower grades, and from £17 10s. to £18 10s. for fine table sorts, the market for the latter being firmer in sympathy with the Melbourne market, where sales have been made at advanced rates. Sago and tapioca are selling at 1½d. to 1¾d., according to sample; pepper, 9½d. to 10d. for black and fine, 1s. 1½d. to 1s. 2d. for white. Dairymaid milk sold at 7s. 3d. For fish, the demand is light; holders of best brands of sardines require 8s. and 5s. for halves and quarters, but the trade is confined chiefly to descriptions selling at 3d. less; tinned salmon, 6s. 3d. to 6s. 6d. is the range of quotations; 4d. to 4½d. per lb. quoted for bulk. A line of Morton's fresh herrings was done at 5s. 3d., kippered, 8s. to 8s. 6d. Kenseit oysters sold at 5s. 7½d. The salt market is quiet, Liverpool coarse, 70s., Black Horse to 75s., fine 85s. to 92s. 6d.; rock 80s. There is rather more inquiry for pickles. Whybrow's London sold at 7s. 10½d.; Eagle quoted at 7s.; and Popular at 6s. Maconochie's square were sold at 6s. and round at 7s. Whybrow's half-pint salad oils are moving at 5s. 4½d., pints at 9s. 4½d., and quarts at 17s. 3d. Hora's half-pint castors 3s. 11d. and pints 7s., with sales. Candles are depressed in value, 8½d. may be quoted for D.R.J.'s. A steady trade is noted in brewers' goods. English malt of fair quality is worth 7s. 3d.; Kent hops, 1s. 4d. for 1883's, and up to 1s. 8d. for 1884's. Tasmanian of last season selling at 1s. 1d.; Island tobacco is held for 1s. 1d., with a firm market. In liquors, there is still a fairly steady trade for spot lots, and for shipments to arrive of bottled beer, at up to 10s. 6d. and 7s. 6d. for quarts and pints respectively. Pig and other brands of stout are in moderate request at unaltered rates. Hennessy's three-star brandy is moving off in small lines at 47s., and 35s. is the quotation for single-star, with but a limited demand. The trade in second-class brandy is rather more active, with sales at from 6s. 9d. to 7s. 3d. Geneva is being taken more freely at 13s. Burnett's old tom is still selling at 12s., with an increasing supply. There is very little doing in rum; Lowndes' quoted at 3s. 8d. in hogsheads and quarters, a parcel placed at a shade less; Preston's at 3s. 2d. The numerous brands of whisky are commanding moderate attention at list prices. In metals, the trade is slack; though an improving inquiry is noted for galvanised iron, at from £20 to £22 5s; iron, at about £21 to £21 5s., selling most freely. The trade in fencing wire has fallen off; more inquiry is noted for steel wire, which is selling now at prices about equal to the iron wire, No. 10 steel having been quitted at £13. For best brands of iron wire £11 5s., £12, and £13 10s., for Nos. 6, 8, and 10 respectively, may be quoted as value. For sheet lead more money is asked, £15 5s. being quoted by most holders, but less accepted to arrive. IC coke tinplates are worth from 17s. 9d. to 18s. Wire nails are firm at 15s. 6d. In oils, kerosene may be quoted at 1s. 7d. to 1s. 11d., according to test; raw and boiled, in drums, 3s. to 3s. 2d.; castor cannot be quoted over 3s., duty paid; China, rather lower, being offered at 3s. 2d. Blasting powder scarce, 7½d. is quoted as value; a line of Curtiss and Harvey's sporting powder placed on private terms. In drugs, business was done in soda crystals at £6 7s. 6d., and at a shade less to arrive; cream of tartar, 1s. 6d. and 1s. 7d., in kegs and jars respectively, for forward delivery 1d. less accepted; tartaric acid, 1s. 11d. in bulk, and 2s. in case. Caustic soda, 60 per cent. is moving off at £13; trade in drugs generally being far from active. Whiting, 65s. per ton, with sales. In jute goods, we hear of business in cornsacks at 6s. 6d. in small lines. Cement is selling at from 14s. 6d. to 16s., the latter price having been paid for a moderate-sized line of a leading brand.

Messrs. R. Goldsbrough and Co., Limited, offered to-day 1400 bales of wool to a crowded attendance of buyers. Competition was brisk up to a point, fully supporting rates lately ruling. Greasy and scoured fleece, and all fellmongers' lots, continue in good demand, but washed is dull of sale, and has little attention. Greasy sold from 6¾d. to 10½d.; scoured, 11d. to 17¾d.; and inferior to ordinary washed fleece at 12d. to 14½d. 750 bales were disposed of under the hammer, and the offers that have been made for the lots passed in are likely to result in business when owners have been communicated with. As showing the course of the market the following sales may be referred to:—Greasy: RYN, 30 bales at 10½d.; Kyeamba, 6 crossbred at 10½d.; JH over Bookham, 5 at 10d.; J reversed over P, 38 at 8½d.; DMcR over Furracabad, 7 at 8¼d.; S in circle over Argyle, 18 at 8¼d.; Marooba, 9 1st pieces at 8¼d.; HGL over Errowanbang, 38 bales 1st pieces at 8¼d., 28 2nd pieces at 3¾d.; Bobadeen, 34 at 8¼d.; ER over Hartwood, 30 at 8d.; JC over Bulgoo, 17 at 8¼d.; YD, 6 at 8¾d.; N over Tumut, 5 at 8¼d.; Burrenbilla, 81 at 7½d.; LEI over Goolhi, 17 1st pieces at 6¼d. Washed Fleece: MS, 32 bales at 14½d.; JA over T, 5 at 14d.; TMN over Bland, 8 at 13½d. A full catalogue of sheepskins was also cleared under excellent competition up to 7¼d. per lb.

Messrs. Hill, Clark, and Co., F. L. Barker, John Bridge, Brunker and Wolfe, Mort and Co., Limited, and Harrison, Jones, and Devlin, Limited, held their weekly sales of tallow and hides to-day. The demand for tallow was very slack, speculators and the trade both holding off; and in consequence not a quarter of the lots catalogued were sold. The market was slightly easier. Best mutton may be quoted at £28 to £29; prime beef, £27 10s. to £28 10s. For hides there was a brisk demand at up to 4½d. for extra heavies.

The Australian Mortgage and Agency Company, Limited, Melbourne, report to-day by telegraph as follows:—

"We offered to-day 3300 bales of wool to excellent competition, and sold 2600 at satisfactory prices, quite maintaining the rates lately ruling. Greasy sold up to 11½d. for 170 bales Tooma, and numerous lots sold over 10d. Scoured was especially active, and sold up to 20d. for part of the Currawalgalpa clip. Netallie, Tarella, and G. W. D. B. all sold at 19d."

The R.M.S. Ballaarat arrived from London this afternoon with a general cargo, and the schooner San Luis from San Francisco, also with a general cargo.

The P. and O. Co.'s R.M.S. Clyde sailed to-day for London, via Melbourne and Adelaide, with 1217 bales wool, 11,210 ingots tin, 19,632 ingots copper, 1997 cases meats, 30 bales leather, 22 bales basils, 13 casks skins, 5 cases peas, 20 cases champagne, 2 cases books, 8 casks bismuth ore, 2 packages jewellery, 1 box silver bullion (£600), 12 cases sugar, 2 cases prunes, 2 tanks malt, 2 packages cigarettes, 1 case parcels, 1 dog, and 7 packages sundries.

The Sydney Morning Herald.

SATURDAY, JANUARY 10, 1885.

It was, we think, Lord KIMBERLEY who, in the midst of congratulations upon the establishment of telegraphic communication between England and Australia, ventured to predict that it would be a cause of disturbance to the peace of the Colonial Office. What the Earl of KIMBERLEY apprehended his successor, Lord DERBY, has realised. Whilst the British Government is parleying with that of Germany about the commission by the latter of an unfriendly act in New Guinea, there comes by telegraph from New Zealand an announcement that the Government of that colony has resolved to annex Samoa; a step which, taken with the manifest purpose of anticipating and defeating the presumed intentions of Germany, would certainly be regarded by that country as an unfriendly act—that is to say, if it were sanctioned and confirmed by the British Crown. The situation must have been embarrassing; but it is not surprising that, after a little reflection, Lord DERBY has found his way out of it by disapproving for the time of the whole scheme. It is hard to see what else he could have done. He could not consistently sanction the New Zealand project whilst calling Germany to account for a similar piece of sharp practice elsewhere. We do not know whether any effort is being made to induce Germany to relax her hold upon New Guinea; but unless the parleying is intended to put the New Guinea question on a more satisfactory basis, what was the use of entering upon it? Assuming that the correspondence has some such purpose in view, the British Government would cut away the ground beneath its own feet, and bring the negotiations to a sudden collapse by becoming a party to the Samoa scheme. If the British Government were regardless of consistency and reckless of results, it might seek to amuse Germany by parleying about New Guinea, and under cover of that arrange for wholesale annexations elsewhere; but if other countries are willing to proceed in that fashion, we do not look for such action at British hands. It is to be observed that the application of New Zealand for the Royal Assent to Sir GEORGE GREY'S Confederation Act of 1883 in no way altered the issue which the British Government had to decide. There is no difference in principle between giving direct sanction to an act of annexation performed by a colony, and giving assent to legislation under which such annexations could be made. In either case the responsibility would lie with the authority that gave the sanction or conferred the power. The principle laid down in Sir T. M'ILWRAITH'S case was that it is for the Crown itself to enlarge the boundaries of the Empire; and, as that principle was laid down in the case of Sir T. M'ILWRAITH, the Imperial Government could hardly set it aside at the instance of Sir JULIUS VOGEL. The interest of New Zealand in Samoa and the Navigator's group is more direct and urgent than that of New South Wales, just as the interest of Queensland in New Guinea was greater than that of New Zealand. New Zealand is so situated that the island question generally has always had a special importance for her; and hence the repeated endeavours of public men in that colony to deal with it in such a way as to safeguard New Zealand interests. The prospect of Samoa and the Navigator's Islands falling into foreign hands was well adapted to produce excited feeling in New Zealand, and to stimulate the Government to the adoption of strong measures. But the strength of a dependency is limited, and the responsibilities of the Imperial Government are complex and large. Nor is it to be forgotten that in Samoa for a considerable time past German interests have held a prominent place. In New Guinea Germany had no special right of interference; but as to Samoa, that could not be said with equal truth. Under the circumstances it seems improbable that Lord DERBY will reconsider his decision. It is more probable that the sudden introduction of the Samoa question may suggest a solution of the New Guinea problem. Germany may say, "You have no right to claim both New Guinea and Samoa; and we have no desire to claim both. Take the whole of New Guinea, and leave to us Samoa and the Navigator's undisturbed." Holding New Britain and New Ireland, and escaping the risk of collisions in New Guinea, Germany would then have the best of the bargain in every way. And if the offer were made by Germany, it is difficult to see on what substantial ground England—desiring to maintain friendly relations with Germany—could refuse it.

In this connection we may refer to the annexation meeting that was held in Melbourne on Wednesday. At this meeting Sir A. MICHIE, who moved the first resolution, adopted a line of remark which a man of his standing and position, and opportunities of acquiring information, should have been incapable of taking. Having said that Lord DERBY had already met representations from the colonies with the answer that they were not agreed amongst themselves, and by pointing out that "New South Wales, so far from being cordial, was to a certain extent antagonistic," his remarks were received with cheers and hisses. He then proceeded:—"Let us not hiss even with respect to the colony to which I am referring, because I feel so decidedly the importance of the eventual success that I unhesitatingly endorse the suggestion made in a very able letter in one of to-day's papers. The writer says that if there be such vast importance attached to these miserable local jealousies that even the older colony should take the lead, let her take the lead if she will. If there be any particular honour about it, it appears to me that there is as much honour in following as in leading; and therefore, if we are to stand upon a point of honour, upon a point of pride, upon a point of small local jealousy, we will waive that altogether in order that we may meet Lord DERBY in the gate, and say, 'Now we have unanimity.'" Sir A. MICHIE ought to have known that from the beginning of the correspondence preliminary to the Sydney Convention until now, there has been a marked difference of opinion upon important points of public policy in connection with the annexation question between his Government and ours. It is not a point of honour, a point of pride, a point of local jealousy that has led our Government to take one course whilst the Governments of other colonies have recommended or taken another. It is a difference of opinion as to what is right and what is wrong. When these differences of opinion have arisen, our Government has not shrunk from stating its views, and giving reasons in their support; and this fact has been open to all the world. In the main, as it has appeared to us, the opinions of our Government have been sounder, the facts on which they rested were more accurately stated, and the arguments in their defence were more convincing than the opinions, representations, and arguments advanced on the other side. The presumption is that in Victoria the case was regarded in a different light, for otherwise our neighbours would have admitted that they were wrong, and would have cordially agreed with us, instead of remaining "antagonistic" as hitherto. It is not, and has not been a question, "Who shall lead?" The dispute has been about which way we should go. Would the writer of "the very able letter" be prepared to follow the lead of New South Wales in the direction which alone in the opinion of its Government is the right one to take? Would Sir A. MICHIE "endorse" such a suggestion? That is the test of the sincerity of their generous offers. Are they ready to waive their opinions and accept ours? If not, what right have they to complain that we will not abandon ours and accept theirs? And what possible defence have they when, being in a position to know that this is the true explanation of the want of unanimity, they violate the ninth commandment by misrepresenting us?

We are not surprised at the many recent complaints about the intermittent water supply. It is a matter of instinct to cry out against being put to trouble and inconvenience. When people who have been accustomed to enjoy a constant supply, or who consider that they pay for a constant supply and have a right to it, get only an intermittent supply instead, to expect that they will all be silent and bear the change without a murmur, is to expect too much. As a matter of fact, however, the great majority submit without much fuss, and amongst that majority must be many in straitened circumstances, to whom it is a matter of difficulty to provide against the change, and by whom the pressure is severely felt. There are, however, many others who are well able, by a trifling expenditure of money and thought, to reduce the unavoidable inconvenience to a very low point.

The peculiar cause of embarrassment in Sydney arises from the fact that no one can calculate accurately when, in the absence of rain, the supply will run out. As soon as the water above the surface disappears we have to draw upon hidden stores, the quantity of which, and the available proportion of which quantity, are unknown. It is easy to say the supply has never failed hitherto, the rain has always come to our rescue in time. But no one would venture to assign these as good and sufficient reasons for abandoning the works in progress to obtain a new supply from the Nepean. The beginning and the continuance of those works are an admission that without them the present supply would at some point absolutely fail to meet the growing requirements of the metropolitan district. But when that point will be reached no one can tell. We know that the demand is increasing, and that the consumption is increasing. We know also that the supply is not increasing, and that with variable seasons it may any year greatly decrease. But we do not know how much is stored in the sand, or how much can be drawn from the sand. Under such conditions it is the clear duty of the city authorities to husband the supply whenever a dry season is threatened. But under such conditions there is sure to be a tendency to accuse the city authorities of applying the screw too soon or unnecessarily. If the exact quantity stored were known, it could be easily calculated how long at a given rate of consumption the supply would last; and then, probably, if a water famine were clearly within sight, every man's eye would be upon his wasteful neighbour, and the efforts of the authorities to check unnecessary consumption would neither be cavilled at nor resisted, but would be backed up. Now there is a secret but widely spread belief that such efforts are not required; and hence resistance and complaint.

But this is not the whole case. We may admit that it is the clear duty of the City Council to take measures of precaution and economy; but that does not imply approval of all measures that the Council may take. Many people think that in introducing an intermittent system, the Council is causing the waste of more water than it saves. But surely this is a question which close calculation should be able to answer. The statement that people store large quantities of water and then throw them away when the supply is renewed, may be quite true. So also may be the reports as to the night discharge from taps turned on negligently or in mischief. But the general result of establishing an intermittent system cannot be correctly estimated by deductions from individual experience. It is only the authorities, who have the means of gauging fluctuations in the quantity passed for consumption from day to day, who should be able to say whether on the whole the intermittent system brings loss or gain.

Nor can it be well denied that the city authorities have weakened their position and exposed themselves to adverse criticism by failing to exercise that careful economy which they call upon the people to practise. Why is there so strong a case for making the supply intermittent now? Partly because the City Council has improvidently, if not recklessly, laid down many miles of new mains. This course of action was neither dictated by necessity nor required by justice. In the city, householders cannot provide a supply for themselves; in the suburbs, with few exceptions they can. But the extension of the mains carried with it promise of a large increase of revenue; and, that the City Treasury may get this revenue, some of the people who had previously enjoyed a full supply must put up with an intermittent one at any cost.

The extension of mains to the suburbs, however, raises another consideration. It is in the suburbs that gardens are found. The CITY ENGINEER is always assuming that plunge baths are the great cause of waste. They probably are a cause of waste, but it is hard to believe that his estimate is not excessive. There was a proposal some time ago that the officers of the Council should have power to enter houses for the purpose of cutting off plunge-bath taps, but it was prudently overruled. How much of the waste may be set down to garden consumption? It is beside the case to say that water supplied for gardens is regulated by meter and charged for accordingly. When water is getting scarce, and it is a question whether the supply even for sanitary purposes should not be restricted, consumption in gardens is waste; and it would be waste still if a charge of a guinea a gallon were made. Before talking of interference with baths, all supply to gardens, whether through meters or not through meters, should be stopped.

Any ground there may be for dissatisfaction with the action of the City Council, however, is one thing; the simple self-interest of everybody dependent upon the city water supply (to say nothing of duty to one's neighbour), is another. Under natural conditions it is a plain matter of self-interest both to avoid waste of water and to discourage it. As we have already pointed out, negligent or deliberate waste of water will not punish the Council in any case; if anybody will suffer through it, those who waste it now will suffer should they want it, and have to do without it, a few months hence. It is reasonable to urge the Council to discontinue the extension of the mains, to withdraw garden meters, to employ more inspectors for the detection and punishment of waste. All these are measures in our own interest. But if there are any who, to gratify a feeling of irritation against the authorities, commit or countenance waste, they are injuring their own interests and fighting against themselves.

A little more vigour is to be thrown into the movements of the French in Tonquin. The Chambers have authorised a reinforcement of 12,000 men. General CAMPENON'S policy has been just earnest enough to send supplies a little faster than they were needed as victims for the climate, always such a deadly enemy to troops on foreign service. It must be apparent to most persons acquainted with the case, that at present rates of procedure the war may last for years. Thousands of Frenchmen will lay their bones in China, and many more Chinese will fall before the superior arms of their French invaders. The reinforcement named may have to be succeeded by several more, nearly if not quite as large, for it is not likely that China will now submit without a hard struggle. Her people are numerous: she can spare some millions of them in any way. They are at home, and will fall only when fighting or running away, and they are fighting for their country. When all losses are counted, it may be found that every Chinaman has cost two Frenchmen. It is said that BISMARCK is well pleased to see the French army drawn upon in this way. Perhaps it is only one of the many never-committed sins laid to his charge. Whether it is or not, he knows, and everybody knows, that France is not now dangerous in diplomacy; and this certainly is one way of making her harmless in war. In the interests of commerce, all nations trading to China will be glad to see a peaceable end to the dispute, partly because of its present hindrance to trade, and specially because there is no telling who may be drawn into the quarrel should it last much longer. If, therefore, diplomacy can do no more, if mediation has failed, and if France will insist upon enforcing her claims, the quicker the work is done the better. The world cannot afford to stand by whilst France wears out her own troops and simply massacres hundreds of Chinese. The spectacle would not under any circumstances be a pleasant one, and should it continue much longer, there may be an embarrassing amount of sympathy with China. Popular feeling often turns to the weaker side, and becomes a formidable factor in operations conducted against a real or supposed aggressor. This reinforcement may prove the beginning of the end.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

We have received a private telegram from Melbourne stating that yesterday Baron Mikiuho Maclay forwarded a cablegram to Prince Bismarck informing him that the Maclay coast natives reject the German annexation in New Guinea.

Although the recent correspondence between the Government and the Bank of New South Wales has been regarded as private so far as details are concerned, the summary of it which appeared in the Herald of the 8th instant was carefully compiled from the correspondence itself, to the extent that it has been printed. A rumour was circulated yesterday that a certain important letter had been omitted from our condensed report; but the rumour is without foundation. The substance of the letter referred to (which is last in point of date) appears in the first part of the précis. Yesterday the Government offered to place the whole correspondence and papers at our disposal for the purpose of publication, but the offer was coupled with conditions which we could not possibly accept.

We are informed that of the £2,250,000 which the associated banks have to advance to the Government, the sum of £1,500,000 must be secured, and not £750,000 only, as stated in our report on the Government banking account, published on Thursday. Only £750,000 will be advanced without security.

The English mails per Cuzco, dated London, 5th December, 1884, will arrive in Sydney to-day in time for delivery at about 2.30 p.m. from the General Post Office.

Some conception of the extent to which the tramways serve the citizens at holiday time may be had from the fact that on Boxing Day and New Year's Day about 340,000 fares were collected. The Boxing Day traffic was the heavier of the two, some 188,000 fares being gathered then as against very nearly 150,000 on New Year's Day.

In reference to a letter which appeared in our issue of yesterday on the subject of Christmas boxes to postmen, we have been requested to publish an extract from the minute which was issued by the Postmaster-General last month, from which it will be seen that postmen and telegraph-messengers were not forbidden to accept Christmas boxes; but they were forbidden to solicit them. The extract is as follows:—"In consequence of complaints which have frequently been made at this season of the year, the Postmaster-General directs it to be notified that any letter-carrier or telegraph-messenger complained of as having applied for what is usually termed a Christmas Box, will be reprimanded or punished as the nature of the case may require, and that any misconduct or neglect of duty on the part of a carrier or messenger with respect to any person who shall have declined to give a Christmas box, will lead to the immediate dismissal of the offender."

A description of the "camp" at Prospect, on the new system of water supply for Sydney, and in which so many cases of typhoid have recently occurred, will be found in another column.

At 6 a.m. yesterday the air was uncomfortably warm, and with its N.W. direction gave fair promise of the excessive heat which followed. By 9 a.m. the standard thermometer in the shade read 86·0, and the wind was very warm and dry, the sun's rays seemed almost to burn the skin. At noon the temperature had risen to 96·6, and the humidity fallen to 31°, representing the dryness of a true hot wind, with a temperature very seldom exceeded in Sydney. At 9 a.m. Moruya reported a southerly gale, and by noon the upper clouds of the approaching change were visible from Sydney, getting rapidly darker; but it was not until 2.25 that the lightning was seen, and the wind did not change to S. until 2.45 p.m. As the storm clouds passed over, the thunder and lightning were very heavy, several of the thunder peals particularly so. Very heavy rain fell for a few minutes, but the total was only 0.20 inches. At 2.45 the usual thunder storm curve appeared in the barometer record, i.e., the barometer rose rapidly 0.08 inches, then several small oscillations, and a gradual fall to the lowest point at 3.50 p.m. It then began to rise subject to many small variations. By 8 p.m. the temperature had fallen to 70 degrees.

Another case of smallpox was reported to the Government medical adviser last night. Up to a late hour, however, no particulars were obtainable as to where the outbreak had occurred.

We are informed that a requisition is being signed to the Mayor of Paddington, asking him to convene a public meeting to protest against the proposed increase in the tram fares.

An interesting competition will take place at the Exhibition building, Prince Alfred Park, this afternoon, between two local manufacturers of cooking ranges. The committee of the Wealth and Industrial Exhibition have issued complimentary invitations to some 70 gentlemen to partake of the food cooked in the ranges of each competitor. The test of merit will embrace not only results, but the means of producing them, in regard to consumption of fuel and other matters specified in the contest.

The Royal Commission on the conservation of water met on Thursday, the following members being present:—Mr. W. J. Lyne, M.L.A., president, in the chair; Mr. J. B. Donkin, Mr. F. A. Franklin, C.E.; Mr. F. B. Gipps, C.E.; and Mr. D. M'Mordie, B.E., C.E. A large amount of correspondence and routine business having been disposed of, Mr. C. Farterre, of Wilcannia, was examined, and gave the benefit of his long experience in the dry parts of the interior. On one occasion in 1870 while travelling in a circuitous easterly course from Balranald to Pooncairie, and thence to Wilcannia, he saw the country flooded to a distance of about 80 miles from the bank of the Darling, and the waters of the Lachlan, running through the Willandra Billabong, came down in a south-westerly direction to within 30 miles of the Darling waters. The Lachlan flood water, if assisted by mechanical means, would have ultimately reached Lake Gol Gol. In the north-west of New South Wales he observed that the Balloo River runs into a swamp, which in flood-time becomes an immense inland sea. The nature of the soil is such that this great body of water sinks into the ground and is lost. Considerable time was devoted by Mr. Farterre in explaining what means should be adopted to divert this water before reaching the swamp, and convey it through waterless country in the direction of the Darling. Instructions have been given to Mr. C. Havlock, licensed surveyor, to make a survey which will determine the practicability of diverting the waters of the Snowy River into the Murrumbidgee, and of storing a large body of water at Tantargara Plain, situated at the head of the Murrumbidgee River.

The Government have accepted the offer of the services of the proposed Cavalry Corps on the reserve or voluntary basis. A meeting of these gentlemen who have signified their intention of joining the corps will be held at the Oxford Hotel at 8 p.m. on Tuesday next. The business will be to consider the terms of enlistment, the details of the uniform, and the general formation of the corps. In connection with the infantry branch of the defences, arrangements have been made by the Brigade Office for the formation of new corps at Wagga Wagga, Moss Vale, Molong, Wellington, Lithgow, Blayney, and Wallsend, and the preparations for enrolment are complete. The infantry corps at Ulladulla, Tamworth, Mudgee, and Bulli are transferred from the reserve to the partially paid force, this step being necessary to preserve their efficiency.

The Rev. Father Cassidy of St. Francis' Roman Catholic Church, Sydney, was on Thursday evening last presented by the parishioners with a farewell address, accompanied by a beautiful gold watch, suitably inscribed, and a purse of sovereigns, prior to his departure for Moruya, of which district he has been appointed by his Grace Archbishop Moran as parish priest. Dr. Sheridan occupied the chair, and the address was read by Mr. John F. M'Crory. The recipient heartily thanked them for their kind gifts, and concluded by bidding them all "Good-bye." Father Cassidy left for Moruya yesterday afternoon.

The Inspector-General of Police is now filling up the complement of constables provided by Parliament for the current year. The rate of wages having been increased, only men possessing all requisite qualifications are selected. There are vacancies for about fifty recruits.

Attention is called to an alteration in the opening of the boys' department of the Fort-street school. The duties of the girls' and infants' departments only will be resumed on Monday next, the 12th instant; but the boys' school will be closed for another week in order to effect repairs, and will not, therefore, be opened till Monday, the 19th instant.

The monthly meeting of the Animals Protection Society was held on Wednesday last. Mr. Fosbery occupied the chair. There were present Messrs. J. Tait, H. D. Maddock, J. H. Hunt, W. Beaumont; the secretary, J. Sidney, and the inspector, G. Webber. The inspector reported having visited the sale yards at Homebush with the view of preventing the practice now in vogue of marking the cattle with tar. The summary of his report was as follows:—Prosecutions, 8; convictions, 8; cautions, 85: complaints, 10; cases investigated, 10.

The fifth of the series of meetings for united prayer was held in St. George's Church, Castlereagh-street, last evening. The attendance numbered about 60. The Rev. R. S. Paterson presided. The subject was "Prayer for the Nations," and an address having reference to it was given by the Rev. W. Taylor. To-night the last of the series of meetings will be held.

The regular monthly meeting of the committee of the Sydney Mechanics' School of Arts was held on Thursday evening, Mr. Vice-president Teece being in the chair. The members present were—Vice-president Dalgarno, Messrs. N. Dowling, Jones, Neitenstein, Scott, Thomas, and Walker. The treasurer's report showed receipts for the month of December amounting to £73 14s. 4d., with a credit balance at the bank of £77 18s. 6d. on the 31st ultimo; since which date the receipts from subscriptions and rent had amounted to £425, against which there were accounts for the month of £410 2s. 6d. A proposal to admit schoolboys and apprentices at a reduced subscription was negatived, on the ground that the present terms for the library and reading-room were within the reach of all who were disposed to take advantage of them. A further proposal to close the library at 8 o'clock for the relief of the assistants was considered, and a record was directed to be kept for one month of the number of members applying for books between the hours of 8 and 9 p.m. A return of the attendance of the officers was laid upon the table, showing that the three assistants were engaged from 8.45 a.m. to 9 p.m. on four days of the week, by which arrangement there were always two at the counter. The secretary was authorised to combine the receipts for subscriptions with the ticket of membership. A request from Mrs. Crowley for the use of the hall for Kindergarten classes was declined, it being let to the Technical Board. The draft report was submitted by the secretary, and referred to a sub-committee to revise and arrange for publication.

The Presbyterian Sunday-school, Union-street, Pyrmont, held their annual picnic at Clontarf, on the 27th ultimo. A very large gathering of parents and friends accompanied the school. Ample provision and amusements were provided for the little folks. All were safely landed at Pyrmont by 7 p.m., after a pleasant outing.

On New Year's Day, the centreboard sailing-boat Sophia, with a crew of five men, capsized in the harbour, off Cremorne, during the strong north-easterly wind which prevailed at the time. The crew clung to the boat, all being good swimmers except one, who was kept above water by the others till he was taken from his perilous position by Mr. Farquhar Martin, who in a light skiff placed him horizontally across the stern of his boat, so as to balance the frail craft, and then pulled him ashore. Had not such timely assistance arrived it is impossible to say what would have been the result, as it was some time before additional assistance arrived. A sailing-boat put off from one of the ships at anchor close by, but was unable to reach the capsized boat. All were subsequently rescued, apparently none the worse for their immersion.

Yesterday morning a collision between two trams occurred near the terminal station in Bridge-street. The trams were travelling in opposite directions, the one to and the other from the station. Midway in Bridge-street the lines are so laid that a tram can be switched from one set to the other, and it was whilst this was being done that the collision occurred. Happily it was of little consequence, there being no passengers on either tram, and the only damage done was the tearing away of portion of the side wood of one of the motors.

Yesterday morning about 8 o'clock an accident occurred to a fireman on the Glebe tram line, which resulted in serious injury to the man. The fireman in question, whose name is said to be Reynolds, and who is quite a young fellow, appears, from the statement made to us, to have left his own motor and to have run after another which was at the time in motion, the intention being to speak to a friend of Reynolds's, who was on the second motor. In attempting to jump on the motor, Reynolds slipped and fell, his foot getting beneath the wheel, which crushed it severely. He was at once removed to the residence of the nearest medical man.

If there be one offence which is more mean and contemptible than any other, it is that which, unfortunately, has become almost peculiarly characteristic of a certain class in our community, that of the use of obscene and filthy language. A glance at the charge sheets of any of our police courts will convince any person of the frequency with which this offence against society and manhood is perpetrated. We are glad to learn that one of the stipendiary magistrates of this city, Mr. Buchanan, has expressed his intention of in future punishing this offence with the utmost severity. Hitherto, the general rule in cases not presenting features peculiarly disgusting has been to inflict a fine of 40s., or in default of payment to order the offender to be imprisoned for 14 days. Yesterday a batch of persons accused of the offence referred to were brought before Mr. Buchanan, and he inflicted fines of £5, or, in default, ordered imprisonment for three months.

A slight outbreak of fire took place on Thursday night on the premises of George Tims, No. 8, Goulburn-place, off Goulburn-street. A bed and some bedding in a back room on the ground floor were slightly damaged. A few buckets of water quenched the fire. A fire occurred between 11 and 12 o'clock yesterday morning, in the Wesleyan Cemetery, Devonshire-street. It is supposed to have been caused by the heat of the sun. Nearly the whole of the grass in the graveyard was destroyed, and a quantity of fencing around the graves was damaged. The outbreak was extinguished by members of the No. 4 Volunteer Company, assisted by the Metropolitan Fire Brigade. Considerable difficulty was experienced in obtaining a supply of water, owing to the iron lids of the hydrant boxes being so corroded with rust that they had to be broken off before the standpipe could be inserted. Had the conflagration been a large one, the delay thus occasioned would have been very serious.

Bananas, says the Straits Times, are not thoroughly ripe and luscious until they part readily from the stem. To have to yank and twist to get one from the bunch is proof of immaturity. Several bunches hanging in the house between a cool, airy pantry and a warm, airy living room will afford a family supply. Bananas behave in ripening somewhat as peas do. The selectmen of Banana Islands keep a string of bunches, hung by pulleys or cords along the peaks of the thatched roofs of their bamboo houses. They lower down bunch after bunch in selecting perfect fruit for a guest.

THE SAMOAN ISLANDS AND NEW ZEALAND.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own correspondent.)

WELLINGTON, Friday.

Great excitement has been occasioned during the last few days by the mysterious movements of the Government steamer Hinemoa. It officially transpired that on December 27 the Government received a telegram from the Agent-General stating that the British Ambassador at Berlin believed that Germany intended to annex Samoa, or proclaim a protectorate over the Navigator Islands. The Cabinet was hastily convened on December 31, and Sir Julius Vogel pointed out the imperative necessity of the New Zealand Government taking immediate steps to prevent these islands falling under the dominion of a foreign Power. The Cabinet requested the Governor to communicate with the Earl of Derby as follows:—"My advisers deem the annexation of Samoa by New Zealand imperative, and have resolved on that step and strongly urge the Royal assent to Sir G. Grey's Confederation Act of 1883." The following is understood to be the substance of Lord Derby's reply:—"The Government disapprove of the proposed annexation, pending present negotiations, and decline to advise Royal assent to Act specified." The Government have again urged Lord Derby to reconsider his decision. The Hinemoa is ready to leave at a moment's notice.

THE BOOTMAKERS' STRIKE IN MELBOURNE.

[By Telegraph.]
(From our own correspondent.)

MELBOURNE, Friday.

The Operative Bootmakers' Union held a meeting yesterday afternoon, at which 900 persons were present. A resolution was passed to the effect that, owing to the unreasonable demands of the manufacturers' negotiations for conciliation had failed, and expressing a hope they would withdraw their objection to Mr. Trenwith representing the Union. The meeting also passed a resolution to the effect that to submit the principal points in dispute to arbitration would be subversive of the fundamental principle of trades unionism; but as they understood manufacturers did not now insist on the resolution they posted in their factories on the 17th of November, and that the differences were only questions of detail, the union would not object to submit. There is delay in arbitration, as the manufacturers have not taken any further steps, and will not do so until the union resolutions reach them. They, however, entirely disown having drawn up the resolution posted in November.

The convict Barnes, who alleges that he murdered Mr. J. B. Slack, of South Melbourne, in October last, is stated to be a raving lunatic. No decision has yet been come to by law officers of the Crown as to what action shall be taken on his confession. The desirableness of transferring him to a lunatic asylum is under consideration.

Richard Summers was sentenced in November, 1883, to 12 months' imprisonment for feloniously receiving, and to four years' imprisonment for robbery in company, the sentences being cumulative. Efforts to establish his innocence on the latter charge were begun some months ago, and sufficient evidence having been brought forward to cause doubts as to his guilt, Summers has been liberated.

Warden Towner's report on the Johnstone River rush, states that the whole country is covered with a dense jungle, which makes prospecting difficult. In the main river there are large beaches which contain gold, from colours up to three grains per dish. Gold also exists in almost all the creeks and ravines. There can be no doubt that heavy deposits exist in the locality, but so far the Europeans have failed to discover payable gold, though the Chinese have obtained it in several places. There are no stores there, and it is likely that there will be great distress until after the wet season. At present it is only a field for prospecting, which none but old miners should attempt, and then not until after the wet season.

Mr. James Nash, who discovered Gympie, and made a large sum of money there, but who is now in reduced circumstances, has been appointed powder magazine keeper at Gympie. TASMANIA.

HOBART, FRIDAY.

Much dissatisfaction is expressed here at the telegraphic statement of Mr. Service's endeavours to get up a meeting of the Premiers in Melbourne. This is regarded as a grand mistake, as the opportunities of the Premiers being here will be lost, and the movement is looked upon as a slight to the Ministry of this colony, and further it is doubted whether it will be possible to get a meeting in Melbourne, as jealousies will be revived, and the old dissatisfaction with Mr. Service's claims to lead the movement be renewed. Tasmania is looked upon as neutral ground, and the occasion is most favourable to the meeting proposed here.

THE RECENT DROWNING CASES NEAR WAGGA WAGGA.

[BY TELEGRAPH.]

(FROM OUR OWN CORRESPONDENT.)

WAGGA WAGGA, FRIDAY.

An inquest was held to-day, before Mr. L. A. Fosbery, the district coroner, and a jury of five, at North Berry Jerry, touching the deaths of Mary Ann Horrock and her eldest son, Frederick Horrock, who were drowned in a tank of water on the selection of John Robins. The evidence of Andrew Charles Horrock, labourer, in the employment of Mr. John Robins, was to the effect that he was returning from work on Wednesday at about 5 o'clock, when he was informed that his wife and son were drowned. With the assistance of a man named Webster, he took the bodies from the water. John Robins stated that he heard the screams of children proceeding from the direction of the tank close to Horrock's hut, and saw Horrock's two little children crying on the bank. They told him that their mother had jumped into the water after Freddy, her eldest son. He failed to find the bodies. Catherine Horrock, aged six years, stated that her brother Frederick went to the tank for water with his younger brother, aged three. Hearing the child scream, Mrs. Horrock sent witness to ascertain the cause, and on arriving at the tank she saw her brother's heels above the water. On hearing the alarm her mother ran down to the tank and sprang into the water, which was eight feet deep, and sank at once. John Robins, jun., deposed that his father ran in the direction of Horrock's tank and saw the hair of Mrs. Horrock on the surface as she was sinking. He sprang in, but, being flurried, failed to reach the body, and only saved himself with difficulty. The jury returned a verdict of death from accidental drowning.

The output at the collieries in the immediate vicinity of Lithgow during 1884 was 153,350 tons of coal, being a decrease of nearly 30,000 tons as compared with that of the previous year. The average output for the Government alone during the last few days was over 70 trucks, which mostly contain over six tons each.

At the adjourned inquest into the cause of death of Mrs. Margaret Stack, of Tarana, the jury returned a verdict that her death was the result of poisoning, and that the poison was self-administered.

YOUNG, FRIDAY.

A serious accident happened on Saturday last at Marengo. A son of Mr. P. Kearin, whilst running, stumbled and fell upon the neck of a broken bottle, which entered his abdomen, causing a portion of the entrails to protrude. Dr. Healy was telegraphed for and attended, adopting the necessary medical remedies.

Between 6 and 7 o'clock this morning a fire broke out in Mr. Thoms' tannery and boot factory on Main Creek. Mr. Thoms had lit the boiler fire and left for breakfast. There was a strong wind blowing at the time, and it is supposed that a spark was carried to some pieces of bark lying near the tan pits and close to the workshop. This bark becoming ignited, the fire was carried to the building. Mr. Thoms made every effort to extinguish the flames, but in the absence of assistance, without success, although there was plenty of water in the tan-pits and elsewhere. The whole of the machinery used in the boot factory was destroyed. Mr. Thoms estimates his loss at £400, which is partially covered by insurance in the Commercial Union Insurance Company. It is also complained that it is impossible to obtain trucks for intermediate markets without first consulting Sydney. If there were 150 trucks in the yard here the local authorities could not give one for Orange, Bathurst, or any other market without authority from Sydney; and in one case three days elapsed before a reply was received to an application, a heavy loss being occasioned by the delay. This state of things has been going on for months.

A distressing accident happened this week at Nana Creek, where a teamster named Franter was working his team of four horses. He was engaged drawing quartz with his dray and a sledge. The country was on fire and when he was approaching a spot known as Eureka tunnel the fire gathered into a body, fanned by the wind; the flames rising to a considerable height, the horses took fright, bolted, and, with the dray, went over a cutting, the vehicle being then held by the sledge. The fire got round the entangled animals, while the driver, protecting his head with a nose-feeding bag, was doing his best to cut the animals loose. Eventually he succeeded in getting all out, but the shafter, which was so burnt as to die when it fell out of the shafts. The three horses were all burnt more or less, and the harness was destroyed, the dray also was very much burnt. Franter was a good deal scorched, and was so exhausted by the heat and the efforts he had made to save the animals, that he was unable for some time to walk to his hut, and probably would not have reached it, but for a man bringing him water carried in his hat. Bush fires have been raging for some time around Nana Creek District, where the country is very dry.

A good shower fell this afternoon, the rain being very much needed.

FIRST DAY.

WOLLONGONG, FRIDAY.

Wollongong was en fête to-day, on the occasion of the cricket match between the English Eleven and 22 of the Wollongong district. Considering that the morning was terribly hot, with a fierce westerly breeze, and that a thunderstorm broke over the town about 2 o'clock, the attendance was very good. The match was played on matting wickets on the local racecourse, and the wickets played well, but the outfielding ground was not good. The Englishmen won the toss, and going in first remained in possession of the wickets all the afternoon, scoring 171 runs. Shrewsbury, who was in four hours, made the top score, and was caught out at last off a splendid hit, which would have been out of any ordinary cricket ground. Flowers and Barnes also shaped well for their runs, the former being very free. The Twenty-two fielded well and made some splendid catches. The most successful bowlers were Russell, with five wickets for 43 runs, and James, with three for 22 runs. No fewer than ten bowlers were tried. The local men fancy their chances amazingly. The visitors were well received by the residents. The game will be resumed to-morrow morning at 11 o'clock, and after the match the Englishmen leave, at 8 o'clock, for Candelo, where they are to play on Monday and Tuesday.

WAREHOUSEMEN'S INTERCOLONIAL CRICKET MATCH.

MELBOURNE, FRIDAY.

The annual cricket match between teams from the Warehousemen representing the colonies of Victoria and New South Wales was commenced to-day on the Warehousemen's Cricket Ground. The visiting team won the toss, and went in first. Patrick and Alderson were the only players who could do anything with the bowling of Coupar and Wilson. Patrick played a good innings for 25. On the side of the Victorians success was also confined to one pair of batsmen, Gunn, with 33, and Gibson, 25, being the only double figure scores. Colbran and Alderson did best amongst the bowlers of the visiting colony, each getting four wickets. In their second innings the Sydney Warehousemen made a better stand, and when time was called they had lost six wickets for 150 runs. The visitors were entertained at luncheon in a marquee on the ground, when Mr. Battersbury proposed their healths. The Sydney captain, Mr. Chapman, responded. The match will be continued to-morrow. The scores are as follows:—

In addition to the club's periodical prizes shot for during the past six months, Captain John Cooper, a vice-president of the club, offered a prize value £10 for the best aggregate of six scores (off the rifle) at the six club competitions held during the half-year ending December 31, 1884. This was a most crucial test of good shooting, as one bad score was likely to put any competitor clear out of the race. The result proved a very close contest between Mr. Slade and Mr. Board. After four competitions Mr. Slade was leading by 8 points, with the magnificent aggregate of 242 points, giving an average of 60·5 points per 14 shots. At the fifth competition Mr. Slade made his lowest score, 51 points; and Mr. Board, making 60, put the latter to the front by one point. However, at the sixth and final competition, Mr. Board, making only 52 points, was passed by Mr. Slade, who made 56 points, and thus placed himself first, with an aggregate of 349 points, against Mr. Board's 346; Mr. Slade thus winning the trophy by 3 points only, after a contest extending over six months. Below is a list of the competitors, with their respective scores, each competition being at the ranges 500 and 600 yards, 7 shots at each distance, with one sighting shot; Henry rifle.

AMUSEMENTS.

THEATRES, &c.

"Little Red Riding Hood" was repeated at the Theatre Royal last night, and was enjoyed by a large audience.

At the Opera House Mr. Luscombe Searelle took a benefit, and "Bobadil" went very crispy, as though all the performers had put forth their best endeavours to make the entertainment an enjoyable one. A notable change in the cast was that Miss Frances Saville played the part of Princess Zorayda, Miss Plaisted being still too unwell to appear. To the surprise and pleasure of the large audience present, she sang the music excellently, every one of her solos and one or two concerted numbers in which she took part being encored. Her acting was spirited and appropriate, and no one would have thought that her impersonation was the result of a short study. "Bobadil" will be repeated to-night.

"Il Trovatore" was reproduced at the Gaiety Theatre last night, and was sung splendidly, Miss Annis Montague—her voice refreshed by a week of rest—being heard at her very best, and Mr. Turner worthily seconding her efforts. Mr. England was the Count di Luna, and Miss Lambert the Azucena. The opera will be repeated to-night, and the programme for next week is as follows:—Monday, "Lucia;" Tuesday, "Fra Diavolo;" Wednesday, "Lucrezia Borgia;" Thursday, "Carmen;" Friday (benefit of Miss Annis Montague), "Faust;" Saturday, "Bohemian Girl."

At the Academy of Music, Hiscock's Federal Minstrels will produce this evening a programme containing several novelties.

ST. LEONARDS MASONIC HALL.

Under the auspices of the Samaritan Lodge, E.C., a fine new Masonic Hall has just been erected in St. Leonards, and though not yet quite completed in all its details, the building was so far advanced as to allow of the celebration of its erection by a concert in the large hall last night. The place, which was designed by Mr. J. J. Lough, and built by Messrs. Townsend and Bashford, has a handsome front elevation in brick and stucco, and supplies North Shore with what it has long required—a comfortable large hall. The principal room intended for public use measures 60 feet by 40 feet, and is 30 feet high, with a lantern roof and side windows. It will easily seat 800 people, and is perfectly ventilated. Six side-doors, opening outwards, provide ample means of exit in case of fire; and Superintendent Gorman, of the St. Leonards Brigade, who was present at the concert with a detachment of his men, expresses his full satisfaction with the arrangements which touch his duties. The front of the building is two stories high, and comprises the rooms required for the working of the Samaritan Lodge, which has been enterprising enough to spend something like £4000 or £5000 upon its new accommodation. The lodgeroom, measuring 50 feet by about 30 feet, has been handsomely furnished, at very little expense to the lodge itself, various individual brethren having very readily borne the cost of the different items of furniture, which represents an expenditure of £400 or £500. The following are the present officers of the lodge:—P.M., Bro. J. Grimley; W. M., Bro. W. H. Tulloh; S. W., Bro. W. J. M'Leod; J. W., Bro. S. Kendall; S. D., Bro. D. Fisher; J. D., Bro. J. Higgins; I. G., Bro. W. H. Hudson; Tyler, Bro. R. Clough; Secretary, Bro. C. Shaw; Treasurer, Bro. G. V. James; stewards, Bros. W. Perry, J. Williams, R. Brindley, and B. Storer; organist, Bro. Willson; musical director, Bro. M'Lean. The concert, which was carried out under the management of Mr. J. P. Seager Willson, was an interesting one, and, but for the indisposition of Madame Vogrich, which prevented her from fulfilling all her engagements on the programme, it passed off successfully. Madame Vogrich delighted the audience in the first part of the concert with "Sing sweet Bird," but evidently sang it with some distress to herself; consequently, it was little surprise when the announcement was made from the stage that, acting under medical advice, she would not sing again that evening. Under Herr Vogrich's baton, a chorus of some 30 voices from the Sydney Liedertafel opened the programme with Genée's amusing conceit, "Italian Salad," in which the solo was taken by Mr. Peir, and this was followed by an arrangement of Haydn's "Emperor's Hymn," for two violins, viola, and violoncello, Mons. de Willimoff, Herren Gumprich and Greiner, and Mr. C. M. Deane being the artists who played. Mozart's calm soulful composition, "Within these hallowed Walls" was sung with tender grace by Mr. F. J. Hallewell, who was subsequently encored for "Simon the Cellarer," and in response he sang "Vanity." Herr Vogrich himself contributed two pianoforte solos to the entertainment, consisting of a fantasia on airs from "Aida," and a serenade staccato movement, all of his own composition. The pianist, as usual, received a warm recognition of his ability from the audience. Mons. de Willimoff played one of his charming violin solos, selecting on this occasion a "Legende" by Wieniawsky and Mr. F. C. contributed an interesting clarionet solo. Among the other numbers were Schubert's andante for four strings (op 26), Abt's "Ave Maria," and Kücken's "Miner's Song," the two glees being sung by the members of the Liedertafel, Mr. Willson taking the anvil in the second one, which ended the programme. Mr. J. Massey acted as accompanist during the evening with success.

The influence of railroads on the growth of cities is ably discussed in a German paper. In the beginning of the last century Berlin was already the capital of a powerful kingdom, but great difficulty was encountered in provisioning a large population in the centre of the arid Markish province, despite the efforts of the Prussian monarchs, who contributed large sums to the enlargement and embellishment of the city, which, in 1740, counted 90,000 inhabitants. This number, which rose to 126,700 in 1755 fell to 92,400 in 1758, not counting the military; was 98,000 in 1762; 119,000, including the soldiers, in 1763; and in 1786, at the time of the death of Frederick the Great, it had risen again to 147,000, inclusive of the garrison (34,000 men). In 1790 the population of Berlin was estimated at 120,000, and the difficulty of provisioning so large a city was freely discussed in the papers, being chiefly due to the fact that the Markish peasant, in carting his goods to market over the bad roads, consumed on the journey more than half their market value. In 1843, when the influence of the railroads first made itself felt, Berlin contained 330,230 inhabitants, which number thereafter increased rapidly, namely, to 547,000 in 1861, to 826,000 in 1871, and reached 1,122,330 in 1880, showing an increase of nearly 800,000 in 37 years. Within the same period the population of Breslau rose from 103,000 to 272,911; that of Hamburg, in 22 years (1858 to 1880), from 175,683 to 289,859; that of Dresden from 117,750 to 220,318. Comparing this progressive increase of population with that of some of the cities in England, where the extended seaboard and canals had favoured the growth long before the introduction of railroads, it will be seen that the development in England was a much slower one. In France the increase of the city population was far less still, just as the general growth of population is but insignificant. The influence of railroads in this respect is characteristically well manifested in Norway, where the population of Christiania, the only centre of an extended railway network, rose from 38,959 in 1855 to 122,033 in 1882, leaving Bergen, formerly the largest city in that country, far behind.

COMMERCIAL.

WOOL, PRODUCE, AND STOCK SALES.

WOOL.—At the auction sales this week 11,990 bales were offered, composed largely of inferior to medium greasy descriptions, though there is now a larger proportion of washed clips than there was earlier in the season. Good greasy wool commands ready sale at well maintained prices, but the competition for inferior flags, and the auctioneers find a difficulty in getting late rates for their constituents. A considerable quantity was passed either for private sale or shipment. Washed fleece is in better request, and scoured lots continue to move off freely; 7954 bales were sold publicly and privately. Quotations: Medium to good greasy, 9d. to 11d.; inferior, from 6d.; fleece, from 13d. to 16d., the best lots offered being only of medium quality; scoured fair to good, 17d. to 19½d.; other descriptions from 8d.

SHEEPSKINS.—At the auction sales of the week there was brisk competition at prices about equal to those lately ruling. Superior lots, 6d. to 7d.; medium, 4d. to 5d.; pelts and short growth, from 1½d.

HIDES.—At yesterday's sales 5631 were offered and 4632 sold. There was a fair demand, and the late rates were well maintained. Quotations: Extra heavies, 4½d. to 4¾d.; a few exceptional lots up to 4¼d.; heavies, 4d. to 4½d.; medium, 3½d. to 4d.; light, 3¼d. to 3½d.; dry and station, 3½d. to 4½d. per lb. Horsehides are worth from 5s. 6d. to 6s. 6d. for large, and 2s. 6d. to 4s. 6d. for small and medium. Kangaroo skins: Supply has fallen off; best realise 25s. to 39s.; medium, 14s. to 24s.; small, 6s. to 13s.; wallaby, 2s. to 4s.; opossum, 2s. to 6s. per doz.

TALLOW.—480 packages were offered, and 107 sold. The market was easier, owing to a great extent to the unfavourable news from the London market. There was not much animation in the competition, and only a limited business was transacted, principally for trade parcels. Shippers continue to hold off for lower prices. Quotations: Beef, £27 to £29 per ton; mutton, £28 to £29 10s. per ton; mixed and station, £26 to £27 per ton.

LEATHER.—The late sales were thinly attended. A limited business was done with a slight reduction in values on some descriptions. There was a little more inquiry for harness goods. Medium and inferior lines of dressed goods were very dull of sale. Quotations: Sole, heavy, 11d. to 12d.; medium, 9½d. to 10d.; light, 8½d. to 9d.; kip, best, 14½d. to 16d.; medium, 12d. to 13d.; cow tweed, 14d. to 21d.; yearling tweed, 19d. to 24d.; calf tweed, 20d. to 28d.; waxed calf, 24d. to 30d.; harness, 9d. to 12d. per lb.; bag, 7s. to 11s.; bridle, 6s. to 11s. 6d.; basils, 6s. to 11s. per doz.

HAIR.—Under this head the supply at the late sales was larger than in the previous week. The demand continues good. The quotations are:—Horsetail, 17½d. to 19½d. per lb. Mane, 9d. to 1s. Cow-washed, 12d. to 13d. Cow-stumps, 6d. to 8d. Mixed, 11d. to 13d. per lb.

HORNS AND BONES.—At the late sales there was an average supply of both descriptions offered, with active demand. Quotations: Large, 25s. to 35s. per 100; medium, 12s. to 25s.; small, 6s. to 13s.; tips, 1s. 6d. to 6s. per 100. Bones: Shank bones, 5s. 9d. to 11s. 3d. per cwt.; common, £2 15s. to £3 per ton.

STORE CATTLE.—The drought still operates to prevent business, and no change can be noted in quotations. Bullocks, 60s. to 90s.; cows, 40s. to 50s.

STORE SHEEP.—For this class of property also the demand continues restricted, and only first-class are in demand. Young ewes, 9s. 6d. to 11s.; others from 8s.; wethers, 4s. 6d. to 6s.

STATIONS.—Under this head no business has been reported.

HORSES.—There was a decided improvement in business during the week. A large number of horses from all parts of the country was offered at the various auction bazaars. Only first-class animals have brought good values, some others having been difficult to dispose of. Good heavy draught horses were in demand at from £30 to £46; active draught and van horses, from £20 to £33; saddle and buggy horses, from £25 to £33. Good carriage pairs are inquired for, and may be quoted at from £80 to £140.

PRODUCE MARKET.—FRIDAY.

The markets at Darling Harbour were well attended by the trade. The demand for forage continues active for prime descriptions of oaten and wheaten hay. There was brisk competition for lucerne truss, oaten in sheaves and bundles, and oaten and wheaten in bundles. Oaten chaff was also in good demand. All descriptions of wood were in demand owing to the smallness of the supply. On the wharfs there was a fair supply of produce forward from the Northern and Southern rivers and Victoria. Potatoes and onions were easier. Business was fairly active, principally for hay and dairy produce. There was also a better inquiry for grain, especially for maize. At Darling Harbour sales, the following prices were realised:—

Wood.—Short market. Brisk sales of all descriptions at per ton:—Billet wood, 11s. to 13s.; bundlewood, 13s. to 17s.; footwood 13s. to 15s. 6d.; bakers', 11s to 12s. 6d.

Hay.—Good supplies. Market continues firm for prime descriptions of hay. Competition active for oaten in sheaves and bundles, oaten and wheaten in bundles, and lucerne in truss. Oaten in bundles, 3s. 6d. per cwt.; inferior, 3s. to 3s. 3d.; truss, 4s. 2d. to 4s. 9d.; sheaves, 3s. to 4s. 10d.; lucerne, in truss, 5s. to 5s. 6d.; wheaten, in bundles, 4s. 9d.; sheaves, 2s. 8d.; oaten and wheaten, in bundles, 4s. to 5s. 2d.; lucerne and wheaten, in truss, 3s. 2d.

Straw.—Small supplies forward. Market shade firmer. Clean, in bales, 3s. 3d. to 3s. 4d. per cwt.

Chaff.—Demand improved. Fair consignments. Oaten, in bags, 4s. 2d. to 5s. 8d. per cwt.

Potatoes.—A quantity at 5s. to 5s. 10d. per cwt.

Pumpkins.—At 5s. 7d. to 5s. 8d. per dozen.

On the wharfs the following are the quotations:—

Maize.—Stocks augmented by a Clarence River shipment which was received last night. In this line there seems to be a better inquiry, selling steadily up to 4s. 10d. per bushel for prime sound samples; weevily, 4s. 4d. to 4s. 6d.

Oats.—No change under this head. 349 bags from Victoria last night. Stocks moving off slowly up to 3s. 2d. for feed. Seed, no inquiry.

Barley.—Sales of New Zealand at 3s. per bushel; Cape nominally worth 3s. 6d.

Bran.—Supplies equal to the requirements. Quiet sales at 10½d. to 11d. per bushel.

Pollard.—In moderate request up to 1s. per bushel.

Hay.—Only small additions to stocks continue to arrive owing to the dry weather on the Hunter River. Brisk sales. Business active. Wharfs poorly supplied. Prime green lucerne, £5 10s. to £5 15s. per ton; other qualities, from £4 to £5.

Chaff.—400 bags to hand from Victoria last night, being the smallest supply for the week. Fair sales of Victorian at £4 15s. to £5 15s. per ton.

Onions.—In consequence of supplies coming in more freely the market is easier. 630 bags from Melbourne last night, and consignments from the Hunter River this morning. Selling fairly at £4 10s. to £5 per ton for Victorian. Hunter River realised by auction 5s. per cwt.

Potatoes.—Market weaker. 3200 bags were received last night from Melbourne. Supplies also from the Hunter River this morning. Steady sales. Victoria garden potatoes, £4 per ton; Warrnambool, £4 15s. to £5. Hunter River descriptions sold by auction at 3s. 9d. to 5s. per cwt.

Butter.—Stocks replenished from the Southern ports this morning. Illawarra selling freely at 1s. 3d. per lb.; intercolonial packed quoted at 9d. to 11d.

Cheese.—Moderate sales of colonial at 5d. to 8d. per lb.; New Zealand quoted at 7d. to 8d.

Bacon.—Steady demand. Hand-cured Southern, 10d. to 11d. per lb.; machine-cured, 8½d. to 9½d.; Northern rivers, 6d. to 8d. Hams up to 1s. 1d.

Lard.—Finely rendered, in bladders, 7½d. per lb.; in keg, 5d. to 6d.

Honey.—Good and clear salable up to 5½d. per lb.; other sorts, from 3½d.

Beeswax.—Steady sales, according to quality, at 9d. to 1s. per lb.

SMALLPOX v. VACCINATION.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE HERALD.

Sir,—Dr. Macarthy accuses me of insinuating that Sir Thomas Watson is an anti-vaccinator. If your readers think it worth, while they will find, by referring to my first letter, that I did nothing of the kind. The question concerning which I cited that physician was solely as to the risks of disease. Sir Thomas candidly admits the risk, calling it an "ugly blot" upon the practice which he otherwise extols. The opinion was not expressed in a medical journal known only to professional readers, but in a literary magazine open to the whole reading public, viz., the Nineteenth Century; so that any attempt at imposture concerning it would be too transparent for any writer, even if dishonest, to make.

It is not surprising that medical men, in their zeal for what they believe to be a valuable method of treatment, should be reluctant to admit an adverse fact. Actuated by the same zeal, the profession for many years denied even the existence of vaccino-syphilis. But facts became too strong for the illusion. No less renowned a surgeon than M. Ricord, speaking when the controversy was at its height (19th May, 1863), has told us with what difficulty his first faith was shaken. "At first I repelled the idea that syphilis could be transmitted by vaccination. The recurrence of facts becoming more and more confirmatory, I accepted the possibility of this mode of transmission, I should say, with reserve, and even with repugnance, but to-day I hesitate no more to proclaim their reality."

Dr. Macarthy represents me as describing the recruits in the French army during the Franco-Prussian war, "as a rule, to have been unvaccinated." My statement was that "re-vaccination was not universally carried out with regard to the recruits," a very different thing.

Dr. Macarthy charges me with "perversion" in stating that Jenner had recourse to "grease" in the horse as a source of lymph for vaccination purposes, maintaining that it was not grease but horsepox which he used. This is a question which only Jenner can decide. To him let us appeal. "There is a disease in the horse termed the grease," says he, "which may be the source of smallpox." The fact is that Jenner not only used the matter from the heels of greasy horses, but, when the natural supply failed, endeavoured to produce grease artificially.

"I even," he says, "procured a young horse, kept him constantly in the stable, and fed him with beans to make his heels swell, but to no purpose."

Dr. Thompson, if I understand him aright, impugns everything I have said, and considers that the mouths of all those whose opinions are adverse to his own upon the question of vaccination ought to be shut—at least so far as the public press is concerned. The facts I have adduced are, I admit, uncomfortable for us all; but I am not answerable for that. I did not make them.

Dr. Thompson instances a case (very like that of Dr. Cory) of an officer of the local government board who was three times vaccinated from a syphilitic source. He escaped twice, but fell a victim on the third occasion. What does this prove? Simply that a person is not equally susceptible at all times to the syphilitic poison. One in three would be a terrible risk. But it does not follow that because the disease does not show that it has not taken effect. It may be latent for months or even years.

Dr. Thompson states that "the mortality from smallpox has in England been under compulsory vaccination only half what it was under voluntary vaccination." I state exactly the reverse. One of us must be in error. The question is one not of medicine but of statistics, and can be determined only by the reports of the Registrar-General. From those reports the following figures were compiled and verified at the Registrar-General's Office, Somerset House, February 13, 1877. The facts they indicate were admitted in Parliament by Mr. Sclater-Booth.

"Vaccination was made compulsory by Act of Parliament in the year, 1853; again in 1867, and still more stringent in 1871. Since 1853 there have been three epidemics of smallpox.

Date.	Deaths from Smallpox.
1st 1857-8-9	14,244
2nd 1863-4-5	20,059
3rd 1870-1-2	44,840

Increase of population from 1st to 2nd epidemic, 7 per cent.; increase of smallpox in the same period nearly 50 per cent.; increase of population from 2nd to 3rd epidemic, 10 per cent.; increase of smallpox in same period, 120 per cent.; deaths from smallpox in first 10 years after enforcement of vaccination (1854 to 1863), 33,515; in the second 10 years (1864 to 1873), 70,458."

To come down to a later date, Dr. Cameron, the recognised champion of vaccination in the House of Commons, writing in the Times in 1881, remarks: "Since 1836 our statistics have been compiled so as to enable us to compare the mortality, not merely of smallpox, occurring in all classes of vaccinated persons at different periods, but in each separate class of vaccinated persons—in persons, that is, with one, two, three, or four good or indifferent marks. I have gone into these details, and found that not only has the mortality in smallpox occurring after vaccination progressively increased in the aggregate, but it has increased in each class of cases, and increased enormously in the best vaccinated class of cases." I am, &c.,

DR. DUSART'S (of Paris) SYRUP OF LACTO-PHOSPHATE OF LIME.

Phosphate of Lime is the substance most necessary to life; indispensable for the formation and nutriment of the bony system as for the transformation of food into muscular fibre. For PALE AND DELICATE CHILDREN suffering from LOSS OF APPETITE, and subject to SCABS, MUMPS, ERUPTIONS of the SKIN, and DEFORMITIES of the LEGS, Dusart's Syrup is the right medicine. It is of inestimable benefit to CONVALESCENTS, WEAK and OLD PEOPLE, and RICKETY CHILDREN, who find in it the CALCAREOUS ELEMENTS—entering into the CONSTITUTION of the BONES—and thus enables children to cut their teeth without convulsions. Well adapted to LADIES in the FAMILY-WAY, WETNURSES (whose milk it enriches), and to stop CHILDREN'S DIARRHŒA.

Sold by all chemists throughout the colonies.

STEEDMAN'S SOOTHING POWDERS FOR CHILDREN CUTTING TEETH. CAUTION TO PURCHASERS.

The value of this well-known Family Medicine has been largely tested in all parts of the world, and by all grades of society, for upwards of FIFTY YEARS. Its well-earned extensive sale has induced SPURIOUS IMITATIONS, some of which, in OUTWARD APPEARANCE, so closely resemble the original as to have deceived many purchasers. The proprietor, therefore, feels it due to the public to give a special caution against the use of such imitations.

Purchasers are therefore requested carefully to observe the four following distinctive characteristics, without which none are genuine:—

1. In every case the words JOHN STEEDMAN, Chemist, Walworth, Surrey, are engraved on the Government stamp affixed to EACH PACKET.
2. Each SINGLE POWDER has directions for the dose, and the words "John Steedman, chemist, Walworth, Surrey," printed thereon.
3. The name Steedman is always spelt with the two EE's.
4. The manufacture is carried on solely at Walworth, Surrey.

Sold in packets by all Chemists and Medicine Vendors at 1s 1½d and 2s 9d each. Sold in Sydney by ELLIOTT BROTHERS.

PETER MOLLER'S COD LIVER OIL cannot be excelled, or even equalled. This is evidenced by the continual awards (nineteen) whenever and wherever it is exhibited in competition with the best samples of other makers. The latest proof of this assertion was given at the International Fisheries Exhibition, London, 1883, where some fifty exhibitors were represented, and fine specimens of Oil, from all parts of the world, shown; but PETER MOLLER'S is the ONLY COD LIVER OIL for which the International Jury at the Fisheries Exhibition AWARDED TWO GOLD MEDALS.

By his process the Oil is perfected in one operation. No after manipulation can restore those invaluable qualities which are lost by incautious or careless treatment: any such attempts must tend only to further deteriorate the therapeutic value of the Oil, and can alone be directed to masking a flavour which never should have existed.

The marked characteristics of PETER MOLLER'S Cod Liver Oil are:—

Absolute Purity	Easy Digestibility,
Pristine Freshness,	Certain Efficacy,

EAU DE COLOGNE, 4711 4711.

Established 1792.

Gold Medal, Moscow, 1872; Prize Medal, Vienna, 1873.

This Eau de Cologne, so favourably known to the Australian public during the last 35 years, obtained at the last Philadelphia Exhibition the Prize Medal, and First Prize Sydney International Exhibition, for its superior sweetness, strength, and invigorating qualities, excelling all other competitors.

It has become the great favourite of the public, and is extensively patronised by the élite of Europe.

The large and constantly increasing demand for the genuine 4711 Eau de Cologne, not only in Europe, but also in North and South America, India, and Australia, is further undeniable evidence of its superiority.

The public are respectfully warned against numerous spurious imitations with the genuine number—4711 changed into 7411, 1147, 4117, &c., &c.

The real genuine article which carried off the Prize Medal at the Vienna Exhibition is that with the peculiar Gothic blue-and-gold label (different from all the others), and marked 4711.

KRAMS'S EYE LOTION.

TESTIMONIAL.

"Echuca, July 22, 1879.

"After trying several well-known Eye Lotions I find none at all comparable with Krams's. I had been blind from sandy blight, and compelled for days to keep in a dark room; yet in 20 minutes after the first application of KRAMS'S EYE LOTION was enabled again to attend to business. The effect was magical.

DERMATOLOGY. JAMES H. ADGER, Dermatologist, Office: 131, Elizabeth-st., Sydney, treats successfully all diseases of the skin and scalp, loss of hair, premature blanching, and general cultivation and growth of the hair; and, as a result of this experience, he may point to his flattering success during several years' practice in this city, without reference to the many special cures he has effected, as the best proof of the general efficiency of his system of treatment.

Mr. Adger may be consulted at his office, 131, Elizabeth-street, where letters and testimonials are open to inspection, which must satisfy the most sceptical, signed as they are by persons of the highest positions in society. It will be obvious that no person could have obtained such names as an endorsement of his professional ability without constant proof of merit.

The range of stabling, built of brick, has accommodation for carriage and two horses, and there is also additional stabling, fowlhouse, &c.
The grounds are laid out into flower garden, shrubberies, and small paddock, and the well-grown and handsome trees that ornament the property would lead one to suppose that Barham was away in the country—whereas in fact it is but a few minutes' walk from the centre of the city.

GREAT SALE OF THE YEAR 1885.

Concluding subdivision of the balance of the CAMPBELLFIELDS ESTATE, lying midway between the TOWNS of LIVERPOOL and CAMPBELLTOWN, and possessing within and on its borders the stations of Minto and Ingleburn, on the GREAT SOUTHERN RAILWAY.
The residue of this VALUABLE ESTATE,
about 1200 acres in extent, has been subdivided into farms of various sizes, and so arranged that purchasers so desiring may obtain large blocks without intersecting roads, and thus avoid expenses in fencing except for outside lines.

The remaining unsold lots of the TOWNSHIP of MINTO
and the suburban blocks, adjoining both
MINTO and INGLEBURN, will also be offered on the same date, as it is the wish of the proprietor to effect a clearing-out sale of the rest of his holding in the CAMPBELLFIELDS ESTATE on the day appointed for the sale.

The auction will take place
ON THE GROUND,
on SATURDAY, the 31st JANUARY, instant,
within half an hour of the arrival of the special train at Ingleburn, which will be placed free of charge at the use of intending purchasers.

RICHARDSON and WRENCH have received instructions from the Hon. S. A. JOSEPH to sell by public auction, on the Ground, close to the INGLEBURN RAILWAY STATION,
on SATURDAY, the 31st JANUARY, instant,
as above mentioned.
The whole of the balance of the above estate, subdivided into lots to suit purchasers, ranging from 5 to 50 acres.

Great care has been taken in laying out the above Estate, and Messrs. Atchison and Schleicher, the well-known surveyors, have well performed their professional work in carrying out the wishes of the proprietor, that the roads should be of great width—some extending to 99 feet, and occupy such positions on the ridges as to render them in any weather good travelling country for wheeled vehicles, even while unimproved except by the removal of the natural timber.

A Special Train on the morning of Sale will be placed at the disposal of those who, as intending purchasers, may desire to avail themselves of it, and on its arrival a luncheon will be served prior to the Sale.

Sale Plans are now on view at the Rooms, and copies in Lithograph will be ready to issue in the course of a few days, of which notice will be duly advertised.

TERMS.
Ten per cent. cash deposit, 15 per cent. in 3 months without interest, and the balance by promissory notes in equal amounts, at 1, 2, and 3 years' date, having interest added thereto at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.
Purchasers of £500 and upwards may arrange for special terms, to be notified on the day of sale.

Messrs. NORTON, SMITH, WESTGARTH, and SANDERS, of O'Connell-street, Sydney, are Solicitors to the Estate, from whom all particulars as to the title to the property may be obtained.

IMPORTANT SALE.

Owing to the death of the late D. Williams, Esq. (of Messrs. Williams and Murray, Paper Manufacturers), and IN CONFORMITY WITH THE DEED OF PARTNERSHIP,

HARDIE and GORMAN have received instructions to offer for sale by auction, at their Rooms, No. 133, Pitt-street, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, 14th January next, at 11 o'clock,

THE WHOLE OF THAT MAGNIFICENT and VALUABLE PROPERTY ON WHICH THE SYDNEY PAPER WORKS ARE ERECTED,

Consisting of about Fourteen (14) Acres of Freehold Land, together with all Building Machinery, and other Fixtures thereon; also, THE GOODWILL OF THE BUSINESS.

IT IS PARTICULARLY NOTIFIED TO THE TRADE THAT THERE WILL BE NO INTERRUPTION WHATEVER TO THE USUAL BUSINESS.

The Purchaser shall be required to take at a valuation all paper, rags, and materials for making paper, including chemicals, together with all plant and sundries.

The above valuable property is situated on the George's River, about 22 miles from Sydney, and within six minutes' walk of the Liverpool Railway Station, with which it is connected by a branch line.

Messrs. Williams and Murray have successfully carried on the business of Paper Manufacturers at the above works for a period of nearly 16 years, during which time they have supplied News Printing Paper to all the leading Newspapers in Sydney, Melbourne, Adelaide, Brisbane, and New Zealand. A very large trade is also carried on in Wrapping Papers, and the manufacture of Paper Bags by machinery (upon which there is a Customs duty). The latter part of the business is rapidly increasing.

The Freehold is very valuable, having frontages to both rail and river, and the Machinery, which has been supplied chiefly by that eminent engineering firm, James Bertram and Sons, Edinburgh, is not only of the very best description, but combines all modern improvements, and in this respect is quite equal to the best appointed mills in Great Britain.

The Auctioneers desire to draw particular attention to the special facilities which the above works afford for the successful and profitable manufacture of paper, viz.:—

1st. The unlimited and never-failing supply of fresh water, unrivalled for its softness and purity.
2nd. Abundant supply of material, also cheap coal.
3rd. Proximity to the metropolis, and ready markets.
4th. Connection with a railway, thus ensuring cheap and certain carriage for the raw material and manufactured article.

The present weekly capacity of the mill is 20 to 25 tons news printing, or 25 to 30 tons wrapping papers respectively; but taking into consideration the character and extent of the present works, the capacity of the mill could be enormously increased at a comparatively small cost, and a ready market found in Australia up to at least 200 tons weekly.

Owing to the length of time that the business has been established, the first costs of obtaining the market has been overcome. The mill also bears the highest reputation for its excellent quality of paper, and has obtained no less than FIVE HIGHEST AWARDS in competition against the World at the late great exhibitions, also testimonials from the leading journals in Sydney and Melbourne, and other first-class newspapers in Australia.

In 1883 the Proprietors, for business purposes, had the Land, Buildings, and Machinery inspected and valued by the following gentlemen, viz.:—

LAND (Hardie and Gorman)	£3,800 0 0
BUILDINGS (Mansfield Brothers) in detail, showing separate value of each building	18,868 12 9
MACHINERY (Norman Selfe) as per Schedule in detail, £34,621 1s 9d., but as a going concern	30,000 0 0

These valuations, together with the Exhibition Awards and other Testimonials, are now in the hands of the Auctioneers, where they can be inspected by intending buyers.

There will be no interruption to the business whatever; the Mill will be kept working as usual and prompt delivery given in full work.

TITLE—BASSET-DARLEY ESTATE ACT.

MILLS and PILE have received instructions to sell by auction, on the Ground,
THIS DAY, January 10th,
at half-past 3 o'clock,
26 CHOICE VILLA SITES,
Fronting Darley-road, Fairy Bower-road, and Vivian-street, having each from 40 feet to 88 feet frontages, by depths of 108 feet, and are situated immediately adjoining the Site for the Roman Catholic Archbishop's residence, close to Fairy Bower, the steamers' wharf, and overlooking the harbour and ocean.

His Grace Archbishop Moran is so sensible of the extraordinary attraction of the locality, immediately on seeing it he decided to make it for all time the ACROPOLIS OF HIS JURISDICTION, and, as will be seen by Messrs. Scheerin and Hennessy's advertisement, has called for tenders for the erection of an archiepiscopal residence, which will exceed in architectural splendour any structure of its kind in the southern hemisphere. We believe he has it also in contemplation to immediately erect a DIOCESAN SEMINARY and VOTARY CHAPEL contiguous to it.

We need hardly state that the privilege of living near the precincts of so much ecclesiological wealth cannot be too highly commended, from either an æsthetic or financial point of view.

This is the LAST CHANCE to purchase a site in a picked Position.

NOTE THE TERMS, and attend the SALE:—

PITT, SON, and BADGERY have been favoured with instructions from the executrix of the late Captain Johnston, R.N., of Annandale, New South Wales, to sell by public auction, at the Exchange, Sydney, on WEDNESDAY, the 11th day February, 1885, at 2.30 p.m.,

Those magnificent freeholds, conditional purchases, and right of runs in the far-famed and justly celebrated Yass district, held by the late proprietor for nearly 50 years.

With a view of giving all classes of purchasers an opportunity of securing large or small estates, the instructions are to sell the properties in the following lots, with stock, viz.:—

LOT No. 1.

JEIR, the Home Station, comprising 9459 acres (more or less) of freehold, and 5372 acres (more or less) of Conditionally Purchased land, all transferable, all fenced and subdivided into 20 paddocks. The house is built of stone and brick, with extensive outbuildings of all descriptions. Woolshed 150 feet in length, built of weatherboards and slabs, iron roof; will accommodate 16 shearers; large shearers' hut, and other necessary improvements.

With Jeir will be sold about 16,000 sheep.

There are numerous improvements on this lot, which it is impossible to describe in an advertisement; but with all its paddocks, advantage of UNFAILING WATER SUPPLY, including about 3 miles frontage to the Murrumbidgee River. It should be thoroughly inspected by any person desiring a suitable estate in this salubrious climate.

LOT No. 2.

NANIMA, 3435 acres of freehold (more or less), 2390 acres (more or less) of Conditionally Purchased land, all transferable, and about 5000 sheep. In this lot there is a magnificently brick-built house of 12 rooms, large stone barn, coachhouse, stables, storerooms, cart shed, and other outbuildings, large orchard, &c.

This property is divided into numerous paddocks, PERMANENTLY WATERED in ALL SEASONS, and in every way suitable for a family of means desiring a country residence.

LOT No. 3.

MURRUMBATEMAN.—3400 acres of freehold land, with 3500 sheep (more or less); it is securely fenced, and subdivided into 5 paddocks, principally by split and wire fences. It is PERMANENTLY WATERED IN ALL SEASONS by Murrumbateman and other creeks, also by unfailing springs. There is also a good 4-roomed Cottage and outbuildings, shepherd's hut, and about 200 acres of cultivation paddocks.

LOT No. 4.

THE GRANT.—1280 acres (more or less) of freehold land, with 1500 sheep, surrounded by sheep-proof fence, principally 6-wire and split timber; 2 huts, good sheep yards; watered by Ginninderra and Gooramon Ponds Creeks. About 150 acres have been cultivated. This property is well known as one of the richest in the neighbourhood, and adjoins the well known estates estates of E. K. Crace, Esq., and J. M'Carthy, Esq.

LOT No. 5.

BEDULLOCK.—1920 acres (more or less) of freehold land: 3000 sheep (more or less). This property is securely fenced, and subdivided into three paddocks by split and log fence, all sheep-proof. There is a good 6-roomed Cottage, outbuildings, shepherd's hut, good sheep yards. PERMANENTLY WATERED, and highly improved.

LOT 6.

KITTY'S CREEK.—937 Acres (more or less) of freehold land, about 7 miles from Yass, with 1000 sheep (more or less), securely fenced, principally with wire, stone wall and split fence, all sheep-proof; good hut, cultivation, paddock, and other improvements. It is PERMANENTLY WATERED.

With each of the above lots will be sold about the number of sheep advertised in connection therewith; the particulars as to sexes, ages, &c., will be given at time of sale.

In all cases where conditionally purchased lands are attached to freehold, as set out in the above particulars, the lot will be sold at per acre, for the Freehold, with a fixed price upon the conditionally purchased land, and in all cases the sheep advertised with each lot will go with that lot, at a price per head to be fixed at time of sale.

There are about 150 head of quiet, well-bred cattle, and about 50 horses, which the purchaser of Jeir will have the option of taking at a price to be fixed at sale.

Working bullocks, drays, and all other plant used in working the stations, as well as all stores, must be taken by the purchaser of each lot at a valution, and the purchasers of Jeir and Nanima will have the option of taking the household furniture at a valuation.

The above outline of particulars of these splendid properties fails to give any idea of their value, and intending purchasers will be given every opportunity of inspecting, but those who are seeking such investment, either for agricultural, grazing, stud farm, or speculative purposes, should bear in mind the fact that these estates were selected by their late owner nearly 50 years ago, consequently comprise some of the richest land in the celebrated Yass district, that such lands are daily improving in value by reason of the limited extent obtainable in this climate, and during the late trying seasons carried the whole of the stock without loss.

TERMS:

One-third cash, balance may remain for 5 years, secured upon the property, bearing interest at the rate of 6 per cent. per annum.

The Auctioneers will be glad to afford the fullest particulars of the above properties to intending purchasers, and to arrange for inspection, which may be done by communicating with them; or

Mr. R. P. JOHNSTON, Jeir, via Yass.
